SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. cavalrymen battled North Vietnamese troops on the slopes of Chu Pong Mountain today for the fifth consecutive day despite a Communist ambush in which both sides suffered major losses.

CHU PRONG FOOTHILLS (Reuters)—An American airmobile battalion, hammered in a ferocious ambush Wednesday afternoon—apparently the worst of the South Vietnamese War—today regrouped in these hills and began flying out its dead and wounded.

After a three-day battle a mile or so further south, elements of a North Vietnamese regiment hit the U.S. troops as they moved out of the densely-wooded Ia Drang Valley to set up a new helicopter landing site.

American losses were believed to be heavy in some units of the battalion, but no U.S. casualties were announced in accordance with security regulations.

(Associated Press photographer Richard Merron reached the remnants of the battalion and reported that dozens of dead Americans lay beside North Vietnamese bodies and wounded Americans crowded first aid stations.)

In Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman said the cavalrymen counted at least 300 North Vietnamese bodies and the figure was still rising. Over - all casualties for the Americans were said to be "moderate."

DESTROY FIVE PLANES

Elsewhere, in South Viet Nam, Viet Cong battalions destroyed five U.S. spotter planes and inflicted heavy casualties on Vietnamese rangers defending the Tan Hiep airfield 35 miles southwest of Saigon. A U.S. adviser said 28 Viet Cong bodies were found.

PLEIKU, South Viet Nam (AP)—Dozens of dead Americans lay beside North Vietnamese bodies in the Ia Drang Valley and wounded Americans crowded aid stations in Pleiku today following a Communist ambush of a battalion of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.

"We were walking along at the centre of the battalion and we started getting fired on all of a sudden," said a survivor of the ambush, Staff Sgt. Miguel Seise of Augusta, Ga.

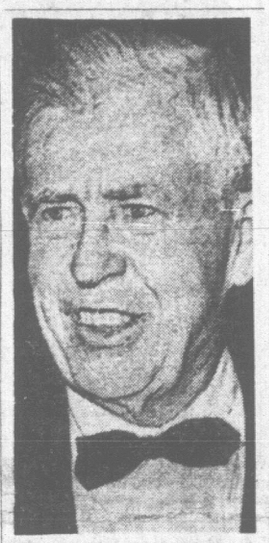

"It was coming from everywhere—the ground, the trees. Suddenly, everyone around me was getting hit and dying.

"I could hear screams all around me, all over the place. We fought and fought for what seemed hours. But it was no good.

"I told what was left of my men, and there weren't many, to pull back if they could.

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Henry Agard Wallace, U.S. vice-president in the Roosevelt administration, two time cabinet member, and unsuccessful third party candidate for the presidency, died today in hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

For 15 years, Wallace was one of the most controversial figures in American political life, beloved by New Deal proponents of social welfare for the common man and berated by economic conservatives.

He served Roosevelt as secretary of agriculture from 1933 to 1940, was elected vice-president in 1941, and was Harry Truman's secretary of commerce in 1945-46. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency on the progressive ticket in 1948.

Since that time Wallace has lived quietly as a gentleman farmer.

WIRE BRIEFS

Snow Snarls Traffic

MONTREAL (CP)—A ten-inch snowfall during the past 24 hours snarled morning rush hour traffic in the Montreal area today.

China Warns India

LONDON (UPI) — China warned today that it will hit back at Indian troops along the border of Sikkim if the Indians continue alleged intrusions and provocations.

Pupils Back In School

CAMPBELL RIVER—Twenty-five students returned to school today after a two-day absence to protest traffic conditions on the Island Highway. Parents said they kept the children home to publicize the need for a reduction of the 50-mile-per-hour speed limit on the stretch of highway where John Larsen, 7, was killed Monday and Gloria Bordian, also 7, died in September. Both were returning home from Willow Point School.

Talks With Gromyko

Ship Dumps Cargo

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Norwegian cargo ship, the Martha Bakke, cancelled a call for help today after dumping overboard a shifting deck load that had ripped a hole into which stormy seas started washing.

New Storm Hits

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A new storm swept in from the Pacific Ocean today as California coastal areas counted rain damage in the millions of dollars.

Relations Resumed

PRETORIA (AP)—Normal financial and trading relations between South Africa and Rhodesia, which were suspended when the British colony declared independence unilaterally Nov. 11, were resumed today.

U.S. FORCE UNAWARE COMRADES IN TROUBLE

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist North Vietnamese troops cut down U.S. cavalrymen on the slopes of Chu Pong Mountain while potential American reinforcements sat by unaware they were needed, frontline dispatches reported today.

Brig. Gen. Richard G. Knowles, commanding general of Operation Silver Bayonet, said no one informed division headquarters of the losses his men were taking.

Mediation Starts In Oil Dispute

Official Consults All Sides

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson today was optimistic that striking oil workers and their employers will sit down together for peace talks.

He told reporters this morning, "We had a meeting Wednesday with the union and a meeting is taking place this morning with the employers."

Asked if both sides had agreed to sit down at the same table, Mr. Peterson replied, "There is no problem in that respect at the moment."

The minister said the threat of a general strike in support of the oil workers is receiving strong public opposition

VIEWS BROADCAST

He said officials of his labor department Tuesday night and all day Wednesday monitored all "open line" public opinion programs by Vancouver and Victoria radio stations. The public appears deeply opposed to a general strike, he said.

In response to Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's denial that the NDP had spurred the threat of a 48-hour general strike, the minister said Mr. Strachan protested too strongly —raising suspicion he was involved.

Mr. Strachan had called Mr. Peterson "immature" for contending the strike threat was NDP-inspired. The opposition leader said Mr. Peterson was obviously over-burdened because he held two portfolios (education and labor) and demanded he resign one of them.

The general strike call came Wednesday from the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour. It brought immediate response from Premier Bennett.

NO REPLY

He appealed for cancellation of plans for a general work stoppage but until now, the union officials have made no reply. The strike is set for Thursday and Friday next week.

The premier said such a stoppage would harm not only industry, but all working people in the province. He said he hoped new conciliation moves would solve the dispute which began Sept. 17, initially involving only the British American Oil Company and the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, CLC.

Picket lines later were extended to Imperial Oil and Pacific Petroleum facilities.

Mr. Bennett said he had not considered calling a special emergency session of the legislature.

"I don't think it will come to a crisis," he stated, at a Wednesday press conference.

DO RIGHT THING

"I think it will be solved. I have great confidence in people doing the right thing."

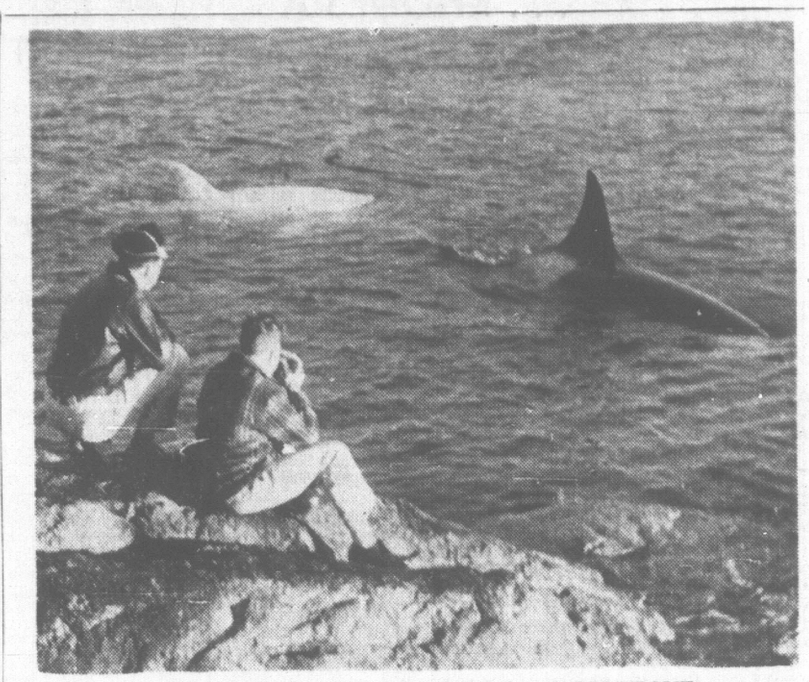

George Johnston, chairman of the strike co-ordinating committee of the labor federation, said the work stoppage is intended as a demonstration of labor's solidarity in support of the strike by oil workers.

Attorney-General Bonner said the move could cost $20,000,000.

Mr. Johnston described Mr. Peterson's statement about NDP involvement as "utter nonsense."

Pat O'Neal, secretary of the labor federation, claims that most major unions have

ALICE DURING VISIT TO OAK BAY WATERFRONT

IS ALICE NOW A STEAK ON SOME RUSSIAN PLATE?

By BOB DONAHUE

Have the Russians caught our Alice?

The possibility was raised Wednesday when the Soviet news agency Tass said in a brief report that a 36-foot white whale had been caught by a Russian ship in the North Pacific.

Alice is a white killer whale which has been spotted at various points around Vancouver Island and in the Queen Charlote Islands since 1947.

At the present time a large Russian fishing fleet is operating near the Queen Charlottes.

A spokesman for the fisheries department in Vancouver, which has been keeping close tabs on the Russians, could not confirm whether the Russians in the Queen Charlottes had caught the whale.

"There are no whaling ships in their fleet," he said, "but that is not to say they couldn't have caught it in a net."

He said a Russian whaling fleet visited these waters early last summer, but they generally operate in the Gulf of Alaska and the Bering Sea.

Dr. Clifford Carl of the provincial museum has been keeping close watch on Alice and in 1960 he published a paper entitled the Albino Whales of B.C. which outlined the various sightings since 1947.

Alice has been sighted on both sides of Vancouver Island at Crofton, Port Hardy, Nootka Sound on the West Coast and around the Queen Charlotte Islands.

She was seen off the west coast of the Island near Tofino less than two months ago and a few days prior to that she was spotted in Oak Bay.

Dr. Carl said most reports of the white whale would indicate that there is only one in this area.

Alice is usually accompanied by two other normal colored whales and the three are believed to travel as a family group.

INVOLVES VALIDITY OF E AND N ACT

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a court battle launched by a giant forest company against the government's tax branch likely will turn out to be "one of the biggest cases in British Columbia's legal history."

He was referring to a writ filed Wednesday in Vancouver Supreme Court by MacMillan, Bloedell and Powell River Co., which ultimately will involve hundreds of millions of dollars in provincial tax assessments on the huge Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land belt covering the centre of Vancouver Island.

Both sides feel the suit will take two or three years and will wind up before the Supreme Court of Canada for final determination.

TEST VALIDITY OF ACT

Although the company's argument is advanced on a narrow and technical point, Mr. Bonner said it would involve the validity of the special E and N Land Belt Act which was formulated 15 years ago after a court reference went all the way to the Privy Council in London.

"The importance of this case will be of a general nature," Mr. Bonner said, indicating its ramifications would be widespread through the province's land taxation laws.

The civil court action is expected to result in indefinite postponement of a Dec. 6 court of revision appeal hearing in Victoria law courts ordered last week by the provincial cabinet to hear the company's argument against a $34,167,936 assessment on 39,000 acres in the Strathcona land district.

WAIVE PROCEEDINGS?

Victoria lawyer Allan Baker, QC, is chairman of the three-man revision tribunal and he is expected to be asked to waive the proceedings in favor of the court action.

If he does, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria—appointed to represent the government at the court of revision—likely will be appointed as the government's chief lawyer in the court case.

Charles Brazier, QC, of Vancouver, filed the writ contending the $8,541,984 bonus tax levied

STRIKE BY NEGROES HITS RAILWAY YARDS

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (Reuters)—More than 2,000 Negro railway men walked out of the Rhodesian Railways locomotive and marshalling yards in Bulawayo today in a wildcat strike protesting against Rhodesia's seizure of independence from Britain.

Several departments of the railways, jointly owned and operated by Rhodesia and neighboring Zambia, were forced to close down by the walkout.

It followed an attempt Wednesday to organize a strike which won only minimum support, when about 40 Negro railwaymen went home.

'WON'T CO-OPERATE'

Negro Party Defies Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — The all-Negro opposition United Peoples Party warned Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith today that it will have no part in furthering what it considers his illegal seizure of independence from Britain.

The party's stand was made clear in a statement issued by its leader, Josiah Gondo.

A party statement said: "The United Peoples Party has already condemned the unilateral declaration of independence as illegal. There can therefore be no question of the party sitting down with Smith and his colleagues to discuss ways and means of furthering the illegal action in any way. This is the attitude which the official and loyal Opposition will adopt in Parliament."

Smith has repeatedly claimed that he had the backing of the Negroes for his unilateral declaration of independence.

Gondo's party has 10 members in Parliament which is due to meet Nov. 25.

AFFIRM LOYALTY

There are 65 seats in Parliament which is dominated by Smith's all - white Rhodesia Front party. There are five independent members — three African Negroes, one Asian and one white.

Rhodesians queued up today to affirm their loyalty to the Queen in two opposing and conflicting ways.

At Government House, where Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs is still in residence despite a Rhodesian government pinprick campaign apparently designed to force him out, a steady stream of people came to sign the visitor's book.

And at the legislative assembly, in the centre of the city,

KIDNAPPED BY TWO MEN

WAITING FOR SCHOOL BUS

Father Pays $45,000 Ransom to Free Boy

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A 13-year-old Tacoma boy, son of a wholesale grocery company executive, was kidnapped by two men Wednesday, held for nine hours and released unharmed after payment of $45,000 ransom.

Sheriff Jack Berry disclosed the kidnapping today after Charles Hyde Jr., was back safely with his family.

The ransom was paid by Charles Hyde Sr., president of the West Coast Grocery Co. here.

Berry said the boy was kidnapped while waiting for a school bus to take him to Charles Wright Academy, a private school. Two men drove up in a car while the boy was standing at a bus stop near his home.

The man on the passenger side of the car got out, took the boy by the arm and told him they were going to drive him to school. Then the man led the boy into the back seat.

The sheriff said the boy was told to lie down on the floor. Then the second man got in with him and put a blanket over him. They drove around for some time and later put tape over the boy's eyes, the sheriff said.

Berry said the elder Hyde received a telephone call about two hours later, at 10 a.m., from the kidnappers at his office. He was told to draw $45,000 from the bank in $5, $10, $20 and $100 bills.

The kidnappers put the boy on the telephone to say hello to his father. They told the

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO SPEND HIS $135,000

BUDAPEST (AP) — A Hungarian has just won 1,500,000 forints ($135,000) in the state lottery, and he is at a loss about what to do with his money.

He placed an advertisment in a local newspaper, asking for someone to give him ideas on how to spend his money in a country with state-run economy.

Figyeloe, a leading economic journal, reported on the man's plight. His name was not disclosed. Such winners usually wish to remain anonymous for fear of harassment of women making offers of marriage.

ELIZABETH UNDERLINES SUPPORT FOR GIBBS

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth tonight underlined her support for Rhodesian Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs by awarding him her personal order of knighthood.

An announcement from Buckingham Palace said:

"The Queen has been pleased to make the Honorable Sir Humphrey Vicary Gibbs, KCMG, OBE, Governor of Southern Rhodesia, a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order."

Sir Humphrey, 62, already was a knight, having been made Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1960, when he became governor of Rhodesia.

The Queen's action in conferring the KCVO on Gov. Gibbs was interpreted as a move to make it clear in Rhodesia that he was still her representative in the colony.

hundreds stood in line under a hot sun to sign the visitor's book of Clifford Dupont, the Rhodesian breakaway government's new acting "governor."

Dupont, former deputy premier in Smith's regime, was sworn in Wednesday as the country's first acting officer administering the government under the independence constitution proclaimed last week.

He "assumes" the powers held by the British - appointed Gibbs. Smith has said that Gibbs no longer is the legal governor.

The Queen and the British government regard the governor as the only legal government in Rhodesia.

Gibbs was still at Government House on the outskirts of Salisbury, with no telephone link, no sentries and no official car.

In London, the British government said it is in continued touch with Gibbs despite the absence of a telephone link, but it does not want to disclose the method for fear the Smith regime may block it.

Smith said Wednesday he was stripping the last trappings of office from Gibbs.

Wednesday night an explosion in the centre of Bulawayo, Rhodesia's second largest city, shattered windows in an apartment building but caused no injuries.

PATROL NEGRO AREAS

Strong police patrols were on duty in Negro townships in Salisbury and Bulawayo but no incidents were reported.

Smith was asked at a press conference Wednesday how far his government would be prepared to go if the situation got tough.

"We will resort to measures as tough as they have to be if necessary," he said.

The prime minister said restricted Negroes, including rival nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, will be kept in restriction camps "until they make it clear they will agree to work the constitution."

He added that "while they give orders to burn, to intimidate and even to kill they will stay as they are."

Asked if there had been unrest in the country since independence, Smith said: "There has been a little trouble but it has been insignificant, token strikes and that sort of thing. But the situation is normal. . . ."

He said censorship imposed after independence would be ended in "the shortest possible time. I reluctantly accept it as a necessary evil."

Government censors today said they had banned the current issue of Time magazine.

Dundee - born editor Sidney Swadel of the daily newspaper Bulawayo Chronicle ordered chief government censor Ivor Benson out of the editorial room Wednesday night.

"Get out of my office and never let me see you here again," snapped Swadel. "Get out at the double."

The censors have their own room in the building where all news and pictures have to be passed before they can be published.

In Salisbury Wednesday, editor Malcolm Smith of the Rhodesia Herald was questioned by police who took possession of his passport.

Both newspapers are strongly anti-Smith and have been heavily censored in the last week.

FLOG 184 STUDENTS

Officials flogged 184 African high school students in Gwelo for demonstrating last Tuesday against independence.

In its continuing efforts to bring Smith's government to its knees, Britain showed signs of preparing to add a paralysing oil embargo to the other economic sanctions it has slapped on Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Wilson beamed a shortwave broadcast to Salisbury warning that members of the United Nations were in a "passionate mood" to take drastic action.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the UN Security Council that Britain was ready to consider an oil embargo among wider economic sanctions.

pledged support for the work stoppage.

The federation, in a telegram to labor unions throughout the province, has asked that union members discontinue the use of petroleum products for the 48-hour period and that unions not directly involved in the use of petroleum products withdraw their services for the same period of time.

Oil workers seek an additional 50 cents an hour in a basic wage of $2.75, but protection against the effects of automation is chief among their aims in a new contract.

Meanwhile, in Saskatoon, National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas told reporters that B.C. Labor Minister Peterson is meerly looking for a "scapegoat" when he blames the general strike threat on the NDP.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Peterson's charge was "completely false."

"Mr. Peterson would be far better advised to apply himself to his job. He has failed to do his job as minister of labor during the last six weeks."

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Peterson had failed to take measures to have the petroleum companies bargain in good faith.

"This is his job rather than making irresponsible statements."

And at Port Alberni, NDP MLA John Squire called the suggestion of NDP instigation of the general strike threat "stupid." He claimed the NDP is being made a whipping boy

He said the present situation is 1937 repeating itself.

The MLA said "in that year B.C. oil companies took on Premier Duff Pattullo when he ordered gas price reductions . . . the industry defied the government order, shut its refineries down, and the government capitulated."

He said "Mr. Peterson has been told repeatedly over the years what his legislation was leading to.

"He has been told labor is denied equal footing with management in dealing with urgent employment matters"

under the special E and N lands statute, and based on the $34.1 million assessment notice, is not legal or valid.

'ACTUAL' VALUE

The bonus tax is a flat 25 per cent of the "actual value" of any E and N land belt property on the day it is sold. This is set out by the special act which was set up to recover some of the advantage of tax exemption originally given the company under terms of B.C.'s entry into Confederation which included the promise of a mainland railway link to Esquimalt.

MBPR last Dec. 31 bought some 140,000 acres of the land belt from the Canadian Pacific Railway, Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd. bought another 80,000 acres in the same deal and the sale price for both transactions totalled $53 million.

Because the property was not fully surveyed or timber cruised, the provincial tax branch took a 39,000-acre block of the MBPR purchase for a pilot analysis and last Sept. 30 issued the tax assessment of $34.1 million on it — although MBPR paid only $35 million for its entire 140,000 acres.

On this basis, the likelihood arose immediately that the final assesment on the entire 220,000 acres of some of the best timber land in North America bought by the two companies would wind up at more than $250 million—about five times the price paid for it.

This would mean a projected bonus tax levy totalling $62.5 million for provincial coffers, considerably more than the price.

The implications don't stop there because the two-company deal only bought up about half of the remaining tax-exempt land in the belt which originally totalled 3,000 acres or one-quarter of all Vancouver Island.

Presumably, the 200,000 or so acres of unalienated land still left would be subject to the same scale of assessments—based on "actual value" and not necessarily price—when they were sold. Theoretically at least, this raises the ultimate stakes to close to $500 million in tax assessment instead of an anticipated $100 million or less based on today's land values.

The assessment figures are a double-edged sword because they are the basis not only for the one-shot 25 per cent tax but also the annual property tax that normally applies to all private land in unorganized territory.

MBPR first asked for a court of revision appeal hearing to attack the pilot property assessment figure alone.

But Wednesday it took the case to court to attack the legality of the assessment method as well as the figure determined by the tax branch.

The writ asks for a declaration that the Sept. 30 tax notice was illegal because it related only to one portion instead of the entire acreage purchased by the company.

The company lawyers are expected to argue that although the bonus tax is valid in principle it must be applied at one time to the entire property purchase and should be based on an assessment related directly to the price paid chance of getting out.

"We started crawling away under terribly intense fire. We crawled 250 yards, then started running. I never ran so fast before.

"We had to leave most of the wounded people behind. There was nothing else we could do. But we tried to help some of them by crawling with them.

"The ones we left behind were screaming in pain and fear. Someone shouted out, "Don't leave me' " A lieutenant called out, 'Please shoot me. Please shoot me. I don't want them to get me'."

"Oh God, it was horrible," said Pte. David Weed of Pittston, Me. "Guys were crying. We had to leave them. Some were screaming."

When the North Vietnamese opened up with mortars and small arms, the battalion radioed for reinforcements. The other battalion began a forced march and reached the ambush scene at nightfall.

The wake of battle left bodies in piles of 15 and 20.

men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division, the North Vietnamese leaped from trees and camouflaged positions to spray the battalion with withering fire from mortars, machine - guns, portable rocket - launchers and small arms.

The engagement lasted for about 2½ hours, much of it hand-to-hand. Some of the Communist troops were shot down only after they had penetrated the American lines.

Although U.S. casualty figures have not been released, the Ia Drang battle has already caused the greatest American losses of any single engagement in the war. The last official count of enemy dead was 890, not including those killed Wednesday.

The Americans were flown in Sunday to tackle the North Vietnamese, estimated to number about 1,500 in the area, 220 miles northeast of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

After three days of heavy fighting, and in advance of a B-52 bombing attack on Communist positions on Chu Phong Mountain, two battalions had pulled out of their positions at the foot of the mountain. Helicopters flew one battalion to an artillery base about three miles to the southeast. The other battalion hiked north into the ambush.

'Treason' Charged By Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson today branded as an act of treason the move by Ian Smith's regime in Rhodesia to appoint Clifford Dupont as a "replacement" for the Crown-appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs.

Wilson told Parliament that Gibbs was appointed by Queen Elizabeth and could be removed only at her request.

He spoke of the "contemptible action" of Smith's white-minority regime in putting pressure on the governor and Lady Gibbs.

Smith's white-minority government seized independence in the Central African colony Nov. 11.

CROSS-CANADA HOSPITAL SURVEY

All Municipalities Share Costs

Municipalities in all Canadian provinces pay a share of hospital construction costs—just as the capital region here is being asked to do on a regular basis.

This was disclosed by a survey recently conducted by the Canadian Hospital Association. It was made available to the Times today by Royal Jubilee Administrator George Masters.

Mr. Masters says when the cost-sharing systems in each province, involving federal, provincial and municipal governments, are worked out, British Columbia stands first.

"In all these provinces the municipalities pay a higher percentage of hospital costs than they are asked to do in B.C.," he said. Health Minister Eric Martin recently made the same claim.

Mr. Masters said in some provinces the hospitals hold fund drives also. But in the western provinces these have proved largely unsuccessful.

The survey appears to refute a statement attributed to Victoria Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow Tuesday.

He said B.C. is the only province where local ratepayers are asked to support capital costs of hospitals.

HOSPITAL TABLE

Ald. Edgelow said today he obtained his information from the Federation of Canadian Mayors. He added that other provinces ask municipalities to contribute on a voluntary basis but none of them make the municipal contribution mandatory.

(Under the mini-metro scheme now before the capital region a two-mill levy would be applied to all taxpayers once the scheme is adopted.)

Here is the table provided by the hospital association:

British Columbia pays half the approved cost of new construction and all operating costs and charges patients $1 per day for ward care. Ottawa pays $2,000 per bed. The balance is a municipal responsibility.

Alberta matches federal grants ($2,000 per bed, estimated in Victoria to amount to 15 per cent of construction costs) and may pay the balance of the cost at established maximum rates, by meeting debenture payments. But in Alberta there is a four-mill assessment for operating costs, against municipalities.

Saskatchewan, for some hospitals pay up to 70 per cent of $13,000 for each bed. In others, up to 60 per cent of $10,000 and in community hospitals, up to 40 per cen tof $8,000 per bed. The community pays the balance.

Manitoba matches federal grants and approves loans for remainder after a 20-per-cent local contribution and provincial and federal grants have been deducted. The community pays the balance.

Ontario pays $3,200 to each new active bed and $3,000 per chronic bed, provided the grant is not more than 50 per cent of construction cost. The community pays the balance.

Quebec has no capital grant regulations. If the province approves the construction there are grants matching the federal contribution, which sometimes are increased beyond it. The community pays the balance.

New Brunswick pays $2,000 per bed and furnishing and equipment costs are refunded by the hospital service. Provincial grants retire capital debt and interest up to two-thirds of the total. The community pays the balance.

Nova Scotia pays $3,000 per bed, operates a hospital loan fund and collects a per capita tax from municipalities. The community pays the balance.

Prince Edward Island pays $2,000 per bed and makes a grant to meet interest and principal on hospital capital debt up to 50 per cent—after deducting initial grants. The community pays the balance.

Newfoundland makes substantial grants toward capital costs, but details are not shown. The community pays the balance.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A disturbance which crossed the south coast this morning was accompanied by rain showers and snow flurries as it moved through the southern interior today. Behind the disturbance skies will remain mostly cloudy and there will be a few showers along the coast as a large stationary storm west of Oregon continues to pump moist air over B.C. The cloudy weather is expected to continue through Friday.

BEACH-BOUND gals will have a choice of lengths as evidenced by these new bathing suits scheduled for next season. Shown are a bikini, a flowered blouson suit and a knee-lengthened suit with striped top. (AP Wirephoto.)

EVEN PATCHES MISSING ON SOME SWIM SUITS

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — If you thought last summer's bathing suits were skimpy, just wait 'til next year! The gals will be barer than ever.

California swimsuit designers seem to have a common goal: Conserve material. The result is a minimum of suit exposing a maximum of curves.

Whereas last year California designers cut out only the back, side or middle of a suit, this year they did all three to the same number—and then sometimes punched it full of holes. The suits that do employ fabric cling so closely they look like skin.

Tagged with such names as Escapade, Perfect Alibi and Hide and Seek, they all but guarantee to provide all three for any wearer.

The one-shoulder look is a new fashion.

One model swept down a runway in a suit of black elastic net over nude fabric that left the stomach exposed along with the back and sides.

Cole has some of the barest bikinis—strips of brightly colored knit fabric with just patches over strategic parts of the model's anatomy. And some didn't have any patches.

Imagination concentrated on how to cover the swim suits.

Cataline showed a denim carpenter's apron over a brief matching bikini. A cable knit overblouse topped a matching swim suit.

But most popular of all were the knee-length, ruffled trousers variously called long jansan jammies and surf britches.

The trousers, sometimes covering bikini trunks, at other times paired only with brief bikini bras, were patterned from the surfer trousers which first became popular in Tahiti, a Catalina spokesman said.

They came striped, flowered, and polka - dotted.

Also featured were windbreaker jackets in everything from waterproof fabric to cotton prints; laced trunks and cotton-knit surfer shirts for both beach and campus wear.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

Local Labour Council Backs General Strike

Delegates to the Victoria Labour Council Wednesday night unanimously supported the oil workers in their current dispute and the 48-hour general strike if it is not resolved by next Wednesday midnight.

The move came after several delegates criticized the council executive for a resolution that sought only to file correspondence on the subject and the sending of a representative to an all-union meeting last Monday.

An amendment to this resolution was carried, stating that the labor council supports the stand taken by the B.C. Federation of Labour in the matter.

A telegram will be sent to Labor Minister Leslie Peterson urging him to bring both sides to the bargaining table.

One delegate said he wanted more details about the issue befor supporting the general strike, but another said newspapers have given fair and comprehensive coverage on the subject recently.

The amendment was moved by James Moffat, business agent for Local 1598 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

Another delegate from the carpenters union, John Schibli, said the issue is "a very simple matter—automation."

The oil industry was more automated than any other and could function at 70 to 80 per cent of normal production using only supervisory personnel.

JOB SECURITY

"This will be the case with others before long," he said.

A member of Local 9-601, Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, said the men are not too concerned about wages but are worried about job security.

Fred Ikona, who has been on strike with eight others here for two months against British-America's marketing division, said the oil companies "have not moved a bit" on automation.

In 1957, the union had 1,000 members in B.C. but despite an increase in union-organized plants, membership now was down to 600 in the province.

The workers want six months notice for men who are to be replaced by automation or mechananization, he said, and they want the companies to pay part of the costs of job retraining within the companyy.

United Brewery Workers of America delegate George Parkes said brewery workers settled for a higher amount than is being mentioned in BA advertisements as their offer in the oil strike.

The council meeting was attended by 27 delegates representing 23 local unions. The labor council represents 70 unions with close to 9,000 members.

'Passengers Have Duty As Lookouts'

TORONTO (CP)—Passengers in cars have the same duty as drivers to avoid danger, Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse says in a written judgment dismissing a law suit against the CPR. Last Feb. 17, a car driven by Dante Sdraulig collided with a train at Port Arthur. Sdraulig and a passenger Ferruccilo Babudro were killed.

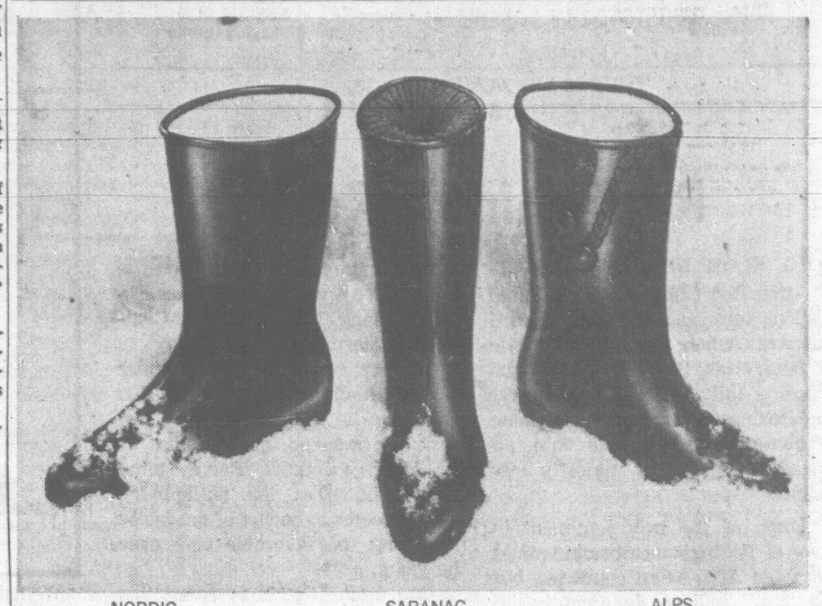

Mrs. Sdraulig sued for $503,000, Mr. Babudro's father sought $25,000.

In the judgement Monday, Mr. Justice Moorhouse found the railway complied with all regulations. "I can find no excuse for Sdraulig's failure to stop," he said.

The judge said there was a clear view for 41 feet approaching the level crossing and said, "It is no less a duty of a passenger, where he has the opportunity, than of a driver, to learn of danger and avoid it."

FAKE CALL OF 'FIRE' PANICS PASSENGERS

CAIRO (Reuters)—A man who wanted a seat on a packed train near here shouted "fire!" and panicking passengers jumped out of the windows onto the rails. Two of them landed in the path of another train and were killed Wednesday.

Mayor Demotes Foremen

FATIMA, Que. (CP)—Eighteen foremen on winter works projects in Iles-de-la-Madeleine say they have been demoted because they voted for the Progressive Conservative party in last week's federal election.

They say they have been offered jobs as laborers, at $1.20 an hour compared with $1.40 for foremen, on the same projects, financed by the federal and provincial governments.

The men said their status as foremen was discussed at a municipal council meeting Nov. 9, the day after the election, and that subsequently each of them received a letter from Mayor Albin Aucoin with notice of their disqualification as foremen "for political reasons and as a result of . . . having voted Conservative."

PARTISAN POLITICS

Louis-Philippe Lacroix, Liberal member of the provincial legislature for the district said he asked Mayor Aucoin and mayors of two other municipalities on the islands to alter jobs of those "who have been involved in partisan Conservative politics." He said Mr. Aucoin took the term "partisan politics" to mean those persons simply voting Conservative.

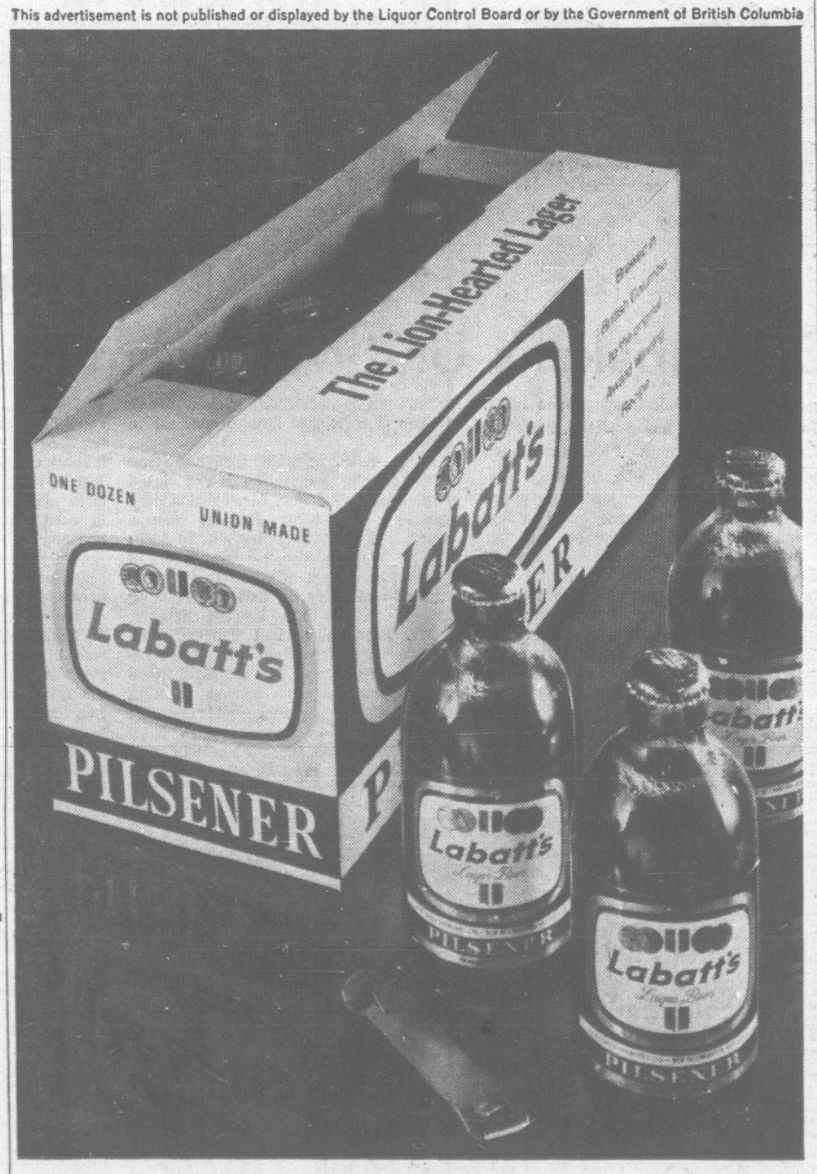

Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve was re-elected Nov. 8 by a 307-vote margin over Conservative Marc Arsenault. Mayor Aucoin said Mr. Sauve "had nothing to do with this business."

He said:

"The men can return to work if they like, not as foremen but as laborers. I did this to keep the peace because they were arguing with one another about the elections." Mr. Lacroix said he also had been in touch with municipal officials at Bassin and Havre aux Maisons, other communities in the islands, and asked them also "to make laborers those foremen who had participated in partisan Conservative politics during the election campaign."

He said some foremen were transferred at Bassin and Havre aux Maisons but "in these places we heard no talking."

Red China's Road

THE SLOW PROCESS OF GETting Red China into the United Nations took another step forward this week when the Assembly vote in favor was tied 47-47 with the opposing tally. It was the nearest the Peking government had come to obtaining a favorable vote, although a two-thirds majority was required.

Much of the new sentiment in favor of Peking's membership comes from the Afro-Asian countries, but the "yes" ballots significantly included those of Britain, France and Russia, although not that of Canada. The official Canadian attitude has been variously explained during the past few years as reflecting a lack of any positive public desire to see Red China elected or as unwillingness to offend a friendly ally (the United States) on a matter in which Canadian fortunes are not at the moment seriously concerned.

It is obvious, however, that a country with so large a population as that of Red China cannot permanently be excluded from a world organization devoted to keeping the peace. This is particularly so when that country is developing an atomic bomb and within a few years must be listed as a nuclear power. The situation is complicated, however, by Red China's insistence on the expulsion of Nationalist China — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Formosan state of some 11 million people—before the Communist state will accept.

For many reasons, Nationalist China cannot be removed from the United Nations. For one thing, the United States cannot turn its back on an ally whom it has sworn to protect—the repercussions would be far-reaching among all the smaller states which have treaties with Washington. Nationalist China, as an original signatory to the UN Charter, has a right to membership as long as it is recognized as a sovereign country. Red China, of course, sees Taiwan only as a rebellious splinter separated from the mainland by water and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's anti-Communist determination.

It may be that a compromise can eventually be reached on this point, as on the matter of Taiwan's permanent membership of the Security Council. For the time being, however, the preliminary process seems to be one of gradually increasing the favorable vote over the years.

One factor that may speed this up is Red China's acquisition of the nuclear bomb. Very quickly the nations of the world must fashion some sort of meeting place where the nuclear powers can work out a system of global control. Failing this, Peking's expressed ideas of use of the bomb and of its proliferation among other countries could create havoc in international affairs and a formidable threat to world security.

Acceptance of Red China as a member of the United Nations would, of course, entail recognition of the Peking government as the legal administration of the country. That would be only a technicality for Canada, which already has important trade relations with the Communist regime, but it could pose a diplomatic problem for some other nations. The United States, in particular, holds the line against recognition of the Red Chinese government, and there seem to be enough international incidents to furnish cause for Washington continually to renew its determination.

At the moment, the confrontation of the two countries over Viet Nam makes recognition most improbable, as Korea, the Formosan struggle, the Indian border clashes and other events have done in the past. But these aspects will become relatively incidental when Red China emerges as the powerful country it is destined to be. The few intervening years should be directed to preparing the ground for that emergence in a peaceful manner, rather than with an explosion.

Berries and Bloom

High-Rise Petition

"Must the people of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head live in constant doubt and fear about the status of their district and their property? Again a petition is circulating to get property rezoned for high-rises—and again to fence the university in with prison walls of concrete and close off its view across the sea. This time the "benefactors" of our district are running about in a California car.

High-rise investors are interested in only one thing: their own financial gain. Let no one in Cadboro Bay or Gordon Head be foolish enough to sign any petition.

Let one high-rise appear on Cadboro Bay hillside—anywhere—and our residential area will be gone in 10 years.

The citizens of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head area are relying also on the members of Saanich Council to protect their homes and privacy once again, as they did two years ago. We trust they will not break faith with us.

Now it is time to go further. The residents of Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head must have some guarantee of future security. A university district planning commission must be set up without delay by Saanich Council, the University and the Provincial Government, to control development and planning of the entire area from Gordon Head Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road to the sea.—J. Beattie MacLean, 2662 Queenswood.

Defending Billy

May I make a few comments on the United Church Observer's editorial, reprinted in the Times Friday?

In the first place, to write a syndicated column, or a letter, or any kind of communication, and append to it someone else's signature is reprehensible—reprehensible, that is, if it is done without the knowledge of the person whose signature is used, and if this person will not accept responsibility for the material signed. The situation changes much for the better when a man with his own name voluntarily endorses someone else's writing, particularly if—as appears to be Billy Graham's case—he makes no secret of the authorship.

Whatever the point at issue, it is usually possible to cut the ground from under the feet of those who accuse us of "waffling"; the way to do it is to declare ourselves flatly for one side. When we are anxious for blood, the lines must be drawn and the battle joined.

The advantage is beyond question. Unfortunately, however, while the battle certainly helps to relieve emotions, it does little to elucidate the truth, which as often as not lies somewhere between the opposite extremes. To insist that we assent to literalism, or dissent from it, without reservations, is rather like asking us to agree or disagree with the statement "The Russians are wrong." An intelligent person would surely specify cases and pronounce on each.

Again, whatever the context of Billy Graham's remark regarding the church's involvement in social issues it is difficult to see how they can have possible relevance to the charge of literalism. And, granted that Dr. Graham may have spoken of money not being given "to the church," it is surely apparent that such a general phrase must include all churches, even the United Church of Canada.

One is at a loss, therefore, to see the connection between this statement and the allegation that Dr. Graham's view on literalism has a pecuniary motive. Is this not a gratuitous libel? And is it not also reminiscent of the devices of religious antagonists in another age, of whom it is recorded: "Now the chief priests and elders, and all the council, sought false witness against Jesus, to put him to death, but found none"?—S. Graham Field, 880 Falaise.

FROM WASHINGTON — By WALTER LIPPMANN

First—The Will to Bridge the Gulf

THE conflict in Rhodesia between the native Africans and the European settlers is a perfect example of a problem to which there can be no final solution during the lifetime of the men who are involved. The white prime minister, Ian Douglas Smith, who has been pushed over the brink by the right wing of his own party, cannot guarantee that white supremacy will be maintained in Rhodesia. It is a virtual certainty that in Africa 220,000 whites can do no more than fight a rear guard action for their own supremacy against four million blacks.

Lippmann

Unless there is a racial holocaust in which the whites or blacks exterminate one another, Rhodesia is destined in one way or another to become a multi-racial state. The controlling fact is that a multi-racial state cannot be developed in one generation, and the crucial question is, therefore, how such a long, difficult transition can be managed without intolerable disorder.

State of War

It is conceivable, to be sure, that the white Rhodesians, organized as a police state, could for some years and with enough ruthlessness exercise white supremacy. But it can do this only by being at war with the mass of its own Africans and with the great masses of the African continent.

It is conceivable, though highly improbable, that the African majority in Rhodesia might obtain command of the government. It can do that only at the risk of anarchy in the public life of Rhodesia, at the risk, also, of a cruel war with the die-hard whites, at the risk, also, of the renewal of African tribal warfare which was subdued by the British occupation.

While no one can speak confidently about how to overcome the absolutes of the white supremacists and the absolutes of the Africans demanding immediate majority rule, we do know what ought to be done. We ought to win time for a peaceable evolution.

A way must be found in which whites and blacks accept the fact that it will require at the least a generation of time for the evolution of Rhodesia into a multi-racial state. The white supremacists cannot win in the long run, and the African majority cannot win in the short run.

Unless the whites or the blacks are to exterminate one another, they must grant each other time in which the Africans can evolve the essential capacity to govern and the Europeans can devolve from their white supremacy.

This may be asking for more patience and common sense than the human race is currently displaying. But for Americans there is no other assumption on which we can base our policy.

Rhodesia, as such, is not within the sphere of American interests and responsibility. Yet, we must be very much concerned that Rhodesia should not set off a racial war in southern Africa. For that would be one into which the great powers would in one way or another be sucked. It would be a war, moreover, which would cause serious reverberations within the United States.

The administration has, I think, done the right thing in adopting a supporting and secondary role, not an initiating and primary one. This has been challenged by Americans who argue that our position of "world leadership" demands that we take the lead in African affairs.

It would be a mistake to do this. Moreover, once a European power has liquidated its own colonial empire, as have Britian, France and Belgium, it is left with a pool of technicians and administrators who know the country, who have personal roots in the country who know the ways of the country which no one can acquire quickly. These people are better equipped than Americans could ever make themselves to be the guides, counselors and tutors of the young nations.

Guides Needed

No one, I think, should ignore or underestimate the need in a new nation for guides, counselors and tutors. No one, moreover, should refuse to face the facts of life, such as the fact that it takes time to educate a people and to train the technicians and experts who are indispensable to a self-governing nation.

Our real quarrel with the white Rhodesians is not that they want time, as they say in their propaganda, to "bridge the gulf between the Stone Age and the 20th century." It is that Ian Douglas Smith is under the control of white supremacists who are determined not to bridge the gulf.

As soon as the government in Rhodesia is taken over by men who do mean to bridge the gulf, the way will be open to a modus vivendi between white Rhodesia and the rest of mankind.

Grim Joke

Ottawa Citizen

Before voting day, some politicians and newspapers urged the election of a minority government. Today, that irresponsible advice looks like a grim joke. This is the government that must guide Canada through a fundamental readjustment of its federal relationships. It must help the provinces to meet the massive challenge of educating a generation for whom there will be no work without education. It must control the present economic boom, so as to prevent inflation and crash. This is the government that should, if it can, speak with a clear, firm voice for Canada among the nations.

Eager Borrowers, Willing Lenders

DURING THE TAG END DAYS of the election campaign, the accusation was hurled by a number of politicians that if the Liberal government were returned it would institute a "tight money" policy.

Government action since the election in holding up Canadian borrowing in the United States has been regarded as confirmation of these accusations but this is far too simple a view. Governments don't create conditions of tight or easy money—they react after the event. There is a situation now in Canada where borrowing has become more difficult. This has come about because of the pace of business activity and from innumerable individual decisions of Canadian businessmen and foreign businessmen with interests in this country.

The tremendous demand for investment funds to feed Canada's industrial expansion has caught the government in a squeeze and it has little room in which to manoeuvre. Some of the demand could be satisfied by instructing the Bank of Canada to create fresh money and pump it into the economy—but this would be an irresponsible inflationary move at a time when the economy is stretched almost to capacity and with labor shortages showing up in many vital areas.

The only other way in which the demand for investment money can be met is by borrowing abroad and this trend has been checked not by Canada but by the United States and, in less important degree, Britain.

The Ottawa announcement last week that Canadian borrowing in the American market was to be deferred honored a pledge given to Washington in July, 1963. At that time the United States, as part of its program to correct its balance of payments deficit, imposed a tax of 15 per cent on foreign securities purchased by American citizens. The move caused consternation in Canadian business circles and Ottawa managed to negotiate an exemption for this country from the tax. As a result of this exemption, Canadian business and industry have continued to expand for more than two years because of the availability of American investment funds.

In allowing the Canadian exemption on the tax, however, Washington insisted that Ottawa must keep its holdings of foreign exchange at the level prevailing at that time. There could not be unlimited Canadian borrowing, in other words, at the expense of the American balance of payments situation.

For the past four months Canada has been in default on this agreement. Foreign reserve holdings have risen by more than $200 millions above the July, 1963, level and the United States would have been quite in order to demand that borrowing by Canada be halted if the Canadian government had not acted first.

The situation in which the government finds itself is far from ideal. It is quite likely that in the face of what seems to be developing into a rapid boom, the Bank of Canada would have wanted to impose a monetary policy of higher interest rates but without any serious lack of availability of investment funds. Interest rates, however, cannot be allowed to rise at a much faster pace than in the United States without attracting more foreign funds and putting the foreign exchange reserve totals even further above the agreed level.

Things may be eased partly by the traditional Canadian winter slowdown and expected heavy drains on the exchange reserve fund in the coming months. But it is not going to be easy, balancing continued prosperity against inflationary pressures, or the demand for investment funds against the necessity of restricting foreign borrowing.

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Mr. Diefenbaker's Unity of Splinters

MR. Diefenbaker, who quite evidently had not got the husting out of his system, has been excited by Mr. Gordon's resignation into a rash of extraordinary statments. Somehow or other the Conservative leader seems to have persuaded himself that the Gordon resignation raises a constitutional question of great magnitude. If it does, Mr. Diefenbaker should make his points with clarity and precision. Whistle-stop pontifications will simply not do in such a case.

Western

From some of his statements as reported on Friday, Mr. Diefenbaker seems to believe that Mr. Gordon has been made the goat. "Constitutionally," he says, "no one minister can vicariously accept responsibility for the wrong-doing of the cabinet." The thought evidently is that the government was guilty of wrong-doing because it called an election before completing the business of redistribution.

Guilt Rejected

It would be quite reasonable, in light of the published correspondence, to say that Mr. Gordon attempted to assume a vicarious responsibility for the decision to dissolve. He pressed for an election which, he thought, would produce a majority in Parliament. He asserts in his letter that he gave "bad advice."

But the correspondence also shows that Mr. Pearson flatly refused to permit Mr. Gordon to be the goat or to assume vicarious responsibility.

In other statements, Mr. Diefenbaker has attempted a different argument. "Bad advice followed by the prime minister has a natural consequence. I think the government should resign if they have been following wrong economic policies now admitted." The Conservative leader added: "If the advice was bad and the policies were wrong, it cannot be atoned for by one minister."

The "now admitted" is a further indication that Mr. Diefenbaker cannot have read the correspondence. For the government has admitted no such thing. In the opinion of many people, including Liberals, Mr. Gordon did follow mistaken policies. But far from conceding this, Mr. Pearson loyally praises policies which were not even mentioned in Mr. Gordon's letter of resignation.

Why did the prime minister accept? Because he had no choice. No man can be forced to remain in office against his will. Certainly there have been many cases in which a prime minister has "refused" to accept a resignation. But refusal, in these circumstances, has a conventional meaning. In effect, a prime minister is saying: "Whatever doubts you may entertain, I have confidence in you, and I wish you to remain." But if a minister is bent on leaving (as Mr. Fulton was in 1962), not even a prime minister can compel him to continue in office.

It is quite possible that the true reason for the resignation is not stated in the correspondence. Mr. Gordon may well have felt, as Mr. Fleming (also a finance minister) probably did in 1962: that he had become too controversial a figure to attract strength to the government and party. In 1962 Mr. Fleming yielded his office to the late Mr. Nowlan. If Mr. Diefenbaker had believed then what he believes now, the Conservative government should certainly have resigned because the whole government was constitutionally responsible for Mr. Fleming's policies.

In my opinion the government was wrong to call an election before redistribution (and in the absence of some compelling issue) and it was rebuked by the country. But rebukes do not always involve resignations. A government may lose a by-election in which its policies have been challenged. It rarely resigns in consequence. It may be far more severely rebuked as Mr. Diefenbaker's government was in 1962 (when about 90 seats were lost) without surrendering its responsibilities to another party.

When Mr. Diefenbaker came back in 1962 with only 116 seats, he felt that it was his duty to face Parliament. Mr. Pearson, with 131 seats, obviously feels the same way now. But the Conservative leader, having suffered a worse rejection than the prime minister, is determined that his adversary should resign and is trumpeting his willingness to form an alternative government.

It is axiomatic that the Queen's government must be carried on. Mr. Pearson can perform this duty with aid from one other group in the House. Mr. Diefenbaker could not do it without support from three.

Utter Absurdity

The advocate of One Canada and of a strong central government has in fact reduced his argument to utter absurdity. He has said that he could form a strong government only with the support of the Creditistes; the one group which has actually flirted with separatism. In combination, the Conservatives, New Democrats, Thompsonites and Independents (one of whom has promised his support to Mr. Pearson) would command only 125 votes in Parliament. With such a government, Mr. Real Caouette would hold effective power.

Mr. Diefenbaker is reported to have said that the prime minister and his entire cabinet are constitutionally required to resign in the footsteps of Mr. Gordon. He should be interested in the most recent observation of a noted authority, Dr. Eugene Forsey, who wrote in a letter to newspapers: "What is and what is not constitutional depends ultimately on what is reasonable and sensible." It is unfortunate that Mr. Diefenbaker has abandoned reason for the exhilaration of a post-election constitutional binge.

Looking Back

From The Times of Nov. 18, 1905:

(Letter to the Editor): It is proposed that the Tramway Company shall tear up the block pavement on Government Street, between Yates and Fort, in order that the city terminus of the Esquimalt car line shall be at the corner of Fort and Government.

Let the people wake up long enough to protest against this being done. Traffic is already sufficiently impeded at that point without having Esquimalt cars standing on the street.

The Penkovsky Papers—1

Soviet Affairs Expert Challenges Full Authenticity of Spy's Journal

By VICTOR ZORZA
The Manchester Guardian

The recently-published "Penkovsky Papers," reputedly the journal of master spy Col. Oleg Penkovsky who was executed by the Russians in May, 1963, are becoming increasingly controversial. The Soviet government has made official complaints in Washington and London about publication of the book on the grounds that it is a falsified document prepared by Western intelligence agents to discredit the Soviet Union. A noted expert on Soviet affairs examines the evidence, the book itself, in two articles.

LONDON — "Their authenticity," says the introduction to the "Penkovsky Papers," the memoirs of the Anglo-American spy in Russia, "is beyond question."

It is not.

Indeed, the book itself contains the evidence showing certain parts of it to be a forgery, even though other sections of the book are evidently made up of intelligence information provided by Penkovsky long before his arrest.

But the book does not, in fact, claim to be made up of Col. Oleg Penkovsky's intelligence reports to the West. On the contrary, it is said to be quite distinct from them, and to consist of "notes, sketches and comments" accumulated by him during his spying career in 1961-62 and "smuggled out of the Soviet Union" only in the autumn of 1962, at the time of his arrest.

It is said that Penkovsky hoped that they might eventually be published "to clarify his motives and to clear his name beyond question." It is curious that a work with so noble a purpose should include so much purely military and political intelligence.

Much of the book seems calculated to show the Soviet system in the worst possible light, but this would be consistent with Penkovsky's attempt to justify his defection. It is even possible to stretch this interpretation to explain he "low-down"—and it really is low—on the sexual mores, the drunkenness and cupidity of some of the people he knew in the higher ranks of the political, military and intelligence quarters.

Choice Bits

"I have absolutely no intention of defaming the marshals and generals," he says, after giving some particularly choice details.

He adds that he had "intentionally omitted the subject of moral degradation and drunkenness"—which he had not. "I know one thing for sure, though: All our generals have mistresses, and some have two or more." All? For sure?

It is conceivable that Western intelligence organizations might have been interested in the peccadilloes of members of the Soviet general staff, just as Soviet intelligence would be interested in their Western opposite numbers, and that Penkovsky thought it right to supply this information. But he would hardly write it all down for posterity.

The introduction says that the extent and ingenuity of Penkovsky's work add up perhaps to the most extraordinary intelligence feat of this century. If there is no Soviet spy now working at an even higher level in the West, then this claim may well be valid. Much of the intelligence information reproduced in the book is obviously genuine.

Western government experts have some time ago revealed their knowledge of it in the course of discussion about Soviet affairs. Penkovsky's information about the ignominious failure of Khrushchev's "secret weapon," which blew up on the launching pad, enabled the Western leaders to treat Soviet threats and boasts with composure. Penkovsky's information about Khrushchev's plans during the German crisis of 1961 enabled the West to make the dispositions which warded off the Soviet threat to Berlin.

Soviets Knew

For some months before the Cuban missile crisis, Penkovsky and his Western masters knew that he was being watched by Soviet counter-intelligence. He could therefore neither acquire nor send any intelligence on what was to prove the most fateful confrontation between East and West, and suggestions that he was asked to report on Soviet operations in Cuba just before the crisis would appear to be without foundation. Yet, paradoxically, his contribution was probably decisive.

He had sent out, earlier, details of the deployment pattern of Soviet missiles. This enabled U.S. air reconnaissance experts to identify the missile sites at an early stage of construction. The early warning made it possible for President Kennedy to make in secret the preparations that played so major a part in his later management of the crisis, and in compelling Khrushchev to withdraw.

The most important part of the information he sent out consisted of some 5,000 photographs of documents, sketches, etc., taken with a miniature camera. Yet we are asked to believe that this highly professional and valuable spy added to the great risks he was already running by keeping a detailed account of his activities and views, virtually every page of which contained enough secret information to send him straight to the firing squad.

In the foreword we are told that "throughout the period during which Penkovsky was turning over information to the West, he sat up night after night composing a journal." Yet in a passage that has the ring of truth Penkovsky himself makes it clear that this is just what he could not do. He has to write hurriedly, he says, "for the simple lack of time and space."

When he writes at night in his two-room flat he disturbs his family's sleep — "typing is very noisy." During the day he is "always busy, running like a madman," in a typically Russian phrase, between the offices of his two employers, the Committee for the Co-ordination of Scientific Research, and the Military Intelligence. headquarters.

His evenings are generally occupied—"it is part of my job." Nor can he write while visiting his friends in the country—"someone may always ask what I am doing." At home, at least, "I have a hiding place in my desk." On his own showing, he is hardly likely to have produced in these circumstances the manuscript of what is now a sizable book.

The description of his domestic circumstances comes from Penkovsky's autobiographical outline, of a kind that any intelligence service would require from a prospective spy, so that it could check his credentials before employing him.

But even the autobiography is not wholly genuine. The description of Penkovsky's own

OLEG PENKOVSKY

war service is woven into a three-page spotted history of the war in Russia. A man of Penkovsky's intelligence would not have thought it necessary to waste his time on supplying this kind of "background." A Western compiler of the Penkovsky papers, on the other hand, might have thought it useful to provide the wide readership of the book with a historical sketch that would have made Penkovsky's war career more meaningful.

However, it is not safe to sketch in the background without being familiar with the details of which it is composed. Penkovsky spent the last two years before the war in a military school and then in an artillery unit in the Ukraine, to which he was posted as a political officer.

On one occasion the unit was visited by a number of Soviet military leaders, whom Penkovsky recognized, but there was one person "whom I had never seen before." He was told later that this was "a certain N. S. Khrushchev."

Yet for the past two years Khrushchev had been the first secretary of the Ukrainian party, carrying out a ruthless and bloody purge, feared and hated by all—the virtual master of the Ukraine, the "Little Stalin," with his picture frequently displayed in public places and in the newspapers which would have been obligatory reading for an aspiring political officer.

No doubt the account of the incident was inserted into the "papers" to make them appear more authentic, but the result, as happens so often when enthusiasm outruns good judgment, is the opposite of what was intended.

There is much tedious repetition which is hardly acoounted for by the explanation that the papers are arranged "with little attempt at order and none at literary style." That this is so is painfully obvious, but it still does not explain why the book should contain several acounts of Khrushchev's intended strategy for the Berlin confrontation, all more or less the same, and two of them separated by only one page—a curious waste of time and space by one so short of both.

Wasted Time

Nor can these be the written reports sent out by Penkovsky at the time, re-edited, and put together in a book. He was clearly much too intelligent and efficient a spy to waste his efforts on writing down laboriously, in minute detail, and repetitively, the views, impressions and facts which would have sufficed in much shorter outline.

Yet sometimes the book arouses the reader's curiosity, only to frustrate it with lack of detail. The introduction makes for Penkovsky the claim that among the "thousands of pieces of information" swept up by him was "the exact planned dimensions of the Berlin wall."

If true this is very important, for it may cause trouble between Washington and London on the one hand, and Berlin on the other—something that the compilers of the book can hardly have intended. It has always been assumed that the slow and fumbling nature of the Western response to the wall was due in large measure to the lack of any warning. Even so, the West German government has not wholly forgiven its Allies for the indecision they displayed at that time.

In London

But had Penkovsky told them? In the text, he is made to say that "I learned about the Berlin wall four days before the Soviet government actually closed it off." Yet the account of his travels given in the book, and the record of his trial, make it clear that "four days before" that date Penkovsky was still in London, on one of those extended duty trips during which he took time off from shepherding Soviet delegations —the official reasons for his visits to the West — to spend long hours with the special Anglo-American team of four intelligence officers who used every available minute to milk him of any information he might have.

In the extremely unlikely event that he had learned about the Berlin wall while still in London, would he have gone back to Moscow and reported later to his masters that he had known about the wall four days in advance?

Why would he do that — to show them after the event how well-informed he was? Or, if the book is a genuine collection of notes he kept in Moscow, would he simply have made a bald statement of fact like that, almost conversationally, and then gone on with his discussion of Khrushchev's tactics on Berlin?

Neither explanation seems credible, and no other offers itself. The only logical answer is that the words attributed to Penkovsky were written by someone else—unless this was a remark he made in one of his subsequent conversations with a member of the Anglo-American team, who took it down, filed it, and it was then seen and used by the compiler of the "papers."

Indeed, the style of the memoirs is often verbose, almost conversational—the very opposite of what one would expect from a man writing in Penkovsky's difficult circumstances.

This, however, does not mean that the book as a whole may be regarded as a genuine edited transcript of Penkovsky's conversations with Western intelligence officers. There are many other passages, and sometimes whole sections, which betray the alien hand—or tongue.

(Next: Existence of Russian text questioned; terms don't sound like Penkovsky would use.)

Man-Made Hazards Take Heavy Toll of Birdlife

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

One might think that birds that frequent fields, prairie land and other open areas have fewer man-made hazards to contend with than do their city cousins with their panes of glass, wire fences and buildings. They too have their collision problems but with other types of structures such as overhead wires, towers and moving vehicles.

Dr. Carl

Power and communication lines looping across country are real threats to birds especially when they transect natural fly-ways such as between ridges or open areas between trees. Resident birds soon learn to avoid these obstructions but new-comers are more likely to injure themselves, sometimes fatally, by flying into such wires. Even though birds in general have good eyesight and excellent reflexes they sometimes make mistakes under these conditions.

Heavier lines carrying high voltage electricity present no particular hazard to small birds; they are usually conspicuous enough to be quite obvious and therefore they are easily avoided. In fact at times such wires provide convenient perches so it is not uncommon to see great numbers of swallows and other flocking birds using them as temporary roosts.

Such lines on the other hand are dangerous to large birds because of the electric charge they carry. If a bird should happen to make simultaneous contact with two of the wires or with an insulated wire and a grounded tower it will be electrocuted. This may happen to herons, ospreys, eagles and other large perching birds accidentally brushing adjacent wires with a wing tip while coming in for a landing or in the act of taking off.

It has also happened to geese and swans which have blundered into such wires while flying through fog. A few weeks ago even one of the rare whooping cranes was apparently killed by contact with power lines while on its flight to wintering grounds to the south.

Sometimes such accidents receive wide publicity because even this momentary short in the system will cause a power interruption which under some circumstances can be quite serious.

The towers which support power lines may themselves account for deaths among birds but far greater hazards are those used in radio and television transmission. For some not understood reason these structures take a heavy toll of birds particularly if they happen to be located on the migration routes.

Many hundreds of birds may be killed during a single night by collision with some of these towers. Why, no one has been able to explain as yet. It has been suggested that the energy waves being broadcast by the towers have in some way upset the birds' sense of direction or have acted like a magnet but no proof of these theories has been forthcoming.

Vehicular traffic on modern highways is another type of man-made hazard that helps cut down the number of birds and of course other types of wildlife, too. Direct collision accounts for an unknown number of casualties each season. Low-flying birds crossing a road do not always see on oncoming car in time to avoid being hit or they simply misjudge the speed of the vehicle. This is not surprising when one considers the rate at which present-day vehicles travel and the split-second timing necessary to prevent accidents. The wonder is that there are not more casualties among birds along our highways.

Bird deaths are conspicuously increased in winter in some areas where seed-eaters frequent the roadsides in search of grit for their digestive machinery. Under such conditions small flocks of songbirds may be wiped out by a single fast-moving car if the birds delay take-off a fraction of a second too long or if they rise into the path of a vehicle as they may do when the wind is moving in the same direction.

It seems clear that while man has created favorable conditions for many kinds of birds he has at the same time introduced a number of hazards that tend to undo much of the good.

ARABS SQUEEZE PEKING

By PATRICK SEALE

BEIRUT — Once or twice a week, a Chinese diplomat from Peking's embassy in Damascus, Syria, may be seen driving across the mountain frontier into Lebanon, down to the palmy, affluent capital of Beirut on the Mediterranean coast.

Those taking a close interest in the Chinese envoy's movements — and they include the vigilant Lebanese security officers, as well as the U.S., Russian and Indian embassies—share the view that his aims are to probe the strongly-entrenched positions of Nationalist China in Lebanon.

Beirut is a great centre for financial dealings, for news, for world airlines, for free trade of all sorts. It is Peking's long-nursed ambition to secure recognition from Lebanon and oust Taipeh from this highly-prized base for operations throughout the Middle East.

Listening Post

While Cairo remains Peking's headquarters for the Maghreb — the Arab "West," i.e. North Africa—she has to make do with Damascus for her activities in the Mishrik (the Arab "East"). Beirut, a listening post for the Middle East, and a unique springboard giving access to the Arab hinterland, would be infinitely more suitable.

How close is China to achieving these objectives? And is she doing better in the Arab world this year than in Africa and the Far East, where her record has been marked by setbacks and disappointments? The short answer is that here, too, in the Middle East, barriers have gone up against Chinese penetration and that, in spite of persistent efforts, her gains have been slender.

New Reserve

If nothing succeeds like success, failure is also catching. The destruction of the pro-Peking Indonesian Communist Party by nationalist-minded Muslims; the closing of doors against China across the length and breadth of Africa; the apparent lack of substance in the much-vaunted Pakistan-Chinese relationship as revealed during the recent Indo-Pakistani war; China's virtual isolation within the Afro-Asian community — all these international factors have inevitably influenced Arab attitudes towards China, causing growing reserve.

Along the North African coast, Peking enjoys diplomatic relations with Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco, while Taipeh is represented only in Libya, where a team of Nationalist Chinese doctors run three hospitals. But in the Arab world farther east, the balance is more even; Peking is present in Syria, Iraq, the United Arab Republic and the Sudan, while Taipeh holds Lebanon, Jordan, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

Anti-Israel

In seeking to woo the Arabs, Peking has embraced the cause of the Palestine Arabs against the State of Israel. An office of the Palestine Liberation Organization has opened in Peking. But few sober Arabs expect any really effective aid in money, men or materials from this source.

In Lebanon, the campaign for Communist China is championed by Mr. Kamal Jumblat, the fiery leader of the small Progressive Socialist Party, who last January was invited to Peking with five other Lebanese members of parliament. They were followed by journalists, religious leaders and university-professors.

But the campaign has made little headway in this militantly free-trading country, where government is in the hands of the rich and where the general orientation is strikingly towards the west.

In Syria, the ruling Baath party, which seemed at one point to be siding with Peking on international questions, is now at pains to strike a balance between Russia and China.

No Influence

In Yemen, a Communist Chinese road maintenance team is still at work on the Chinese-built road linking the capital Sanaa to the Red Sea port of Hudeida. But Chinese political influence in Yemen can be wholly discounted.

In Egypt, President Nasser has made it clear that he prefers Russia—one of his main benefactors—to China, which can give him little help.

In Iraq, President Arif is, however, taking repressive measures against Communists of all complexions.

In Iran, Turkey, Jordan or Saudi Arabia, China has had no visible success in even getting on speaking terms.

Faced with this unpromising outcome, what will be Peking's next move? It is widely supposed that her recent worldwide setbacks must force her to rethink the strategy of her foreign policy—if not its fundamental aims.

Cabinet Choices Inhibited By Anachronistic Ideas

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Reorganization of the federal cabinet will follow logically upon the election, for at very least the two ministers defeated on Nov. 8 and the one who resigned Nov. 11 must be replaced. And due to the rigid code governing cabinet construction, Prime Minister Pearson is laboring under great difficulties.

Waring

It was a sign of the administration's weakness that Mr. Pearson did not reshuffle his cabinet prior to the election, sending cabinet liabilities to pasture in the Senate or elsewhere, and replacing them with newcomers to rejuvenate the cabinet's image.

Indeed, Mr. Pearson was so short of sound cabinet timber that he had to persuade two ministers not to retire—one a veteran who wanted to go to the bench, and the other a minister who was simply fed up, and wanted to return to the law. It was an achievement by Mr. Pearson, although hardly one he could make public, that he was able to hold his cabinet together for the election. And somewhat ironic, in light of Finance Minister Gordon's resignation after the election.

In more usual circumstances a prime minister would consider finding another seat for his defeated agriculture minister, as by having some prairie Liberal with a "safe" seat resign to go to the Senate. But since there are no prairie Liberal MPs in the new House, except Veterans Minister Roger Teillet in St. Boniface Man., this solution is out

Similarly with the defeated mines minister, Watson MacNaught. There are no Liberal seats left in Prince Edward Island, even if Mr. Pearson desperately wanted to keep Mr. MacNaught and Mr. MacNaught desperately wanted to stay, neither of which is the case.

It's no help that both men could remain ministers if Mr. Pearson appointed them to the Senate. The practice of naming senators to head administrative departments, while constitutionally permissible, is passe. The opposition would denounce its resurrection as a cynical effort to frustrate the will of the people.

If I were Mr. Pearson in these circumstances, I would take a long hard look at some of the other conventions of cabinet construction to see if they, like senatorial ministers, are anachronisms or anomalies in this 98th year of Confederation.

Regional representation and Quebec representation are principles that cannot be discarded. But how do you give representation to provinces that refuse to elect Liberals?

One way would be to construct a new kind of ministry, filling cabinet posts with the best men available, irrespective of geography, and balancing out regional representation by the appointment of assistant ministers who could be appointed from either Commons or the Senate. They might be called ministers of state, as in Britain, and would be members of the ministry but not of the cabinet.

It surely is an anachronism that one cabinet minister must be an English-speaking Catholic, that another must come from eastern Ontario, that a third must be a French-Canadian from outside Quebec, and that the agriculture minister must be from the prairies. These sacred cows reflect representational functions that could well be relegated to ministers of state in either House of Parliament.

The country needs to make maximum use of the best brains in Parliament. It can no longer afford to pass up good men because they don't fit into the rigid framework of area and interest representation—or to put dough-heads into positions of power merely because they do.

Osler Dictum on Age Recalled

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — At what age should men quit work?

Most pension programs set the retirement figure at 65. But one of the most beloved physicians in history once launched a lively controversy by advocating that men should cease their labors at 60, whether they wanted to or not.

He was Canadian doctor Sir William Osler, a great teacher and medical scholar, who once remarked, "The desire to take medicine is perhaps the greatest feature which distinguishes man from animals."

The controversy he began is recalled in a recent issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Sir William, as eloquent with words as with the scalpel, was an incredibly hard worker himself. In one year he performed 100 autopsies while carrying on his teaching duties.

A great believer in the productivity of youth, Sir William got himself in hot water when, in 1905 at the age of 56, he made a farewell address at Johns Hopkins University before departing to take a professorship at Oxford.

Discussing his "two fixed ideas," he said in part:

"The effective, moving, vitalizing work of the world is done between the ages of 25 and 40.

"My second fixed idea is the uselessness of man above 60 years of age, and the incalculable benefit it would be in commercial, political and in professional life if, as a matter of course, men stopped work at this age."

Then, in humorous vein, he mentioned a novel by Anthony Trollope, The Fixed Period. Its plot hinged around a college where, at 60, men retired for a year of final contemplation "before a peaceful departure by chloroform."

"Whether Anthony Trollope's suggestions of a college and chloroform should be carried out or not I have become a little dubious," said Osler lightly, "as my own time is getting so short."

A garbled account of the speech went around the world implying that the great physician himself had advocated euthanasia for all men at 60.

Astounded and saddened, he immediately issued a statement pointing out he never had said men should be chloroformed at 60. But the storm of criticism continued for some time anyway. Cartoonists and comic poets had a field day with the idea.

Like many physicians, Sir William didn't follow his own prescription to the letter. He did retire from active teaching at 62, but he continued as busily as ever at his historical studies.

He died of pneumonia at 70 in 1919, still full of plans for more work.

What are the men of London talking about these days?

Gold Keg Beer is impressing the world's best beer drinkers.

Gold Keg.

England has many Canadian souvenirs: totem poles, Eskimo carvings, polar bear cubs and so forth.

But many Englishmen claim that the best thing Canada ever sent over is Gold Keg Beer.

Gold Keg seems to strike the Englishman's fancy.

They like its flavour (a mellow, rare flavour). They like its colour (a warm, amber colour). They like its bouquet (the kind of bouquet all beers should have).

They say it's as good as Bass, Worthington's or any other fine British brew.

During Operation Gold Keg we're learning, happily, that Englishmen are as taken with Gold Keg as Canadians are.

Of course, our brewmaster predicted this.

FOUR MEN ACQUITTED ON DAM NEGLIGENCE

DRAGUIGAN, France (Reuters) — Four men charged with serious negligence in the 1959 Frejus dam collapse which killed 400 persons were acquitted here Wednesday.

They were Leon Nourrit, engineer for the local authority; Jean Bellier, associate and son-in-law of the builder of the dam; Raymond Martin, former manager for the surveyors, and Jean Kaufman, a director of the survey company. The builder, Andre Coyne, died five years ago.

Survivors of the disaster charged that it was caused by a crack in the dam that was not repaired properly.

The court ruled they had failed to prove alleged faults in the administration or maintenance of the dam.

Esquimalt Equipment Serves at Both Poles

Esquimalt's Pacific Naval Laboratory will soon be represented at both ends of the earth.

Geophysical equipment made by the laboratory, used in several expeditions to Canada's Arctic, will soon be installed in the Antarctic.

Pioneer explorer and staff member of the PNL Sir Charles Wright, left Victoria Oct. 23 for Antarctica.

With him he took an ultra-sensitive magnet ice tape recorder designed to measure small disturbances in the earth's magnetic field.

Sir Charles, 78, who divides his time between the PNL and a lectureship at UBC, has been investigating natural electromagnetic fields at the Esquimalt lab for the past two years. He collaborated with the engineers who designed the equipment he is taking with him.

Sir Charles has journeyed before to the Antarctic. He was part of the ill-destined Scott expedition of 1912. He was in the search party that found the bodies of Capt. Scott and his companions.

Agricultural Challenges Meeting Topic

Public meetings will be held in January to stimulate interest in long and short-term agricultural problems and challenges, Agriculture Minister Frank Richter announced Wednesday.

They will be held at Prince George Jan. 5 and 6, Penticton Jan. 10 and 11, and Vancouver Jan. 13 and 14.

Representatives of provincial and federal government departments, farm organiaztions, universities, professional groups, agriculture-oriented firms as well as individuals will attend.

Three main subjects for discussion will be agricultural development possibilities anticipated for the 1975-85 decade; present market factors; and the outlook for technological and scientific advances in food production.

PAVING CAME LATE

Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue was not paved until 1876, when sheets of solid asphalt were imported from Trinidad for the purpose.

STARTED IN HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Bloodshed, Arrests Ended General Strike in 1919

Memories of a general strike 46 years ago are being recalled in the face of a mass walkout of B.C. workers next week.

While the general strike planned for Thursday and Friday next week is unprecedented on such a scale in B.C., there have been similar mass withdrawals of labor elsewhere in the past.

The best-known probably is the Winnipeg general strike of 1919, which lasted almost six weeks.

It began quietly and ended in bloodshed and arrests.

On May 15 of that year, 27,000 Winnipeg workers left their jobs during a period of postwar depression and higher living costs.

The Victoria Daily Times of that day reported the strike took place in a "very orderly manner." There was even a "general holiday spirit."

The walkout paralyzed the city except for a few essential services.

A former vice-president of the Victoria Labour Council was working a few miles from Winnipeg at the time as a lineman with a railway telegraph company.

"It was pretty hectic," recalled Charles Peck.

"Everything stopped. Nothing ran. There were some trains running but everything else stopped."

In less than two weeks, widespread walkouts had also occurred in Edmonton and Calgary.

Later, some workers in Vancouver and Victoria joined those in Winnipeg by striking.

On June 6, Brig.-Gen. H. D. B. Ketchen, local army commander, announced that "steps are being taken to deal with revolutionaries and other undesirables."

A few days later the first cracks appeared in the strike, and mounted police escorted some people to work.

On June 17, two city aldermen and a clergyman, referred to as among strike leaders, were arrested as "handlers of Bolshevik propaganda."

Four days later the Riot Act was read to a milling crowd, which overturned and wrecked a street car.

Military patrols fired into the crowd, killing one person and injuring three.

The strike was called off and everyone returned to work.

There have been at least two general strikes in the United States—in Seattle in 1919 and in San Francisco in 1934. Both petered out in a matter of days.

In the United Kingdom, perhaps the biggest general strike of all occurred in 1926. It was called by the Trades Union Congress in support of striking coal miners, whose wages had been reduced.

Workers on railways, transport, printing and paper, and engineering and building trades joined the stoppage which lasted nine days.

Like the other general strikes, it petered out—and the coal miners were left to strike on their own.

Zoning Bylaws Not Vital, Real Estate Meeting Told

Zoning by-laws could be abolished without too much detriment to a city's progress acording to a University of British Columbia professor.

Professor Philip White of the faculty of commerce and business management UBC, told the Victoria Real Estate Board Wednesday that too often too much emphasis was placed on zoning by-laws.

"There exists in every city a natural zoning law," he said. "The key to that law is that businessmen want to put land to its most profitable use. That means building where the public want a building. If it is built where the public doesn't like it, they just will not use it."

Professor White said that in cities where zoning by-laws were non-existent quite orderly development had taken place.

VARIOUS ZONES

"In those cities you will find shops in one area, offices in another and houses in another," he said. "I am not advocating the abolition of zoning by-laws, but I am saying that they could be abolished and that serious consideration should be given to the way they exist."

Professor White said that most zoning problems arose only on the boundaries of various zones.

"Development of a city is established by accessibility," he said. "It is only on the boundary of two different zones that conflict will arise — in an area where the land use is in dispute."

Professor White said it was lack of accessibility that had taken business away from most downtown areas.

TRANSPORTATION

"When public transportation was the vogue the downtown area was accessible and therefore used a great deal," he said. "But today the private car has taken over from public transportation and the outer areas of a city are more easily reached than the downtown area."

The professor said he saw little hope of the downtown area ever recovering its old status.

"We must stop terming the decline of the downtown area as good or bad," he said. "It isn't a moral issue, it is just that people have decided where they want to shop. Downtown will never be as popular as it was during the public transportation vogue."

Professor White urged the realtors to press for the extension of National Housing Loans to older type homes.

"We have many fine older type homes in this country," he said. "But it is cheaper, by virtue of the financing arrangements, to buy a new home for $18,000 than an older home for $13,000.

"I would like to see NHA financing extended to the buyers of older homes if the purchaser will agree to spend at least 25 per cent of the purchase price to rehabilitate the house."

Professor White decried the clearing of slums to cut down the crime rate in larger cities.

"I am all for slum clearance," he said. "But it has never been proven that slums breed crime and vice.

"There is the possibility that crime and vice just like slum areas and that criminals prefer to live in those surroundings. But that does not mean that low standard housing actualy breeds crime and vice."

SANITARY CODES

The professor said the simple solution to slum clearance programs would be the strict enforcement of building and sanitary codes.

"They are not enforced strictly now," he said. "Otherwise we would not have slum sections in our cities."

PM Presented Family Award

Pearson Calls for West Action To Continue Giving Assistance

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

NEW YORK—Prime Minister Pearson reassured Americans here Wednesday that his Liberal government will be in power for "some time to come."

"Let me assure you—and I have had a good deal of experience with this—that my government will continue to do all in its power to maintain and strengthen close and neighborly ties between your country and mine."

Accepting the Society for the Family of Man award, the prime minister said he had been encouraged his government had received a majority of 500,000 out of a total of 7,000,000 votes cast.

Making the presentation was David Rockerfeller, president of the Chase Manhattan Bank and chairman of the 1965 Family of Man Award committee.

Mr. Rockerfeller said: "In honoring Mr. Pearson, we honor a man, an internationalist, whose perseverance and innate diplomacy have helped prevent world wide conflagration and who is convinced that if we do not retain our moral fibre our democracies will weaken to the point of ultimate destruction.

"In following his convictions with effective action in the arena of world politics, Mr. Pearson personally projects the concept that we are all, each one of us, members of the Family of Man. We honor the man and we also honor the nation, our neighboring Canada with whom we have lived in complete harmony for a century and a half," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Addressing the glittering array of notable citizens at the black-tie $100 a plate dinner sponsored by the Protestant council for the City of New York Mr. Pearson emphasized that Canadians had no desire to lose their national identity through a continental amalgamation of the two countries.

New Members May Overplay Part

Also, he warned that the United Nations faces as much danger from impatient new members as from obstinate old members.

He said the UN could become impotent if newer members overplay their part.

But he would personally be surprised if these new members which "recently emerged from subservient status ceased to realize how vitally important to them is the United Nations."

Pearson' urged the affluent Western nations not to let up in their assistance to less fortunate peoples.

"Today, the great danger facing all of us is that, in our relative ease and affluence, we of the West are becoming bored.

"After two decades of economic assistance there is a "weariness with well-doing . . . So we lapse into the complacency of the comfortable.

"But to withdraw our concern and slacken our effort on behalf of the whole family of man just because now the 'going is tough' would be both a political mistake and a human betrayal."

The prime minister had some fun with last week's power failure, triggered in Ontario, which darkened the entire city of New York.

"You must forgive us if we sometimes take an opportunity to show our power," he said. "We don't get many opportunities."

Urge Canada To Protect Fight Rights

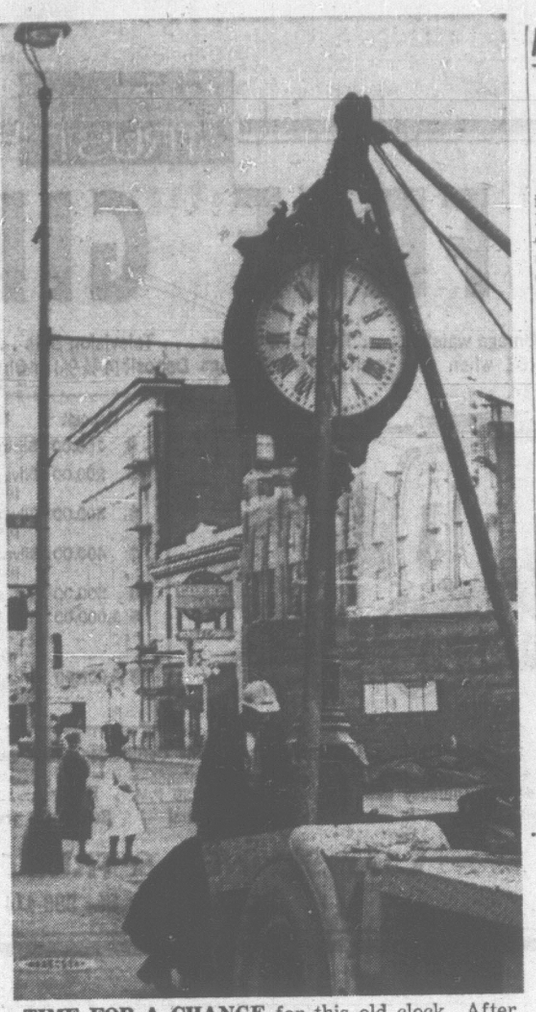

OTTAWA (CP) — The Fisheries Council of Canada Tuesday called on the federal government to take quick action to put new coastal fishing limits into effect to guard the country's fishing resources for Canadians.

The council told External Affairs Minister Martin and Fisheries Minister Robichaud it is concerned at the increase in foreign vessels off the East Coast and the entry of the Russians into the groundfish fishery in Queen Charlotte Sound on the West Coast.

It urged the government to move as quickly as possible to establish new base lines on a headland-to-headland basis so areas such as Dixon Entrance, Hecate Strait, Queen Charlotte Sound, the Bay of Fundy, the Strait of Belle Isle and the Gulf of St. Lawrence will be enclosed as national waters.

Freighter Sued

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI)—Suits totaling $550,000 were filed in admiralty court today against a German freighter that rammed a 104-foot fishing cruise boat, killing one crewman and sending the smaller craft to the bottom.

TIME FOR A CHANGE for this old clock. After peering at the junction of Fort and Douglas for 45 years, the 1,500-pound timepiece is bound for a new location. But only three blocks away. Property of the former Kilberger Jewellers, the Pennsylvania-made clock has been bought by Wilf Craven, owner of the Clock Shop, 1037 Fort. He is having the 12-foot ticker erected on the sidewalk outside his premises.

Husband, Wife Await Pre-Sentence Report

A Vancouver couple, who have three children staying with relatives on the mainland, will spend the next week in jail in Victoria awaiting pre-sentence reports in central magistrates' court on separate charges.

George Laberdure admitted obtaining $52 worth of lodgings by fraud and his wife, Maureen, pleaded guilty to issuing a worthless cheque for groceries for $13.17.

Both offences occurred during the latter part of October when Laberdure was working here at a lumber yard.

He told the court he packed up his family and left for Vancouver owing the $52 motel bill when he was laid off from his job.

Mrs. Laberdure said she cashed the cheque for food for the children at the same time because her husband had to wait three weeks for his pay cheque.

NO PLACE FOR DO-GOODERS

Aid Program 'Insulting to Indians'

TORONTO (CP)—An enthusiastic housewife in suburban Etobicoke is determined to carry on her collection of canned food and clothing for Indians at Kenora despite protests that her campaign is misguided and insulting to the Indians.

Mrs. Brendan Whiffen started her Our Indians in Kenora Committee after hearing a report that some of the more than 4,000 Indians in that Northwestern Ontario region are forced to scavenge in garbage cans to get enough to eat.

E. R. McEwen, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association, critical of her campaign, said here Wednesday:

"There is no place for the do-gooder in work with Indians today. The greatest contribution the ordinary citizen can make is to study the Indians and demonstrate his acceptance of them. There is a feeling that the Indian is something less than human."

Mrs. Whiffen already has sent off two 150-pound boxes, to be distributed by welfare officials in Kenora, and she insists she will keep on collecting from neighbors and sending their offerings to the northern community.

She overrode welfare officials —when they suggested Indian recipients could retain some self-respect by paying a nominal charge for the items—by insisting that those most in need of food and clothing cannot pay for it.

Mr. McEwen said sending food and clothing will not stop Indians from going through garbage cans. He said those who do so are too timid to use welfare agencies.

"Indians are fed up with charity of this nature. What they really need is an opportunity for better education and acceptance on an equal basis with non-Indians in the community."

Regular welfare agencies in the area should be dealing with the situation, he said, and if these services are not adequate citizens could put pressure on governments to make them adequate.

Howard Staats, a law student from the Six Nations reserve near Brantford now studying in Toronto, suggested Mrs. Whiffen's handout program could help relieve non-indians in Kenora of responsibility for the unemployed there.

"It's the town's problem, but they are closing their eyes to it completely," Mr. Staats said. "The town council passes the buck to the Salvation Army and the Friendship Centre run by a church group, and if they can pass it to do-gooders in Toronto they'll do that, too."

Mr. Staats spent last weekend at a conference in Kenora and found unemployment severe for both Indians and non-Indians, with only 10 of more than 4,000 Indians in the area permanently employed.

U.S. Farmers Urge Grain Sale to Reds

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The National Grange has called for elimination of U.S. shipping restrictions on grain sold to the Soviet Union and other "East bloc" countries.

At the same time Wednesday night, the Grange said it would support development of a modern, competitive American bulk carrier fleet capable of delivering agricultural commodities to purchasers at low cost.

MARTIN EXPLAINS STAND IN UN

Canada Could Not Agree To Peking's Conditions

Chinese Pleased By Vote

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese Kyodo news service reported from Peking today that China considers its international influence heightened by the voting in the United Nations on the China issue.

While the assembly in New York again refused a seat to the Peking government, Kyodo said Communist China officials paid more attention to what they deemed an increase in the number of anti-U.S. nations.

The Peking radio made no immediate mention of the vote. In Taipei, Formosa, the Chinese Nationalist foreign office said the vote reaffirmed "the rightful position of the Republic of China in the UN."

A correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Asahi reported from Peking that Communist China had "no illusion" about the outcome of the voting, though it was keenly watching it.

The mass - circulated Japanese newspaper Yomiuri said the UN vote was no doubt a shock to the Japanese government.

"The vote means the number of pro-Peking nations has rapidly increased in the world body calling on the assembly to admit the Chinese Communists and expel the Chinese Nationalists," Yomiuri said. Japan opposes the expulsion of Nationalist China.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada voted to keep Communist China out of the United Nations "because Peking itself has set a price on participation which is unacceptable," External Affairs Minister Paul Martin said Wednesday.

The General Assembly Wednesday defeated Red China's 15th bid to join the UN by a 47-47 tie vote, with 20 abstentions. The Peking regime needed a two-thirds majority to gain a seat.

Martin listed Peking's demands that the UN kick out Nationalist China and revise its own charter as prime reasons why Canada voted against Red China's admittance.

"It is not for the United Nations to accommodate itself to the views of a single nation, however powerful and populous. It is for Communist China to make that accommodation," he said in a prepared statement which outlined Canada's position.

Although Canada supports the principle of universality in the UN, it could not under present circumstances support Red China's bid.

But, Martin added, this country, which last month sold $200 million worth of Canadian wheat to Communist China would continue to encourage contact between the two countries.

The expulsion of Nationalist China, a founding member of the UN, as a condition for the entrance of Red China could not be accepted by the Canadian government, he said.

Nor could Canada support Red China's demand that the UN rescind its resolution condemning Communist China as aggressor in the Korean war "where Canadians fought and died to defeat aggression."

ANASTASIA CLAIMANT ALLEGED TO BE FRAUD

HAMBURG (UPI)—A woman who has fought for decades for recognition as Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia was branded a fraud today by her landlady of 40 years ago.

But 64-year-old Anna Anderson was not in court to hear Doris Rittmann testify she is not Anastasia but merely Franziska Schanzkowski, a Polish peasant girl.

Miss Anderson never comes to the court hearings on her 30-year-old claim. She remains in her villa in the Black Forest, with only two fierce dogs for company.

Firms Ask Bastion Walk-In Plan

Three downtown firms have written Victoria city council pleading for aldermen to stick to plans for a walk-in entrance to Bastion Square off Government.

The response from Standard Furniture, 737 Yates; W. and J. Wilson, 1221 Government, and T. Eaton Co., 1100 block Government, follows a bid by Humber's furniture in Bastion Square to have traffic continued on Bastion Street.

Bruce Humber, backed by Bank of Montreal branch manager, George Maycock, and another Bastion Square businessman, Cliff Clark, owner of the Coach and Four Restaurant, said closing the block between Government and Langley will have an adverse effect on business in the area.

It is argued by the opponents of the street closing plan that a survey showed that 771 cars used the block entering the square on a quiet Tuesday, and that parking meters in the block were utilized by large numbers of motorists daily.

Aldermen are awaiting an engineer's report on whether vehicle and pedestrian use of the street can be worked out.

Eaton's agreed with consulting engineer Joseph Cunliffe, who told the square committee last week that vehicles in the street would seriously impair it as a pedestrian entranceway to redeveloped Bastion Square.

There should be no interruption in original planning, Standard said, and Wilson's said they are concerned that basic planning may be changed.

Tenders for Bastion Square contracts were to be opeend at a special council meeting today.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

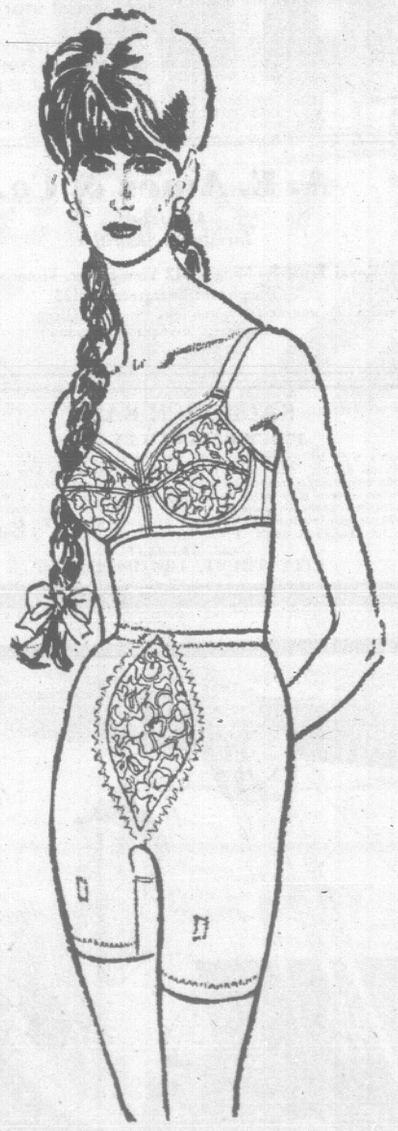

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

"The Young Thing"*
by Warners

Not big enough for a girdle? "Young Thing" is just a little bit more than something to hang your stockings on . . . just a mere slip of nylon and uncovered Lycra spandex that feels like nothing on, with a lacy little panel-thing in the front, a tiny tear-drop flattener in back. It's really not much.

Take a lifetime holiday from dishes

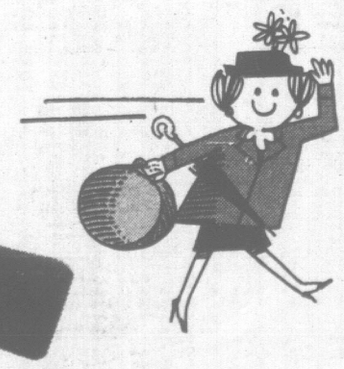

HOLIDAY FROM DRUDGERY
An automatic dishwasher can save you about 225 hours of monotonous work each year – for a lifetime. That's almost ten extra holidays a year for important things. Like your family. Or your guests.

HOLIDAY FROM GERMS
Dishes turn out sparkling clean – hygienically clean – because an automatic dishwasher washes them thoroughly in water that's much hotter than your hands could ever stand. No drying needed, either, so they stay clean.

HOLIDAY FROM RED HANDS
With a dishwasher, you seldom touch dirty dish-water or harsh detergents. (The new models clean pots and pans too!) So your hands stay smooth and youthful looking. Pretty soft touch, eh?

SPECIAL "LIFETIME HOLIDAY" OFFERS!
Your appliance dealer is now featuring attractive offers on new built-in and portable automatic dishwashers. See him today for details and a free demonstration. There'll never be a better time to start your Lifetime Holiday from dishes!

NIP PRICE CLIMB, EASE SHORTAGE

U.S. Gov't to Release 200,000 Tons of Copper

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government plans to release at least 200,000 tons of copper from its stockpile. It says the aim is to nip the climb of copper prices and ease a world shortage of the metal.

Defence Secretary McNamara announced the decision Wednesday night, saying the world copper situation threatens a disruption which could lead to strong inflationary developments.

The announcement came one week after government proposals to unload 300,000 pounds of aluminum had forced reversal of a price rise in the aluminum industry. The tumult ended when both sides agreed on a long-range program for sale of 1,400,000 tons of surplus aluminum.

There was no immediate comment from major copper companies as to whether they would follow the aluminum pattern and cut prices.

Most U.S. copper producers increased their prices two cents a pound—to 38 cents—during the early stages of the aluminum controversy. Only Kennecott Copper Corp. held firm at the lower level. McNamara said speculative market prices in London and New York have been running between 67 and 70 cents a pound.

McNamara said the release of stockpiled copper plus three other actions affecting the metal had been discussed with leading U.S. copper firms. He declined to reveal which companies, but said: "I think they will fully support this action. . . ."

The other government decisions:

1. To control exports of copper and copper scrap "for an indefinite period to conserve domestic supply."

2. To ask Congress to suspend the 1.7-cent-a-pound import duty on copper, a protection McNamara said domestic producers don't need. The Western world used 5,300,000 tons of refined copper last year, but produced 4,400,000 tons. The rest was made from scrap.

3. To ask the New York Commodity Exchange to curb excessive speculation in copper trading by raising margin requirements for copper. He said the current margin is about 10 per cent compared with approximately 70 per cent for securities traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

McNamara said the government copper would be sold at between 36 and 38 cents a pound, as much as 34 cents below prices current on the speculative markets in London and New York.

'DEMAND WILL INCREASE'

The government's copper stockpile now totals 810,000 tons, only 35,000 tons above the amount considered necessary as a reserve in case of war.

McNamara said the government uses about 250,000 tons of copper a year, and that defence requirements will go up 100 per cent in 1966 compared with this year. He did not specify how much of the government's use is for defence.

Big Increase Seen In B.C. Power Needs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Within five years industrial plants in British Columbia will consume 40.5 per cent of all the electricity produced in the province, B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has forecast.

Industy now consumes 30.6 per cent of electrical energy generated in B.C.

The forecast was contained in a report prepared by the government-owned authority. It indicated more generators will have to be installed sooner at the Peace River project to prevent power shortages and "brown-outs" as consumption increases.

Consumption will increase 10.2 per cent a year from the present 7,400,000,000 to 13,300,000,000 kilowatt hours by 1970-1971.

Fastest growth rate will be in the central and southern Interior. The Vancouver area, a major consumer of power, will experience the lowest growth rate, said the report.

The forecast said Prince Rupert would experience the greatest consumption increase — as much as 50 per cent every year. The Prince George-Quesnel area will increase 33.8 per cent a year, the Columbia Valley 28 per cent, Valemount 22.6 and Vancouver and Vancouver Island 7.9 and 8.6 per cent respectively.

AGAINST OWNER OF YARMOUTH CASTLE

$3.25 Million Sought in Two Suits

MIAMI (UPI) — Two court suits seeking a total of $3.25 million in damages from the owners of the ship Yarmouth Castle charged today there were failings of equipment and crew when the cruise liner burned and sank off the Florida coast with a loss of 88 lives.

The suits were filed Wednesday by survivors of the Saturday disaster, one of them critically burned in a Miami hospital, as the coast guard sought to convene a board of inquiry to formally investigate the sinking.

One suit for $2.25 million was filed in the State Supreme Court of New York by Harry Ebner of New York City on behalf of himself and his wife, Sylvana, listed among the missing passengers.

Anne Martin Jackson, 22, critically burned in the fire and a patient in Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital, filed the other suit for $1 million. Her mother, Louise Jackson of Vero Beach, Fla., was a victim of the disaster.

Both suits allege the Yarmouth Castle had inadequate fire fighting and life-saving equipment and that the crew lacked the experience and efficiency necessary for dealing with the shipboard fire.

Miss Jackson's suit charged that the officers and crewmen of the liner were "wholly inadequate" to operate the vessel safely.

The suit also charges the owners with registering the ship under a "flag of convenience" in order to escape U.S. safety regulations. The Yarmouth Castle was of Panamanian registry, owned by the Chadade Steamship Co. of Panama.

New Moderator

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—Rev. James MacIntosh, former Canadian Army chaplain now director of a boys' school in Lima, Peru, will be the Free Church of Scotland's next moderator, it was announced Tuesday. The church's Commission of Assembly, meeting here, announced Rev. MacIntosh would succeed Rev. J. W. Fraser next May.

Hays Granted Recount

CALGARY (CP) — District Court Judge E. B. Feir Wednesday granted an application for a judicial recount of ballots cast in Calgary South riding in the Nov. 8 election. Balloting in the riding gave Conservative Ray Ballard a margin of 889 votes over Liberal Agriculture Minister Harry Hays. The margin was later trimmed to 158 votes when the armed services vote and official counts were in.

Canadian Owns Ship

TORONTO (CP)—Jules Sokoloff, identified Wednesday by the United States maritime administration as Canadian owner of the disaster ship Yarmouth Castle, once operated an appliance store here.

A relative said Mr. Sokoloff commutes regularly between New York, Nassau, Miami and his home here in central Forrest Hill Village.

The maritime administration said the Yarmouth Castle, which sank Saturday off the Bahamas, is owned by Chadade Steamship Co. of Panama. The company's owner is listed as Commander Investments Inc. of the Bahamas. Mr. Sokoloff owns Commander Investments.

BIG NIGHT is Saturday for Stewart J. Churlish, 17, of 1924 Newton, when he will be installed as master councillor of Oak Bay Chapter, Order of DeMolay. Ceremony will be held in Willows School, starting at 7:30 p.m. Other officers to be installed are John Rose, senior councillor; Bruce Midlane, junior councillor, and chapter sweetheart is Sandra Gallagher.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Fishermen's Union has called general meetings for herring fishermen here and at other coastal points Friday to discuss negotiations with the Fisheries Association.

Voucher Figures Altered, RCMP Expert Tells Court

No person writes his signature the same way twice.

"If we find two signatures exactly alike, we suspect one has been traced from the other," an RCMP handwriting expert testified in Victoria County Court Wednesday afternoon.

Staff Sgt. Donald N. Brown was giving evidence at the trial of Lieut. Eric Haywood, 2150 Allenby, and Charles Whyte, Sidney, charged with obtaining photographic equipment from local firms at the expense of the Royal Canadian Navy.

"Close examination of a tracing will show a lack of natural rhythm in the signature," witness said.

He identified the signatures of Lieut. Haywood and Mr. Whyte on a number of vouchers said to have been obtained from HCMS Naden for the purchase of photographic material.

Under microscopic examination, some of the figures on these vouchers had been altered by writing one digit over another, Staff Sgt. Brown told the court.

He found the signatures were authentic, although they varied one from the other.

"This is not abnormal," he added. "Handwriting varies according to the physical and mental condition of the writer at the time. But it retains basic characteristics — and some of these are unconscious characteristics."

The staff sergeant was questioned by Crown prosecutor Kenneth Murphy and defence Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre concerning words which had been printed on the vouchers.

"Hand printing is more difficulty to detect than handwriting," he said, "but it still has characteristics which may be recognized."

Examining a voucher signed "Lieut. Haywood," Judge Montague Drake said he noticed a difference between the letter A as it was printed in the word Victoria and the A in Haywood.

Staff Sgt. Brown said he had noted that Lieut. Haywood printed the letter A in two different ways at different times.

The witness said he had worked as a handwriting expert for the RCMP in many different provinces of Canada. He had passed examinations laid down by the RCMP and was an elected member of the Canadian Society of Forensic Science.

Lieut. Haywood and Mr. Whyte are charged with four acts of fraud and one of theft between March 7, 1963, and Oct. 13, 1964.

Lieut. Haywood was in charge of photographic supplies at HMCS Naden during that time.

Two of the charges allege that the Navy paid sums of $294 and $139 to Victoria Photo Supply Ltd. for a still camera and a movie camera which the defendants obtained for their own use.

The men are also charged with defrauding the Navy of $43 paid to Victoria Photo Supply for "fictitious" repairs to a Graflex camera, and with stealing seven boxes of photographic paper worth more than $50.

They are further charged with defrauding the Navy of $75 in a transaction with E. A. Morris Ltd. for the purchase of an enlarger.

The prosecution claim they operated an "intricate system" by which they benefited themselves at the expense of the Navy.

Mr. Jorre de St. Jorre is defending Lieut. Haywood; W. E. Whitley is defending Mr. Whyte.

The trial continues today and is expected to last all week.

Join OAS, Argentina Asks Canada

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) Argentina has called on Canada Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago to join the U.S. and 18 Latin American nations in the Organization of American States.

Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Zavala Ortiz said Wednesday night at the opening of the OAS foreign ministers conference: ". . . One must recognize that America is not only Latin, and that all America should be in the organization."

The three Commonwealth countries, he said, would bring to the OAS their traditional desires for peace and their efforts for regional welfare.

Brazil's President Humberto Castello Branco, opening the conference, urged American countries to adapt themselves to what he called "new realities," including guerrilla and psychological warfare.

He called for the creation of effective machinery for joint inter-American decisions and action, and for concrete steps towards Latin-American economic integration.

WOMAN WINS 'CRUELTY' DIVORCE

Smothered With Kindness

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A 60-year-old Oakland wife has won a divorce on grounds her husband was smothering her with kindness.

Mrs. Leona P. Jeske testified she suffered serious mental anguish because her husband Carl, 68, whom she married less than two years ago, never let her make morning coffee, insisted on doing the cooking, and always washed the dishes.

Whenever she baked a cake, Mrs. Jeske complained, her husband insisted on taking it out of the oven so she wouldn't get burned.

"He certainly was attentive, but he treated me like a child," she told Superior Judge Lyle E. Cook, who granted her the uncontested divorce.

"This is one of the strangest forms of mental cruelty I've ever come across," the judge commented. "Some men just can't win.

MEDICAL SENSATION

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) —An African mother of 12 is recovering after causing a medical sensation—apparently giving birth to two babies in five months.

Doctors said the woman, Mrs. Nomingaye Ncikwa, 36, must have conceived the second baby four months before her other child was born. The baby was born Monday.

The condition, known as super feotation, occurs only once in every 10,000,000 births. In most cases, the second baby is stillborn.

Mrs. Ncikwa also has two sets of triplets and two sets of twins.

Rambler Classic '66
the one car for the one-car family!

Classic—770 2-Door Hardtop

"Hey, it looks great! How about things that don't show?"

The '66 Classic's quality—like every Rambler—goes deep beneath that handsome surface. You'll discover fittings and appointments that result from thoughtful craftsmanship. And the built-in features that make Rambler another word for value. Like Single Unit Construction (an all-welded body) that means no bolts and no rattles—just a solid car of solid worth! This feature and many more—add up to family-minded quality you've never experienced before!

"What do you mean by a family-minded car?"

Just this: the Rambler Classic was designed from the start for family use with lots of interior room, bags of luggage space and lots of power. What else? Economy! In maintenance, in running costs, and, above all in terms of actual price! That's what we mean by a family-minded car!

Options?

Rambler Classic's got plenty on both counts, in motors we've got 2 new 7-main-bearing, Torque Command 6's (the 6's that act like 8's), a powerful 198 h.p. V8. In options we've got more than any one man can want! A long list of 72 (yes, seventy-two) with everything from complete power equipment (steering, brakes, windows) to reclining bucket seats. You'll have no trouble dressing up your Rambler Classic to suit your own particular needs.

"I'm sold...you're the one car maker that talks my language!"

BASTION GROUP ON TOUR

Experts at Unpacking

With two weeks of touring chalked up, and one to go, Bastion's touring company headed up-Island this week taking scenes from Shakespeare to Nanaimo, Alberni, Chemainus, Qualicum Beach and Courtenay schools.

Thousands of young people have seen Bastion's all-new fall '65 program, which includes excerpts in modern dress from "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet," and songs by Don McManus.

The company also played at HMCS Naden, to members of the Branch Officers' Training Course, and junior and senior matriculation students.

The four touring actors and actresses Jennifer Chaster, Barbara Dunn, Lawrence Eastick and Don McManus, and stage manager Paul Smitz, travel with a truck containing set and costumes; they now have unloading, setting up their portable stage, and reloading, down to a fine art.

Costume changes for each of the excerpts (the full program consists of scenes from "As You Like It," "Macbeth," "Julius Caesar," "Henry the Fifth" and "Romeo and Juliet") are made behind a screen which also serves as backdrop for the stage levels.

GAY PARTY AT WHITE HOUSE

Margaret Whirls With LBJ

WASHINGTON (CP) — Princess Margaret dined and danced Wednesday night at a candlelit White House party, fox-trotting with a briskly-convalescent President Johnson, in the official climax of her four-day visit to the capital.

After another round of sightseeing today, the princess and the Earl of Snowdon leave for New York and the last leg of a three-week American trip.

The gay festivities also marking the Johnsons' 31st wedding anniversary, went on until 2 a.m. and the frug and waltz shared equal billing.

The princess and her husband enjoyed themselves "wildly," said lady-in-waiting Elizabeth Cavendish.

There were 140 guests for dinner and another 30 were added for dancing at the private formal affair.

JOHNSON TOASTS QUEEN

President Johnson mixed advice for marital happiness with tribute to 150 years of friendship with Britain in toasting the Queen.

Princess Margaret in a low voice reiterated thanks for American warmth and entertainment in toasting the president.

Towering over Princess Margaret—he is six feet, two inches tall and she just over five feet—the president escorted her to a cabaret-style ballroom for dancing, launched to the tune Everything's Coming up Roses.

Lord Snowdon escorted Lady Bird Johnson.

The couples reversed for The Anniversary Waltz played to mark the Johnsons' marriage milestone.

On the dance floor, the princess drew the line at the frug and most other fast steps but she joined onlookers, smiling and applauding, for performances rendered by couples including Lynda Baines, 21, and Luci Baines, 18, the president's daughters.

Lord Snowdon danced everything from a dixieland rendition of 12th Street Rag to a popular Beatle number entitled Hard Day's Night.

'RIDICULOUS,' SAYS CHAMPION . . .

. . . WITH FULLBACK IN TOW

Threat of Raiding Faces B.C. Lions

MOBILE, Ala. (CP)—A protest to the Canadian Football League over alleged raiding of a North American Professional League team by British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference was threatened Wednesday night.

General Manager William J. Menton charged that Jim Champion, a B.C. assistant coach, whisked fullback star B. W. Cheeks away from Mobile Tarpons after he had been told Cheeks would not be available until after a Thanksgiving Eve game for discussion of a possible contract sale.

In Vancouver, Champion rejected the charge, saying Cheeks had gone to Vancouver willingly for a talk with head coach Dave Skrien.

In any case, Champion said, the charge was ridiculous since the NAPL doesn't operate under the professional option rule and at least one Mobile player doubles on the weekends with Baltimore Colts of the National League.

He said such activity would be illegal in any league that honors the professional option rule.

Menton also said he had promised Atlanta's new entry in the NFL and Houston of the American League the opportunity to negotiate for Cheek's service.

Cheeks, a six-foot-one-inch, 200-pounder, leads the NAPL in rushing with over 1,000 yards so far this year.

Gooderham's 1832 is an unusually light and mellow Canadian whisky.

Thanks to our windmill.

When we started making whisky back in 1832, we built a huge windmill on our first distillery site.

Our founder, William Gooderham, used it to grind the grain that went into his first whiskies. (35 years before Confederation.)

Even back in those days, we were very choosey about the things that went into our whisky. Like our ryes and our barleys.

And as we've grown older, it's one of the lessons we've never forgotten.

That's why when you first sip 1832, you'll know it's a special whisky. With special touches that Canadian whisky-drinkers have come to expect from Gooderham's.

So, when the talk gets around to whisky, remember 1832. And our windmill.

It's a sure-fire way of not getting just an ordinary run-of-the-mill whisky.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

Somebody Forgot Leo So They'll Meet Again

Unmolested Lewis Scores TD That Killed Stamps

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Western Football Conference final was extended to its maximum three games Wednesday night because someone forgot about Leo Lewis.

The veteran halfback scored the touchdown that gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a 15-11 decision over Calgary Stampeders in the second game before 16,100 chilled fans. Calgary had won the first game at home 27-9.

The final game will be played in Calgary Saturday.

The details of what Calgary coach Jerry Williams called "a bad mistake":

The Bombers were behind 11-7 in the second minute of the fourth quarter. Quarterback Kenny Ploen called for a bootleg play designed to split Calgary's zone defence.

RAN CROSS PATTERN

Flanker Billy Cooper went deep and lured two defenders the same way. End Farrell Funston ran a cross pattern, followed closely by Calgary's Jerry Keeling.

Lewis was on the Calgary 10-yard line and the nearest Stampeder was at least 15 yards away. He snared Ploen's pass and stepped into the end zone for a 48-yard touchdown.

The six points salvaged Lewis' pride. He had been held to a meagre nine yards on six carries in the first 45 minutes.

The Bomber defence, directed by Henry Janzen, Phil Minnick and Norm Rauhaus, held Calgary to 53 yards—14 on a pass interference call against Bomber Bob Taylor—two pass completions in eight attempts and three first downs.

Both the Eastern and Western Football Conference final games will be televised live Saturday, on Channels 2, 6 and 8.

The Eastern game between Hamilton and Ottawa will be seen at 10 a.m., and the Calgary - Winnipeg Western game at 1 p.m. The Western game will also be broadcast over CKNW (980).

Minnick came through with what Bomber coach Bud Grant considered a big play. He broke through to hit Calgary quarterback Eagle Day hard at 12:04 of the last quarter, jarring the ball loose to be recovered by teammate Mario Mariani.

"We had a good chance until that fumble," said Williams.

The Stampeders, created a 3-0 margin in the first quarter which was wiped out by relief quarterback Dick Thornton's 38-yard ramble for a Winnipeg touchdown in the second quarter, then regained the lead when end Herman Harrison eluded defender Barrie Hansen to grab a 15-yard pass for a touchdown.

But Calgary was hurt by Larry Robinson's failure in the field - goal kicking department. The WFC scoring champion tried three—from 36, 42 and 33 yards out—but all were wide and good for just single points.

SEEKS FIRST WFC TITLE

"He didn't have a very good day, did he," winced Williams, a rookie coach trying to guide the Stampeders to their first WFC championship in 16 years.

Winnipeg, after its 19th Grey Cup berth, got its other points on two converts by Norm Winton and a punt single by Ed Ulmer.

Thornton came in to finish off the only sustained drive of the game — 77 yards — after Ploen limped off the field in the second quarter following a tackle by Dick Suderman of Calgary.

He broke away for the touchdown on an option behind good blocks from Herb Gray, Monty Kiffin and Rauhaus.

Cold weather and a frozen field contributed to low offensive output. The temperature was 18 degrees above zero at kickoff but dropped to 12 by the final gun.

COMPLETED 15 PASSES

Calgary picked up 16 first downs on 63 yards rushing and 221 passing. Day completed 15 of 29 attempts and had one intercepted. Fullback Lovell Coleman missed with one pass attempt.

Flanker Bobby Taylor caught six Day passes for 96 yards, Harrison five for 82 yards. Ted Woods was Calgary's best rusher with 50 yards on 10 carries, including a 42-yard romp.

The Bombers collected 11 first downs on 151 yards rushing and 91 passing. Halfback Dave Raimey was the leading rusher with 54 yards on 10 plunges. Fullback Art Perkins piled up 51 yards rushing and 26 on four pass receptions.

Calgary linebacker Wayne Harris, troubled by a groin injury, got banged about and Williams said after the game he looked "real bad."

Winnipeg escaped unscathed except for a minor hip injury to Mariani which won't keep him out of action Saturday.

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

The fires of debate in the Centennial Stadium project have cooled lately, but the embers of controversy have not gone out.

You know all about the Stadium situation, Clyde, or you've been in bed too long.

It seems 100 years or so since lower Island municipalities sat down to discuss a project to mark Canada's centenary. They went through the preliminaries—gondolas on the Gorge, bird-baths in Beacon Hill, boobie hats for bobbies—and settled on a stadium.

Where?

Victoria threw its vote for Topaz Park. Saanich wanted the broad, open plains of Tillicum-Burnside. Oak Bay and Esquimalt more or less backed Victoria or Saanich—when the latter could make up their minds.

Central Saanich has yet to declare itself. It already had landscaping problems with a stadium-full of potato-bugs and was looking for a Pied Piper to restore peace in earth if not on it.

Where? Saltspring? Empress Lot?

Victoria argued that it could borrow monies against a $3 million windfall from the McPherson estate (due in '67). But since the late Thomas McPherson insisted that his dough be spent within the city limits, Tillicum-Burnside was taboo. Saanich, agreeing that it would have to get a money bylaw passed to buy Tillicum real estate, contended that it's proposed location had more long-range advantages.

Meanwhile, Victoria appeased 'a local and loud sports electorate by announcing it would plump $600,000 into Royal Athletic Park. The old girl would never be a Houston Astrodome but she could be made presentable for that kind of lettuce.

In two years, council hinted, it would wheel another $1 million into a recreation-convention centre, part of a master plan with the Arena-Curling Rink complex.

But tempus was fugiting on the Centennial Stadium. Where would it go? Atop Mount Douglas? On Saltspring? In the Empress parking lot?

Opinions were rife and, like old cheese, occasionally strong. A decision had to be made or the federal-provincial grants could go to something useful, like calling another general election perhaps.

Into the valley of indecision strode a wavy-haired knight, scholarly, sophisticated, urbane. Why not, said Dr. Malcolm Taylor, build this splendid edifice at University of Victoria? Surely a multi-use schedule could be agreed upon, said Uvic's president.

Rhetoric May Have Caused Darkness

Dr. Taylor came armed with more than rhetoric. "We'll provide the land free," he said.

Except for unrepresented Esquimalt and Central Saanich, the vote was unanimous. Quicker than you could holler "Buy Pyramid!" a committee was set up to study the feasibility of scheduling. The delegates put on their beanies and went out into the darkness.

That may be incorrect. There are grounds for wondering if they hadn't been sitting in darkness all along.

Dr. Taylor may well have pulled off the biggest coup since Manhattan was lifted from the Indians for a few glossy beads.

He had admitted that a stadium is down there in the university's development plans. It is well down. About fifth in priority, almost a certainty by 1975.

He proposes to give up land worth $150,000 for a $500,000 stadium.

He talks about the university using a stadium in the afternoons and letting outside interests using it in the evenings.

Stadiums are peculiar beasts; to keep the turf playable, one game a week is the accepted limit. Only the B.C. Lions get into Empire Stadium twice a week—they practice on a lower field—and only because they pay enough rent to justify it. At UBC, walking across the turf with cleats except on game day is an invitation almost to death.

Students Call the Sports Shots . . .

The blithe acceptance by municipalities of Dr. Taylor's benevolent scheme induced one respected sports official to suffer a high-rise fever.

Art Burgess, Centennial Sports Stadium committee secretary, hollered that amateur sport "has been sold down the river."

Burgess insisted that it would be impossible to set up any suitable formula for use of the stadium because administrations change.

Ian Stewart seconds the notion. Lawyer, former B.C. Lion, active in alumni work, Stewart adds: "The university representative will be continuous and predictably will become secretary. Very easily the whole load could fall on his shoulders and he could dominate the committee."

Perhaps the politicians weren't aware of all the facts.

At least two didn't know until this week that Uvic's athletic director is not responsible to the regents but to the athletic council which consists solely of students.

"Fantastic!" said one elected father. "Why, that's like letting the students tell the faculty what it should and shouldn't do."

UNIVERSITY IN SPOTLIGHT

College whoop-de-do will be at its rousing best Friday at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

It'll be "Viking Night" when University of Victoria plays Navy in an Esquimalt and District Hockey League game, starting at 8 p.m.

Both Vikings and Navy trail front-running Esquimalt Pontiacs by two points. A victory by either club Friday will shift the tie from second to first place.

One Peek From Willie Was All Lynn Wanted

NAMED PLAYING-COACH of San Francisco Seals in Western Hockey League Wednesday was veteran centre Charlie Burns (above). Burns took over after Bud Poile gave up coaching duties to concentrate on job as general manager.

Los Angeles 3, Victoria 4

By DOUG PEDEN

If Willie O'Ree had remembered to lift his head, Lynn Patrick would probably have been a happier man today.

O'Ree is the mercury-footed winger who found Victoria Maple Leafs his favorite "cousins" last season while potting 38 goals for Los Angeles and winning the goal-scoring championship of the Western Hockey League.

Patrick is a former goal-scoring king of the National League who this year abandoned a front-office job with Boston Bruins to take over as manager-coach of the Blades.

Both were at Memorial Arena Wednesday night and O'Ree picked up right where he left off against the Leafs last winter. Willie followed Buddy Boone's breakaway goal against the Victoria power play with a slick shift and a close-in scoring shot to give the Blades a 2-0 first-period lead.

O'Ree was back again in the second period after the Leafs had stormed from behind with three goals in less than seven minutes. Willie hot-footed in to rap another shot behind goalie Al Millar and send the teams into the final session deadlocked at 3-3.

Either club could have wrapped it up in the shooting barrage that passed for the third period but it remained for Bob Barlow to produce a victory for the Leafs with less than 90 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Blades Almost Forced Overtime

Barlow took a pass from hard-working Milan Marcetta and flipped a shot that hit a post and dropped behind Marcel Pelletier to give the Leafs a 4-3 triumph, which kept them two points behind the front-running Portland Buckaroos.

"I'd sure have liked to win that game," said the dejected Patrick, who received another setback in his bid to lift the Blades into playoff contention. "We had the chances but we couldn't put the puck in the net."

Nobody had better chances than O'Ree to bring a smile to the Patrick features. With one of his better displays of marksmanship Willie could easily have doubled his output for the evening.

For instance, the Negro speedster hit a post with Millar beaten in the opening minutes. And he missed a blast at an open corner in the middle session: But the one that hurt Willie most came midway in the final period when it appeared the next club to score would almost certainly pick up all the marbles.

Put through by Warren Hynes, Willie triggered a quick shot only to be balked by the alert Millar, who came sliding out for a sprawling and spectacular save.

"If I had taken a look like I'm supposed to do we'd have won it," O'Ree moaned later.

"I should have lifted my head. He (Millar) went down and I could easily have lifted the puck."

Willie and his pals almost forced overtime after Patrick lifted Pelletier for an extra attacker in the last 35 seconds.

Marcel Tough In Opening Frame

Millar sprawled to make a great save during a scramble around his cage with five seconds remaining. Then defenceman Sandy Hucul went down to smother Norm Johnson's drive from the rebound to save the Leafs and send the 2,430 fans home happy despite the most loosely-played and least interesting game of the season.

Pelletier, who formerly guarded the nets for Victoria Cougars, had a brilliant first period, committing near robbery on some of his 12 saves.

His shutout bid was ended early in the second by Gordie Redahl's power-play goal and the Leafs jumped into a brief lead on tallies by Marcetta and Andy Hebenton.

Over the route, Marcel blocked 38 shots and Millar stopped 31.

Leafs, the only club in the league with an unbeaten record on home ice, make their next start Friday at Vancouver.

ICE CHIPS: Barlow's winner was his 11th goal of the season, keeping him in a tie with Portland's Cliff Schmautz and Vancouver's Howie Hughes for the league lead in that department . . . The Barlow - Marcetta - Hebenton line was the best attacking unit on the ice Wednesday . . . Marcetta and Barlow each had two asists in addition to their goals and now lead the Leafs in scoring with 18 points each, one ahead of Fred Hucul, who started the plays for all three second-period goals but earned only one assist . . . Hucul's one point gave him a share of the WHL record for points by a defenceman . . . both Fred and Vancouver veteran Ron Matthews have career total of 525 points . . . Pelletier picked up an assist on O'Ree's second goal . . . balding Los Angeles centre Cliff Pennington had to retire briefly for stitches in his scalp after being accidentally clipped by Steve Witiuk's stick in the second period.

TWINS' ZOILO EASY WINNER OF MVP AWARD

BOSTON (AP)—Zoilo Versalles, Minnesota Twins' spectacular shortstop, was a near unanimous choice today for the 1965 American League Most Valuable Player award.

Versalles, who sparked the Twins to their first American League pennant, received 19 of the 20 first-place ballots cast by a special committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The other first-place vote went to teammate Tony Oliva, who won the league batting championship for the second year in a row. Oliva finished second in the voting, being picked second on 13 ballots. The 1964 winner, Brooks Robinson of Baltimore, Orioles finished third.

Collegians Clash With Claremont

First place in the outer high school basketball league will be up for grabs Friday night when Claremont hosts St. Louis College at 8:15 p.m.

Claremont matched St. Louis' perfect 2-0 record Thursday by swamping University School 72-52. Rod Sutton was Claremont's gunner with 21 points.

Oak Bay took Victoria High 27-21 in senior high girls' play.

Growing Gorge Group Adds a Booster Club

The fast-growing Gorge Soccer Association continues to branch out.

Already supporting 19 minor teams and two senior clubs, the Gorge group now has added a booster club.

Main aim of the booster club is to support and work in close harmony with the parent association. Booster Club membership, in the main, consists of parents of the 250-plus boys in the minor leagues.

Jim Wilmshurst was elected first president of the booster club. Others on the executive are Phoebe Strickland, Georgina Hood and Betty Blaus.

Another meeting of the booster club will be held at Hampton Hall Nov. 23, at 8 p.m. Parents of players and all managers and coaches are invited to attend.

MUSLIMS TO BLAME?

'Obstacles' Jar Floyd

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Floyd Patterson, former heavyweight boxing champion, was quoted Wednesday as saying in Las Vegas, Nev., he has "run into obstacles" that "jeopardized my camp."

Courier-Journal writer Larry Boeck reported Patterson prefaced the statement by saying the Black Muslims are "a very, very clever organization. I've read that, and I've heard that, but I don't believe anything until I see it for myself, and I can tell you they are clever."

Champion Cassius Clay, a Black Muslim, and Patterson meet for the title in Las Vegas Monday night.

Clay's manager, Angelo Dundee, called the statements "hokum."

Patterson was quoted as saying:

"I have run into obstacles here I never had in any of my fights and things I never could have foreseen.

"I can't at this moment expose precisely what has happened in the last few days. What has happened has jeopardized my camp, to a degree, at least.

"To talk about them (the obstacles) now would only cause confusion."

MARCEL BUSY FELLOW

Former Victoria goalie Marcel Pelletier goes sprawling as he makes save and Victoria's Steve Witiuk chases rebound in Western Hockey League game Wednesday night at Memorial Arena. Marcel had brilliant and busy evening, making 38 saves, but he couldn't quite stem Leaf tide and Los Angeles Blades went down to 4-3 defeat. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

PROTECT WHL LEAD

Bucks Maintain Hex Over Totems

PORTLAND—Portland Buckaroos continued their mastery over Seattle Totems here Wednesday night to maintain a two-point lead over Victoria Maple Leafs in the tight Western Hockey League race.

Trailing 1-0 going into the second period, the Bucks collected three goals in that session and held on for a 3-1 triumph.

It was Portland's 12th straight victory over Seattle in a streak that extends over two seasons. It was also the eighth win in nine games for the Bucks.

Bill MacFarland got Seattle away in front with a goal early in the opening period.

Totems couldn't hold the Bucks in the second period and the Portlanders forged ahead on goals by Len Ronson, Cliff Schmautz and Larry Leach.

MINOR HOOP

Moen Shots Wreck Caps

Capitals couldn't stop Barry Moen Monday night and it cost them a 54-35 bantam boy's basketball decision to Boys Club at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Moen pumped in 25 points, best individual performance in six minor hoop contests during the evening.

First United A midget girls beat their B squad 16-9 and Sooke nudged Metropolitan 12-8.

Talent-Searching Lions Eye Heller

VANCOUVER (UPI) — The Western Football Conference British Columbia Lions are attempting to recruit University of Southern California halfback Ron Heller, coach Dave Skrien said today.

Heller, 25, weighs 212 and stands 6' 3". He was cut by the Green Bay Packers before the regular 1965 National League schedule began.

Mikita Shows Why He's One of Best

By Canadian Press

Stan Mikita, who had no idea what hockey was until he came to Canada from Czechoslovakia when he was eight, is one of the best centres in the National Hockey League.

His performance against New York Rangers Wednesday night showed why.

Mikita, 25, in his eighth season in professional hockey—all of them with Chicago Black Hawks,—scored two goals and assisted on two others as the Hawks downed the third-place Rangers 5-3 before a capacity New York crowd of 15,925.

The win moved Chicago into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens who take on the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs in Montreal tonight.

Mikita's outstanding performance overshadowed the play of Bobby Hull, who scored his 13th and 14th goals of the season to take over the league scoring lead.

Mikita's four points gave him 17, three behind Hull and one back of Montreal's Bobby Rousseau.

SPARKS HAWKS RALLY

The veteran Chicago centre, who has won the NHL scoring crown in each of his last two season, sparked a three - goal Chicago rally in the first period which erased an early Ranger lead.

Mikita scored his first goal, after Rod Gilbert had given the Rangers a short-lived 1-0 lead, when he clicked on a 25-foot slap shot just 52 seconds after New York defenceman Wayne Hillman had been penalized.

Mikita's sixth goal of the season sent the Hawks ahead 2-1 at 9:23 of the first frame with Ranger forward Vic Hadfield sitting out a slashing penalty. New York goaltender Ed Giacomin stopped Kenny Wharram's 25 - footer, but Mikita swept home the rebound.

Bobby Hull scored his 13th goal of the season less than four minutes later with Mikita and defenceman Pierre Pilote assisting. The goal was one of Hull's less spectacular efforts.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD

He flicked a soft wrist shot from just inside the blue line which seemed to catch Giacomin off guard. It came just five seconds after Jim Neilson was whistled off the ice for boarding.

Mikita picked up his fourth point of the night in setting up Wharram's neat backhander at 6:07 of the second period.

Bobby Nevin scored the Rangers' second goal in the first minute of the final period, but Hull scored his second of the night at 2:19.

Rod Seiling notched the game's final goal for New York with just over five minutes remaining in the game.

Tonight, Canadiens will be without the services of centre Henri Richard and left winger Dick Duff, both sidelined with injuries.

WILLIAM ECKERT
. . . succeeds Frick

Air Ace Gets Baseball Post

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's new public image began forming today behind the leadership of a new commissioner—a retired three-star air force general.

He is William D. Eckert, 56, of Washington, D.C., a trim, sharp-visaged man with thinning steel-gray hair and the build of a high school football halfback.

His unanimous recommendation Wednesday to the major leagues' 20 club owners ended a six-month search by a screening committee headed by John Fetzer of Detroit Tigers and John Galbreath of Pittsburgh Pirates.

The soft - spoken Eckert, a much-decorated officer who retired from the service four years ago, was a surprise choice to become baseball's fourth commissioner. He follows a line that includes Judge K. M. Landis, who ruled with a mailed fist; A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who was ousted by owners in favor of Ford Frick, retiring at the age of 71 after serving since 1951.

Eckert's first lieutenant will be Lee MacPhail, baseball-wise 48-year-old president of Baltimore Orioles, named to head a so-called cabinet as administrator in the commissioner's office.

DEPARTMENTS PLANNED

The new-image baseball government also will have departments encompassing player affairs, public information, television-radio and amateur baseball that includes Little League, American Legion, high school and college levels.

Whether directors of each of these branches will be named is yet to be decided, said MacPhail, who signed a three-year contract at $40,000 annually.

Eckert was given a seven-year pact at $65,000.

The new commissioner admits he knows little of the inner workings of baseball and that his first action will be to confer with as many club owners as possible and the presidents of the American and National leagues, Joe Cronin and Warren Giles.

Cronin was mentioned prominently as Frick's successor but eliminated himself Wednesday by accepting another seven-year contract as American League president.

Frick will be Eckert's conferee for the next three months and will aid in officiating at the baseball meetings in Miami next month. A year ago in Phoenix, Frick was successful in getting owners to restore the commissioner's power which had been reduced after Landis' death.

ADMIRES LANDIS

Eckert, a native of Freeport, Ill., whose only close connection with baseball was playing first base and the outfield for Madison, Ind., high school and on West Point intramural teams, said he was a great admirer of Landis.

"But I don't intend to be a czar and, at the same time I don't intend to live in an ivory tower.

"My authority will be exercised by analyzing, studying and considering. I will not use it dictatorially. I will call the signals as I see them."

Since his retirement, Eckert has served on many industry and defense advisory boards but plans to leave most of them to devote nearly full time to his new post.

TOONE GETS OFFICE HELP

Victoria Labour Council delegates unanimously supported a resolution Wednesday night endorsing the campaign of secretary A. W. Toone for mayor of Victoria. There was no discussion. Also approved was additional help in the secretary's office when it is needed.

ITU Members Retrained

Computers will be used in setting type for Victoria's two daily newspapers starting Dec. 8, delegates to the Victoria Labour Council were told Wednesday night.

Jack Chapman of Local 201, International Typographical Union, said the union was notified four months ago of the change and has retrained members to operate the new method.

He said the new machinery at Victoria Press Limited takes unjustified perforated tape punched by printers.

This is fed into a computer which automatically adjusts it to the correct column width. The corrected tape is then fed into a line-casting machine that sets the type.

The new method involves four new machines immediately, he said. The rest of the type for the Victoria Daily Times and The Daily Colonist will be set by the old method of printers working on linotype machines.

Mr. Chapman said the printers' union here is "fortunate" to have had a clause in its contract prior to the introduction of the new equipment giving the ITU jurisdiction over the new machines.

NIGHT SHIFT SCHEDULE?

The Victoria Labour Council will ask the local Post Office what arrangements are being made to get night shift Christmas relief women workers back to their homes.

The question was raised by Jack Driscoll who said newspaper reports showed the temporary female staff will be leaving shifts at 1:30 a.m. and 2:30 a.m.

Act Governing Colonies Legal

CALGARY (CP) — An Alberta supreme court justice ruled on Wednesday that the Alberta Communal Property Act governing the sale of land for communally-owned colonies is legal and within the powers of the Alberta legislature.

Mr. Justice J. V. H. Milvain, in a 12-page written judgement, dismissed two statements of claim to have the act declared invalid on grounds it was ultra vires, contrary to the Canadian Bill of Rights and discriminatory.

The claims, by two Lethbridge and Calgary lawyers on behalf of a group of Hutterites and non-Hutterite farmers, sought to head off charges against their clients for alleged sale of land in violation of the act.

Calgary lawyer W. B. Gill said a possible appeal was being considered.

The act, passed by the legislature in 1947 and amended in 1960, states that all communal land purchases must be approved by the communal property board and that new colonies must receive cabinet approval.

Discuss Hospital Needs

Information on the proposed regional hospital program will be sent to Central Saanich ratepayers.

Two public meetings may also be held to discuss the question.

Decision to fully inform the electorate on the subject before residents vote on a hospital referendum on Dec. 11, was taken by Central Sannich council Tuesday.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said he was appalled by the lack of knowledge the voters had on the subject.

The reeve agrees there is a desperate need for more hospitals in the capital region, but feels the B.C. government should shoulder a greater share of construction costs.

If the referendum is approved it will mean a two-mill increase.

The government will pay 50 per cent of hospital construction csots and the municipalities about 40 per cent. Federal grants make up the remaining 10 per cent, said the reeve.

NON-SMOKING MAYOR GETS SMOKER'S GIFT

Non-smoking Mayor R. B. Wilson was honored Tuesday with the gift of an engraved silver cigarette case for his desk.

As honorary member of the city employees' Quarter Century Club, the mayor received the gift at the club's annual dinner, the last while he holds office.

The club has 25 members, each having served with the city 25 years or more. Mayor Wilson is the 26th member.

His cigarette box has his name, the date and the club insignia engraved on the lid.

Santa Again to Tour Islands

Santa Claus will again visit lonely ports in the San Juan and Gulf Islands this year, courtesy of the Victoria Jaycees.

For the third year, Santa will bring gifts of books, toys and candies to youngsters who do not have the opportunity of talking to him in their isolated villages or towns.

Last year, more than 500 boys and girls in both Canadian and American ports were visited by Santa.

This year he will travel aboard the 65-foot yacht Blue Fjord with 16 Jaycee helpers. The ship leaves Dec. 18 on its two-day mission.

The ship will be decorated with a huge Christmas tree, strings of colored lights, reindeer and a large sleigh in which Santa will ride. The ship will be equipped with a sound system broadcasting Christmas music and carols.

The children of the islands will be entertained by clowns as the ship puts into its ports of call. Twelve stops are scheduled.

EXPERTS WORRIED AFTER HISTORY'S WORST BLACKOUT

Giant Power Grid Vulnerable to Sabotage

NEW YORK (AP)—History's worst power failure apparently began in a piece of equipment the size of a household electric meter.

But the larger question is what's to prevent it from happening again—accidentally or on purpose?

That question goes beyond the immediate cause of the recent massive blackout which affected the northeastern United States and Ontario, where it originated.

It is troubling defence planners, government officials and power company executives, and has caused at least the 30,000,000 people whose utter dependence on electricity became dramatically clear Nov. 9-10 to wonder about the very nature of a power grid, the distribution system which enabled the failure to zip across the northeast like a run in a stocking.

Power grids are interlocking networks of utility company lines which now extend to the Rockies and in a few years are expected to link 48 states in one big party line.

THEORY IS GOOD

"The theory is good," said electrical engineer Lawrence J. Hollander. "There is nothing wrong with the theory."

Hollander is assistant to the dean of New York University's school of engineering and science, and is one of a handful of academic men in the U.S. whose scholarly field is power generation, transmission and distribution. When the lights went out last week, Hollander was in the middle of a lecture on the effects of lightning striking transmission lines.

The power grid theory, in broad terms, involves companies with power to spare sending it quickly on interconnecting lines to companies with temporary shortages.

Years ago each company operated independently. Each had to have what was called spinning reserve—spare generators rotating but not producing electricity, against the possibility of a working generator conking out.

IT'S CHEAP

It made sense, then, for two companies to agree to keep a single spinning reserve to satisfy both. The more companies making such co-operative agreements, the better. In the northeastern U.S., 42 companies are thus interconnected. Among them are more than 400 generators, all linked together

Another advantage of such a network is that electricity can be delivered to customers more economically.

Old generators tend to be inefficient, producing electricity at costs as high as 8.5 cents a kilowatt hour. Newer ones can do it for as low as three-tenths of a cent. A kilowatt hour is the amount of electricity it takes to light 10 100-watt bulbs for an hour.

Many times it's cheaper for a company to buy extra electricity for demanding customers from another company, which has efficient generators operating, than to produce its own with only tired old machines on hand. Electricity can't be stored; it must be produced the instant demanded.

Computers tell companies at every moment where the cheapest electricity is available within the network.

These networks have been formed throughout the U.S. and all of them are connected with neighboring networks. But at present, the inter-network connections are generally weak. Thus trouble in one network usually doesn't spread to another. The eventual plan is to replace the weak connections with strong ones.

ARE THEY VULNERABLE?

And thus expanding the area vulnerable to a house-of-cards power failure?

"Not necessarily," said engineer Hollander. "Time zones and seasonal differences can save us.

"When it's 5 p.m. in New York, a time of heavy power load, there's plenty of surplus power in, say, Los Angeles where it's the middle of the afternoon." Similarly, power needs in sunny Dixie differ at any given moment from those in frigid New England, and each can bail out the other.

But how vulnerable is a network to—dare anyone mention it—sabotage?

"If I wanted to knock out the entire northeastern United States, just as happened Nov. 9," said Hollander, "I would pick a Thursday or Friday night just before Christmas. That would be a time of enormous load—lots of lights, stores open for shoppers, cold weather. That would be the time to do it. And I would simply cause some damage to the backbone line."

IT'S ONE WIRE

The backbone line is the extra high voltage wire running from the big plants at Niagara Falls through Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Albany and Poughkeepsie to New York City. At some points along the route, but not all, there are double lines, providing a backup system.

All the systems in the entire eight-state network are linked eventually to the backbone.

And, most significant, all the generators in the network are in precise synchronization, each turning as though on a single axle. They have to be, Hollander explained, so that the entire system will throb simultaneously at 60 cycles a second.

Should a generator accidentally get out of synchronization it must correct itself quickly—or get off the system. Automatic equipment is supposed to see that it does one or the other.

If a big bird should fly between the high-powered transmission lines, for example, or a tree limb fall and disturb the flow, a device called a relay detects it and causes a circuit breaker to open momentarily—for 1.5 to 3 cycles, the barest fraction of a 60-cycle second—then close again.

REPEATS SELF

If the trouble hasn't passed the process repeats itself. If after a third time it still hasn't fixed itself automatically, a repairman has to go out in a truck.

"That's what the automatic equipment is supposed to do," Hollander said. "Sometimes the equipment may not perform as expected. Perhaps the answer is more backup systems, more redundancy."

Hollander said when the backbone line is heavily loaded the generators are extremely sensitive, subject to the slightest disturbance.

That was exactly the situation the evening of the big blackout.

New York City at that time was drawing enormous amounts of power from the huge Niagara sources.

Something caused a disturbance—nobody seems to know what—and the little relay box signalled a circuit breaker to open near the giant Ontario Hydroelectric Power commission plant at Queenston near Niagara Falls.

WORKED WRONG WAY

Instead of isolating the troubled line, the breaker sent its current to other lines, already loaded. They couldn't handle the excess.

The current flowing to New York reversed itself and, like air in a punctured tire, rushed to the point of least resistance, draining the power from the great city.

At a different time of day, under a lesser load, generators throughout the system might have met the sudden demand.

But generators, like donkeys, will do only as much as they are capable and no more. When they sensed electronically that they couldn't meet the demand they cut themselves off to protect their own wiring, click, click, click, click, and 80,000 square miles went dark.

Yes, Hollander said, it could happen again. But in his view expanding the grid system would do more to reduce that chance than increase it.

FAIRLANE 500 XL HARDTOP

Rakish new look for an exciting family car!

Everything's new! And the picture tells only half the story. This year's new Fairlane is one of the most beautiful "re-inventions" ever to happen to a car.

Style is sleek. From the side it's long and lean and moving. From the front it's wide and low and powerful. From the back the new Fairlane looks custom-built for performance.

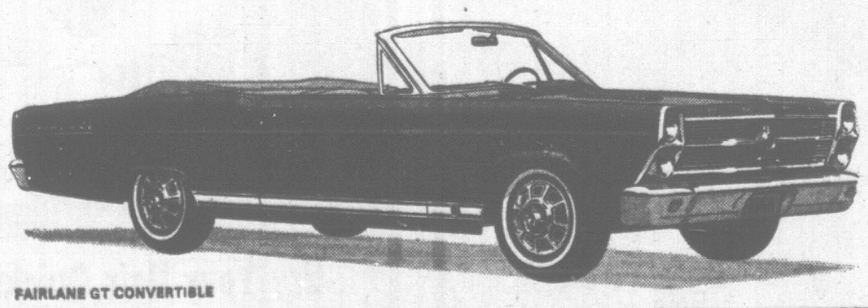

Choice is complete: a new Fairlane GT series with GT stripes. A Fairlane 500 XL series with bucket seats and floor shift. An elegantly panelled Squire Wagon, with under-the-floor stowage and the wonderful new Magic Doorgate (swings open like a door for easy entrance, and drops down like a tailgate for easy loading). And a hot new convertible for sheer fun. Plus sedans, hardtops—thirteen new models to choose from.

Features are unique. Some you can see: curved side-windows for extra roominess, reversible keys, keyless locking, suspended accelerator pedal, foot-operated parking brake, a much bigger glove box. Other features you'll feel when you drive Fairlane.

The wider track and new suspension give you a smoother ride and flatter cornering. And Fairlane's new "torque-boxes" tune out noise and vibration, for the quietest ride you may have ever experienced.

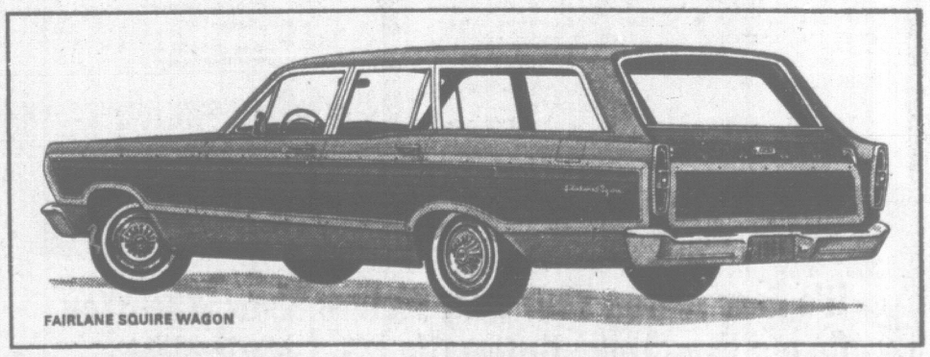

If you're planning for a new car this year, you really owe it to yourself to see these new Fairlanes. Your Ford Dealer is open all day Saturday.

PETITION BACKED BY 134

Businessmen Fight Tax

CAMPBELL RIVER — Local businessmen are preparing to do battle with municipal council here.

They are opposing a new business tax introduced by council.

First step in the battle will be taken Monday night when business leaders meet in Discovery Inn.

Already 134 businesses have signed a petition opposing the proposed tax.

But council has refused to change its mind.

Council members claim the tax, which is based on 4 per cent of the assessed rental value of business premises, will be "more equitable."

Leader of the opposing businessmen, garage owner Kenneth Forde, said today: "All those in business here should attend this meeting so we can try to get action to stop the tax before it becomes law."

He described he tax as "the thin end of the wedge," adding "this is not what we want."

At the last council meeting, Reeve Jack Lee said council would raise the tax if it didn't bring in enough money.

Monday's meeting could be the deciding factor.

The following night council is scehduled to give fourth and final reading to the tax bylaw.

PLACARDS HAVE MEANING for Mrs. Ken Bordian, marching with her daughter. Only a few months ago another daughter, Gloria, 7, was killed on the highway they now patrol. On Monday the highway, south of Campbell River, claimed another seven-year-old victim, John Larsen. Wednesday Mrs. Bordian led 100 parents and children on a three-mile march to the spot where both children met their death. The parents are fighting for a secondary road to bypass the highway. They also want greater speed restrictions and signs to warn of school children.

Rains Ruin Ball Field

ZEBALLOS — Recent heavy rains resulted in extensive damage to recreational facilities at this west coast community.

A diversion in the river, made to allow a private road to Zeballos iron mine, was washed out by the rain.

The surging waters took with them a baseball field, backstop and concession booth, wiping out the efforts of many community-minded citizens.

It is planned to build a new field.

Inquest Set Into Death Of Woman

DUNCAN — An inquest opens tonight into the death Wednesday of Mrs. Alice Hillyard, 84, of Lakes Road.

Mrs. Hillyard died in King's Daughters' Hospital Wednesday night eight hours after being struck down by a car.

The accident happened just outside her home when she was returning from her roadside mailbox.

She was hit by a car reportedly driven by Saskatchewan visitor Kenneth O. Bjolverud who was said to be driving south on Lakes Road at the time.

Mrs. Hillyard is survived by her husband and grown-up family.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Residents Obtain Funds For Halt-Marina Drive

MAPLE BAY—Residents here are going to court to try to reverse municipal council's decision to rezone a waterfront lot for commercial use.

Wednesday night a Ratepayers' Association meeting voted overwhelmingly to raise a legal fund.

By passing the hat at the meeting 39 people gave the fund at $150 start.

Municipal council, against strong protests, rezoned 27 acres of Genoa Bay waterfront and upland property from rural residential to commercial.

The property, owned by Capt. Wainman-Wood, is optioned to a four-man Calgary syndicate.

LEGAL GROUND

Duncan lawyer Thomas Lines, who also farms near the property in dispute, offered his services to the ratepayers.

But on his advice the proceedings against North Cowichan council will be in the name of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Dr. Wilson volunteered his name after Mr. Lines said the objectors would be on stronger legal ground if the action was fought by an individual.

Chairman of the association's Fighting Fund committee George Maggs, said the court action will cost about $1,000.

Mrs. George Whittaker, wife of a councillor who supported the rezoning, stood up at the meeting and expressed the opposite view.

She successfully put a motion the Municipal Act be studied with a view to making changes to prevent councils going against the wishes of a large number of residents.

LADYSMITH—Norbert Andrew Bagley, 26, of Chemainus Bay Indian reserve, has been remanded to Nov. 25 in connection with a rape complaint received by police Tuesday.

A preliminary hearing has been tentatively set for Dec. 14.

A resident on the reserve complained that her 20-year-old daughter was raped in a house on the reserve Monday night.

NORTH COWICHAN — Chairman George Whittaker put a tentative $222,200 roads program for 1966 to municipal council Wednesday.

Coun. Whittaker was the first committee chairman to get in his claim on next year's budget.

And he did it hard on the heels of a report by treasurer A. Vandecasteyen that the municipality was likely to end this year with a surplus.

Mr. Vandecasteyen said the revised budget showed a total of $1,998,914—an increase of $15,875.

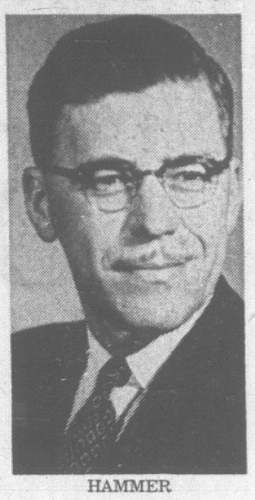

However, revenues have also increased.

CROFTON—If Crofton ratepayers get a boat basin at the site of a former log dump, municipal council will consider buying land to provide access.

The "if" answer was given Wednesday by Reeve Donald Morton.

HAMMER, BISHOP SEEK RE-ELECTION AS MAYOR

HAMMER
. . . runs again

Mayor Leslie Hammer of Port Alberni and Fred Bishop of Alberni will both stand for re-election Dec. 12.

The two announced their decisions Wednesday.

Both said they felt the need for continuity of leadership with the coming merger of the twin cities in 1967.

Said Mayor Bishop: "The transition from two cities to one will not be without some difficulties.

"But with co-operation during the next two years, it should be possible to achieve this with a minimum disruption and problem."

Said Mr. Hammer: "Much remains to be initiated, continued or completed. Therefore continuity of leadership is essential now as we approach many further important and historic decisions."

NO NAMES FOR SLATE

MAPLE BAY — The Ratepayers' Association here has failed to come up with any candidates for next month's municipal election.

Chairman Tony Staples said today a committee had tried but couldn't come up with names.

As an ex-councillor, Mr. Staples said business and personal commitments kept him out of the running.

Club Eyes Lake Site

NORTH COWICHAN—Duncan Curling Club is considering building its proposed new rink at Fullers Lake Park.

Municipal councillor Dennis Hogan said Wednesday he had offered the site to the club.

He said the curling rink could be part of the planned Centennial complex at Fullers Lake.

The municipality is preparing a $270,000 bylaw for an ice skating arena there.

Mr. Hogan told council Wednesday that including the curling ice at Fullers Lake would have several advantages. Among them would be use of banqueting facilities.

Mr. Hogan said: "Another arena is in prospect for the south end of the municipality sometime.

"But a second curling rink could not be included if the Duncan club proceeded with its present plan to build on Somenos Road."

Hunting By Night

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Two Victoria men, Norman King, 2210 Sayward, and Thomas Luscombe, 988 Bray, were each fined $100 in court here today. Both pleaded guilty to illegally hunting by night.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1965—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

We have with us in Victoria today a hot-potato situation which is going to cause us more future trouble than even our primitive sewage disposal methods if we fail to take it firmly in hand.

This is the advance of the high-rise, and I think we had better lose no time deciding, on a peninsular rather than a strictly municipal basis, just where these vertical housing developments do or don't belong.

The thing to remember is that we are dealing with an un-natural phenomenon which is certain to more than change the configuration of our skyline.

It could also alter the character of our city, and in areas where high-rise apartment buildings have risen, this fact is already apparent.

It stands to reason, then, that any high-rise application to come before any enabling group should be considered with an eye not only to local impact but total effect. In this matter, we must be our brother's keeper.

I think our city and municipal governments could, to everyone's advantage, lean more heavily than they presently do upon a body admirably equipped to aid them in their land use decisions.

This is the seven-member Capital Region Planning Board of B.C., on which municipalities, city and provincial government are represented.

The planning board, which operates in a capital region of 214 square miles and 165,000 population, has in its service a permanent technical staff, and to its credit, land use proposals which when implemented have proved entirely successful. It is also well along with a comprehensive and forward-ranging development plan for Victoria district.

This plan has so far found only minority acceptance by the municipalities.

Ruling our own yard is all very well in principle, but we can't afford to ignore the general state of the street. With this in mind, I think we court trouble through further hodge-podge handling of high-rise applications.

Better if these could be frozen until all who deal with them are equipped to act from certain knowledge rather than guesswork based on incomplete and parochial observation.

Certainly we would lose nothing by delay! The only possible losses would be suffered by the promoters, most of them from oft-Island, who see this favored peninsula as an area to be cashed in on.

Any doubtful benefits these operators may bestow on us are incidental and accidental, and entirely remote from their main purpose, which is to rake in as large a pot as possible.

It is easier to propose where the high-rise shouldn't go than where it should.

To my way of thinking, it has absolutely no place in any area already committed to single-unit homes; although an exception might be made where a sector has patently outlived its usefulness for this purpose.

Such areas occur on a city's downtown outskirts, and on these, the high-rise might have a revitalizing effect.

But any argument which would intrude it into a healthy suburban area is specious, and the local government which permits such encroachment is betraying those who have bought land, built homes and put down roots.

No promised prettification or gift of park acres changes the picture. To the home-owning community, the high-rise is an enemy which threatens its chosen way of life.

I think, too, that we must deal in long-range planning where a university is concerned—especially a new and expanding one with its land needs not yet defined.

In 1963, Saanich Council voted down a re-zoning application from interests which sought to build a high-rise on a Cadboro Bay tract in the university precint. To the new application made this fall, I trust the present council will give the same answer.

The battle of the high-rise is going to be both long and rough, and I don't think we can afford to lose these opening skirmishes.

Helping Children Is My Whole Life, Says Untiring Lotta

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

"I adore flowers almost as much as I adore children," said the small, red-haired lady with a smile.

Because she likes flowers, masses of them given her by friends accompany Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova wherever she goes.

But her love of children is the reason Dr. Hitschmanova travels over 50,000 miles a year as executive director and driving force behind the Unitarian Service Committee.

Confident and untiring, she arrived in Victoria Wednesday for a three-day stopover to launch the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund.

Armed with a folio of pamphlets and statistics about her thousands of charges across the ocean, she comes to request help from anyone and everyone who will listen to her.

"People call them 'my children'," she says with a smile.

And in a sense they are hers. Many of the youngsters are orphans, and the USC aid they get means everything to them.

And no one could care more passionately about the youngsters than Dr. Hitschmanova.

"I believe in service," she says simply, explaining her 20 years of work with the USC.

"I have been hungry myself, and I know how much it hurts," she continues, "So I have given my life to helping children."

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, Dr. Hitschmanova endured hardships during the war, and the memory of it has obviously not left her.

NATIVE COUNTRY

After escaping from her native country and leaving occupied Europe, she arrived in Canada when the war was still in progress.

From there, her story is the story of the Unitarian Service Committee, whose aid has gone to needy persons regardless of creed, nationality, color or caste for over 20 years.

Dr. Hitchsmanova herself, trained in journalism and social work, has received the highest honors from countries which have received USC aid.

She wears them proudly on the jacket of her tailored green USC uniform.

PUBLICITY

But she shuns the personal publicity which so often accompanies her work.

"I hate it," she stated simply.

In her USC work, Dr. Hitschmanova believes she has been given one of the greatest responsibilities imaginable.

Despite the weight her work must carry, the quick smile is never absent long beneath the red curls tucked into a peaked green cap.

HUNGRY SMILE

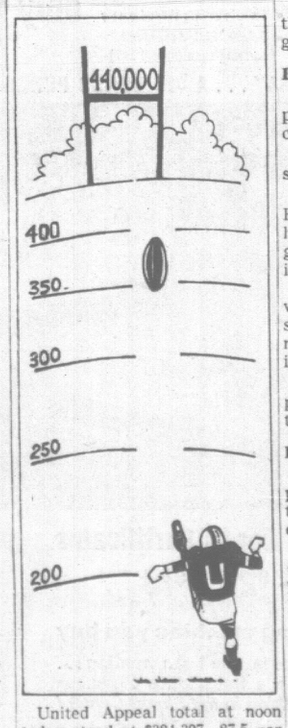

"I can't smile. Not with this poor child," she said, pointing to the photo of a hungry Korean which she held.

But thinking no doubt of the help that is brought to him and many others through her work, she brightened.

And the smile came back.

Dr. Hitschmanova speaks at 7:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, 680 Courtney St. Her topic is USC Flashback on Two Decades, and her talk will be accompanied by slides.

Help Score 'Fair Share' Goal

United Appeal total at noon today stood at $384,397—87.5 per cent of the goal.

Although the football is slowly creeping up the scale, it is still a touch-and-go matter whether it will go over the top by the Appeal deadline next Wednesday.

Big boost to the total was given Wednesday by an anonymous donor, who contributed $500 to the Appeal booth at Douglas and Yates.

The single donation, received by CNIB workers, manning the booth, pushed to $4,000 the total donated at the downtown centre this year.

Average contributions at the booth have been $200 a day.

Proceeds of a tea and bazaar at Sandringham Private Hospital, amounting to $179.10, were also donated to the Appeal.

More Companies Incorporated Here

Business still is booming in B.C. if the incorporation of new companies is an accurate indicator, Attorney-General Robert Bonner reported today.

He said the registrar of companies in his department processed 343 new B.C. company registrations last month compared with 307 a year ago. There also was one more outside-B.C. company registered here than the 30 recorded in October of 1964.

The number of non-profit societies registered was the same, at 18, and a co-operative society was registered as well.

Calgary Man Recommended As Top Planner

Appointment of a Calgary man as head of Victoria's new department of planning and community development was expected to be ratified today by city council.

Geoffrey J. Greenhalgh, 42, will take over the newly-created post of community development director Jan. 17 at a salary of $13,200 per year. He will also get $750 moving allowance to bring his family and effects to Victoria.

Mr. Greenhalgh is English by birth and training, a graduate in architecture from University of Manchester and holder of the equivalent of a master's degree in city planning from the same university.

Since 1960 he has been deputy director of planning for the city of Calgary. Before that he served as deputy director and director of Regina planning.

EXPERIENCE

He also has working experience in the British Isles.

City manager Dennis Young reported Mr. Greenhalgh's experience in Canada has been directly in the areas for which he will be responsible in Victoria.

Recommendation of his appointment was made by a special committee which held several meetings and interviews with candidates before making a final decision Wednesday.

Committee members included advisory planning commission chairman J. R. Genge and Anthony Roberts, director of Capital Region Planning Board, besides personnel chairman Ald. Michael Griffin and other members of city council.

Forty-three applicants bid for the job; locally, from eastern Canada and the U.S., and from the western states.

SOME FUNCTIONS

The new department will combine some functions now performed by the engineer's department, some held in abeyance since the collapse of a special projects section last summer, and some new long-range planning objectives.

It is the first department of its kind in the capital region.

Planning functions were reorganized after resignation of special projects director Roderick Clack and members of his staff, and after planning administration was criticized by Victoria members of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

FORGET PAST, CHURCH OFFICIAL URGES

'Worry Sends Millions to Hospital'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Remorse breeds sickness.

"It is the most poisonous thing in our bodies," says 83-year-old Lowell Fillmore, head of the Unity School of Christianity, now visiting here from his headquarters at Lee's Summit, Missouri.

"Millions of people are in hospital because of worry over past mistakes. Yet the person who committed those mistakes is not the same person today. The human body renews itself constantly, and so does the human spirit.

"That is why remorse has no place in our concept of Christianity."

Mr. Fillmore is the eldest son of Charles and Myrtle Fillmore, who founded the Unity School of Christianity in Kansas City in 1889. It has grown from one small building to a huge estate, complete with office buildings, prayer chapels, motels and cottages and a 1,300-acre farm.

POWER, MERCY

"We have no membership as such," Mr. Fillmore said. "But we have millions of followers in most countries of the world. We believe in healing by prayer and by expelling negative thoughts from our consciousness.

"All this is possible if you have faith in God's power and mercy."

Mr. Fillmore says his mother lived 50 years after doctors declared she was dying from tuberculosis. His father was lame and wore a raised boot because one leg was shorter than the other.

"Both cured themselves by prayer. My father actually lengthened his withered leg, which had not grown since he was 12.

BIBLICAL PAST

"People think these miracles belong to the Biblical past, but they are just as possible today as they were then."

Mr. Fillmore admitted that the Unity School of Christianity is sometimes associated with Christian Science. The difference, he says, is that Christian Science is an organized church, whereas the Unity movement is largely composed of people who still belong to orthodox churches.

"We hold spiritual retreats at Lee's Summit every summer and fall," he said, "and they are attended by people of many faiths, including Roman Catholic nuns and orthodox Jews. "Christianity, as we see it, embraces all religions and all people."

CLEAR COMPLEXION

Spry and energetic, with quick blue eyes and clear complexion, Mr. Fillmore has been a vegetarian since he was 15. But many of his friends and followers eat meat.

"We do not lay down rules—you have to determine what is best for yourself. Some of our followers eat fish but not meat. It is a matter of individual need."

Mr. Fillmore believes long life is available to all who practice prayer and "right thinking." His father lived to be 93; his brother, W. Rickert Fillmore, was 81 when he died last July.

"Mother would never give her age, but she lived 50 years after she was given up by doctors as incurable."

Mr. Fillmore spoke at Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street, Wednesday night.

TOPICS of the DAY

A documentary film on the life of President John F. Kennedy, "Years of Lightning, Day of Drums," will be shown next Wednesday at the University of Victoria.

The film, produced by the U.S. Information Services, runs 90 minutes and is in color.

It will be open to the public and no admission will be charged when it is shown at 8 p.m. in the Young Building auditorium of the Lansdowne campus.

The showings are open to the public.

10 Acres Bought As Oak Bay Park

Last Space Available In District

Oak Bay municipality has purchased land now under lease to Victoria Riding Academy for park purposes.

Reeve Allan Cox said today it is the last major tract of land available in the municipality.

The land—just under 10 acres—was purchased for $112,500. Payment will be made in five installments ending in 1969.

The municipality has an option to take possession of the treed portion of the land which adjoins the Henderson Park area.

The remainder of the land will come into Oak Bay's possession at the end of 1968.

PREPARE MOVE

This will give riding academy operator Don Carley opportunity to lease the land for an additional three years and prepare for a move, the reeve said.

The purchase was made "to round out our parkland," said the reeve.

He said there are no plans for the parkland yet, but Oak Bay recreation commission and a special committee will soon be working on them.

The purchase price was "a lot of money but it is a bargain at current land prices," the reeve commented.

He added municipal park plans would be "cramped" if the purchase was not made.

MANY TREES

"The area is heavily treed and we want to preserve some of this."

He said the site was "a natural" because the land is not near any residential area.

It is bounded on the north by Cedar Hill Cross Road, on the west by Henderson Park, on the south by Uplands golf course and University of Victoria to the east.

The reeve added he was "sorry to see the riding academy go," but its operations had "become restricted because of the presence of the university."

VICTORIA'S LAST STAGE had a sorry send-off Wednesday night. Vandals dragged the historic buggy to the water's edge and tipped it in the Gorge. Part of a museum collection in the old Craigflower school, the stage was fished out this morning little the worse for wear. Two seats were missing but they are expected to turn up at low tide. The stage, owned by the pioneer Parker family at Rocky Point, travelled daily between Victoria, Metchosin and Rocky Point from 1905 to 1910. It has been a feature of the museum for the past 20 years. Church Head Visits City

The spiritual leader of more than 200,000 Greek Orthodox citizens of Canada and Alaska will be received by the Hellenic Community of Victoria today.

His Grace Timotheus, Greek Orthodox Bishop of Canada and Alaska, will be entertained by the Hellenic Community, comprising some 150 Victoria residents, at a dinner in the Empress Hotel at 8 p.m.

Earlier, at 6:30 p.m., he will conduct a service in the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church on Oak Bay Avenue.

Bishop Timotheus (he uses only one name) was flying here from his residence in Toronto and was to met at Victoria International Airport this afternoon by John Alexis of Victoria's Greek community.

Martin, Kiernan To Attend Rally

Health Minister Eric Martin today said both he and Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan would represent the B.C. government at the annual convention of the National Social Credit League in Edmonton Nov. 23 and 24.

Labor Bureau Urged For Working Women

The B.C. government today was asked to create a women's bureau within the provincial labor department.

The request was made by a delegation of the Business and Profession Women's Clubs of B.C. headed by Mrs. T. W. Simpson of Victoria, representing the group's provincial president who was unable to attend the cabinet meeting.

With the major increase of female participation in the economy and work force, a separate bureau for them would help both the department and general public, the organization said in a brief.

The bureau would help solve special problems and would encourage women to improve their work skills as well as maintaining liaison with the federal government's women's bureau regarding female employment matters.

The brief said the number of women in the B.C. labor force has risen from 4,762 or 10.8 per cent in 1901 to 188,000 or 29.2 per cent at last count in 1964.

It said a separate women's branch in the labor department could handle problems of maternity leave, grants for married workers, child care, correction of abuses and "better attitudes toward women's work."

The brief said women must learn new skills to keep up with technology, and "employers must be taught that the chronological age of a person is unsatisfactory as a measurement of occupational ability and adaptability.

"We commend the government for its initial step in appointing Mrs. Christine Waddell as industrial officer and specialist in female labor-management problems within the department," the brief added.

"However, we would respectfully point out that one woman, regardless of how well qualified, cannot be expected to deal with the many and varied problems affecting women workers and at the same time help them to understand their obligations and rights as members of the labor force."

Clumsy Thieves Foul Up Break-In At Lumber Yard

Thieves broke into Doman's Lumber Co., 280 Bay St., overnight but "a very poor attempt was made on the safe," city police said today.

The culprits broke the dial off the company safe trying to open it. When this failed they tried to cut the hinges with a hacksaw.

They also ransacked the offices looking for petty cash.

Police obtained papers and glass fragments which they are checking for fingerprints.

Ask The Times

Q. Do cats and dogs have conscious thoughts? How do they communicate with one another, if they do? R.S.

A. Dogs and cats do not have conscious thoughts or an ability to think, says a local veterinary surgeon.

But they do have an ability to react to situations through instinct and training.

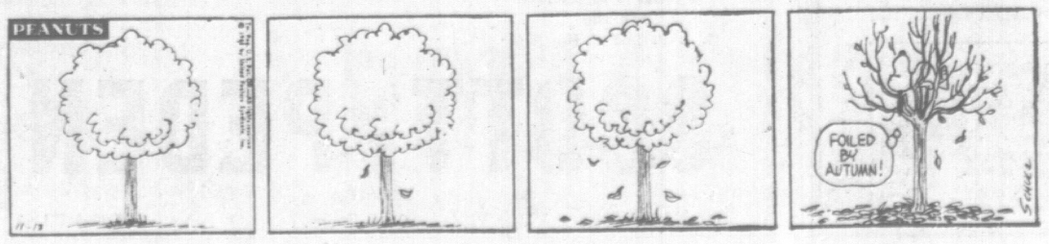

For instance, a dog will not think when he crosses a busy street. But he will react when he hears a horn honking or brakes squealing.

Dogs and cats can communicate by barking and meowing — but they have no specific language.

They get their message across by the tone of the noise they make—a yelp indicating pain or a growl indicating anger.

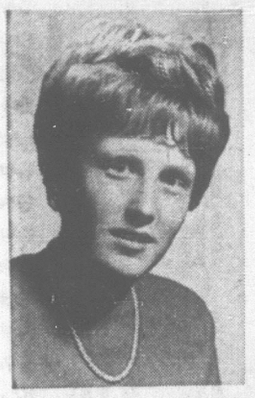

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Not coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

It was decided to buy a $200 government bond with a bequest from the estate of the late Miss E. Parker.

DEAR ABBY...

Leave Things Be!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My brother, Joe, passed away last January and was buried in a plot with an empty plot beside it. I was told the other plot was for Hilda. (Hilda is his second wife.) I knew Joe had bought a double plot when his first wife, Zelda, died, and I was surprised that Joe wasn't buried next to Zelda. However, I didn't say anything. Just yesterday my brother, Hymie, who was in charge of all the funeral arrangements, told me confidentially that in Joe's will he asked to be buried next to Zelda, but the will wasn't read until after the burial. I told Hymie that I didn't think this was right, and we should take steps to do something about it. Hymie said, "Oh, what's the difference? Joe and Zelda are both dead now, and it might hurt Hilda." What do you think?

THE SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Let the sleeping man lie. No good will come from exhuming the issue.

DEAR ABBY: Virgil and I have been married for 14 years and we have three children. Our problem is our families—on both sides. They have made nervous wrecks of my husband and me. On the advice of several doctors, we have decided to quit associating with all our relatives, but they refuse to leave us alone. They drop in all the time and irritate us by bringing up subjects they know we don't care to talk about. If they give us Christmas gifts this year, should we accept them or not? If you advise us to accept them, we'll have to give them gifts—right? I hate the thought of such hypocrisy. There is no getting along with these people. They have stirred up nothing but trouble ever since our marriage. What is your advice?

VIRGIL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I advise you to follow your doctors' orders, and quit associating with all who irritate you. But let these people know of your intentions so they won't continue to drop in and annoy you. Once you have done this, you won't have to worry about any Christmas gifts.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest your answer to the roomer who had noticed things missing from his room, and later found it was the nine-year-old boy who had taken them. I liked the answer you gave him, and hope for the boy's sake your advice is heeded.

If this roomer could sit down and visit with some of the 12- and 13-year-old boys in a training school or reform school, he'd learn that most of these boys blame their teachers and parents for letting them get away with small things until they were finally caught by the police, and then it was too late for parents to intervene.

I've worked with boys in trouble, and most of them tell me they never had a father who cared enough to punish them unless he was drunk, and then he used his fists or a club. I know of some cases where the boy continued to steal until he tried the one "big job," which cost him his life with a bullet in his head or a car wreck while fleeing the police.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Herald Best Wishes Without Any Misses

By Penny Saver

I chuckled to myself the other day when I was downtown shopping. All the stores are decked with sparkling gold and silver, and glittering red and green ensembles. The shelves are amply stocked, prepared for the storm. I was feeling extremely giddy by this time, very proud of myself for having completed most of my shopping already. I should realize by now that whenever I get that secure feeling, I have forgotten something.

I discovered my blunder when I wandered aimlessly into a shop, and found a display of Christmas cards confronting me.

Literally hundreds of designs leaped from the cards. I was in a state of complete panic as to what cards to choose. The understanding proprietor began by showing me a box of cards designed by a local artist. The beautiful floral patterns soothed my shattered nerves. A set of 12 of these exquisite cards, with two designs in each set, sells for $2.

Another set contained prints of water-color paintings created by another Victoria artist. A box of these contains two cards of each of six prints. The Parliament Buildings and Beacon Hill Park are two examples of the local scenes that you find in this box, which sells for $1.50.

A great item that I spotted will save me a lot of time after Christmas, when it's again time to send thank you cards for all those wonderful gifts. It is a Christmas record book, in which you list the people to whom you are sending cards, who you received cards from, who you sent gifts to, and who you received gifts from. This way, that after-Christmas problem of trying to remember who sent what is solved.

Are you in the market for Christmas cards? Give Penny a call at 382-3131. She'll tell you where to shop.

DOUBLE EVENT as President and Mrs. Johnson, celebrating their 31st wedding anniversary last night, pose with their guests, Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon, for whom they entertained at a formal White House dinner. The Princess wore a shocking pink ball dress with princess line and matching jacket with low neckline and sleeves edged with crystal and pearl fringe. Mrs. Johnson chose an emerald green silk strapless dress with a bow of matching fabric on the bodice. (AP Wirephoto.)

WEARING NEW RING

Is Luci Johnson Engaged?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new gold and diamond ring sparkled on Luci Johnson's third finger, left hand, as she danced cheek-to-cheek with boyfriend Pat Nugent at a White House party Wednesday night for Princess Margaret.

The ring drew new speculation that the president's 18-year-old daughter is engaged to marry 22-year-old Nugent. But the White House again would make no comment and Luci, herself, couldn't be reached.

To Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Maida of Riondel, B.C., announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Rosemary Anne, to Mr. David Neuman Butterfield, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Butterfield of Blackpool, England. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Nov. 27, at high noon in the Cathedral of Mary Immaculate at Nelson. Fr. J. P. Monaghan will officiate.

Gala Bazaar at Mount St. Mary Attracts Guests by the Hundred

Mount St. Mary was one of the busiest places in town, Wednesday, when hundreds attended the home's annual bazaar and tea and helped raise $2,049.78, to be used to provide comforts for the 150 patients.

As soon as one entered the door, the delicious aroma of home cooking appealed to the senses with all the allure of a modern-day Pied Piper. Len Wagstaff, the home's chef, and Sister Mary Stanislaus, dietary supervisory, had made plum puddings galore, Christmas cakes, shortbread, sugar cookies, butter tarts, pies and batches of crispy buns, the latter being brought to the stall still encased in the warmth of the recently-left ovens.

BUSY HELPERS

Serving on the popular stall were Mrs. C. Hinchcliffe, Mrs. F. E. Salter, Mrs. F. Danes, Mrs. A. Midlane, Mrs. E. T. Lewis, Mrs. A. D. Davis, Mrs. M. Reading, Mrs. J. D. Baines, Miss Justine Meissner, Mrs. Walter Miles and Mrs. H. Wilton.

There were aprons for every occasion at a stall in charge of Mrs. V. Toth, Mrs. L. Boogaars and Mrs. F. Kreigel. Mrs. Toth had sewn all the attractive stock.

Young and old "sweet tooths" quickly found the candy stall convened by Mrs. C. Rose and Mrs. S. Sedgewick. The candy was the work of Sister Mary Stanislaus.

Never were cookies and sandwiches more appetizing than those served in the tearoom by Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. P. C. Shaw, Mrs. M. Kokran, Mrs. G. Malenfant, Mrs. W. Barnaby, Miss Leona Donner, Mrs. K. Goodwin, Mrs. L. McLean, Mrs. Z. Ward and Mrs. Helen McMurdo. Sunbright nasturtiums in snifters helped add a gay note.

There were more than 300 prizes to compete for in the Lucky Seven contest arranged by Mrs. A. Johnson, Mrs. Peter Graham, Mrs. J. W. Dobie, Mrs. R. Kersey, Mrs. C. N. Day, Mrs. E. H. Gandy and Miss Pat L'Amie.

Other stall conveners were: Novelties, Mrs. J. D. Gillis; tombola, Mrs. G. F. Rose, hamper, Mrs. L. Madden; religious articles, Mrs. P. Wozney, and cake raffle, Mrs. V. Flach. Mrs. N. Stevens was treasurer.

Conveners of the successful affair were Mrs. Peter Sallaway and Sister Mary Druscilla.

Are Eyes Damaged By Use of Oral Contraceptives?

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special committee of experts will begin a study Monday of reports of adverse effects on the eyes suffered by women taking oral contraceptives, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced Wednesday.

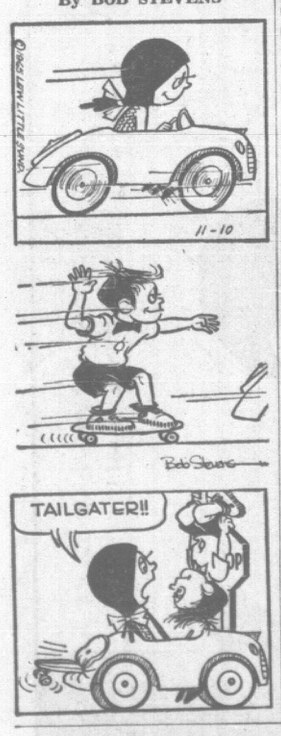

The agency said there has been no establishment of a cause-and-effect relationship involving the contraceptive drugs but that it was decided the situation should be studied.

Meanwhile, faced with an estimate that the committee probably will not complete its study until about next March, FDA is requesting all makers of oral contraceptives to incorporate in their labelling a wording about possible visual hazards.

"It is important to note that all the conditions which have been reported as affecting women who were taking the contraceptive drugs naturally occur in females of childbearing age who are not taking oral contraceptives or any drugs," FDA said in a statement.

HMS GANGES CHAPTER, IODE

Tea Held on Salt Spring

The sum of $283 was realized when HMS Ganges Chapter IODE held a tea and home baking sale in St. George's Hall at Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

Receiving guests were regent Mrs. K. F. Parker and Mrs. W. M. Mouat. Mrs. V. C. Best, Mrs. G. H. Holmes and Miss Helen Dean presided at the refreshment table which was centred with a bowl of holly and snowberries, flanked by white candles.

Serving on the tea committee were Mrs. T. W. Portlock, Mrs. O. L. Stanton, Mrs. Laurie Mouat and Mrs. Joyce Parsons.

Acting as serviteurs were the Misses Ginny Kerrigan, Brenda Sharp and Janice McMillan. Mrs. Stanton was in charge of decorations.

Home baking and miscellaneous items were sold by Mrs. Ed Richardson, Mrs. C. S. Hewett, Mrs. A. Pike and Mrs. Joe Pitts. Mrs. H. A. Robinson and Miss F. L. Aitkens were in charge of an IODE calendar stall and Mrs. R. B. Horsefield handled receipts.

Mrs. Graham Shove was in charge of a raffle featuring an electric blanket donated by honorary vice-regent, Mrs. Cecil Abbott, Victoria. Second prize was a beauty parlor gift certificate. Mrs. B. Earl Hardie was in charge of a chicken dinner raffle.

Proceeds of the affair will be used for the chapter's educational work.

Clubwomen's News

Donation—It was voted to send $50 to the Grants-In-Aid when the Victoria Altrusa Club held a recent pot luck supper in the Tattersall Road home of Mrs. Janet Mesher. It was reported that a Christmas parcel had been sent to the club's adopted child in Korea. It was announced that plans would be discussed for the senior citizens' Christmas dinner to be held on Dec. 13, at the club's next meeting on Nov. 25 at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. S. T. Morrow, 2926 Phyllis Street West.

Parties Precede Wedding Vows

Pink carnations en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Gail Buckle when her chosen attendant, Mrs. Maurice Cherneff entertained at a shower in her Ash Road home. Miss Buckle's marriage to Gary R. Johnston takes place this Saturday afternoon.

Mother of the guest of honor, Mrs. Harry Buckle Jr. and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. R. E. Johnston, were given white carnation corsages.

A decorated clothes basket contained the gifts presented by the 15 guests.

A buffet turkey dinner was served to the 25 guests who attended a shower given by the groom-elect's aunt, Mrs. David Schulz in her Simcoe Street home.

Corsages of white chrysanthemums were presented to the guest of honor, her mother, and the groom-elect's mother.

More than 50 guests were present when the bride-elect's mother held a trousseau tea for her daughter in their Montgomery Avenue home.

Mother of the groom-elect; Miss Buckle's godmothers, Mrs. M. O. Mayhew and Mrs. R. S. Olsen, and Mrs. Robert Travis presided at the refreshment table. Serviteurs were the bride-elect's chosen attendants, Mrs. Cherneff, Mrs. D. Doidge, Mrs. Harry Buckle III, and Mrs. Robert Jobbins.

Following the wedding rehearsal, members of the wedding party gathered in the Edgeware Road home of the groom-elect's parents for a party. Refreshments were served.

"I didn't believe the saleslady, when she said that Just Fabulous stockings last twice as long. They looked so wildly sheer. Naturally, I bought them. Well, those fragile-looking stockings turned out to be almost non-runnable. (They're knit with a special lock-stitch.) They have a comfortable ribbed top that fends off garter-snag. And a clever run-guard toe. That was three weeks ago Monday, and I've worn the same pair of Just Fabulous day and night. (They're flattering as a wink.)

HOLIDAY THEME ADDS GLITTER TO BAZAAR

parkling multi-colored ornaits glittered from a miniee Christmas tree, surrounded by small gaily-wrapped "gifts" to provide a focal point on a table which centered the the tea area at the recent annual bazaar of Colfax Rebekah Lodge.

Arrangements of holly and tiny ornaments winking from guests' tables added to the Christmas theme at the affair held in Odd Fellows Hall.

Tea convener Mrs. J. N. Wilson and her assistants, Mrs. G. Baker, Mrs. L. Warren, Mrs. E. Ballantyne, Mrs. S. Worboys and Mrs. E. Collett, served the guests with platefuls of beautifully decorated sandwiches and cakes which had guests appreciatively calling for more.

The knitting and fancywork, supervised by Mrs. G. C. Loat, which featured home-made items of every kind and description from crocheted tablecloths to hand-knit baby clothes, drew crowds.

Another featured attraction was a handsome hand-carved purse, made by A. G. Loat which had guests trying to win the lovely article raffled.

Greeting guests at the affair which realized $800, was noble grand Mrs. E. Taylor and vice-grand, Mrs. L. Rossiter, who were both presented with yellow chrysanthemums en corsage.

A similar corsage in bronze tones was presented by the noble grand to district deputy president, Mrs. R. Green who opened the affair.

STALL CONVENERS

In charge of various stalls were Mrs. E. Farquhar, grocery hamper; Mrs. B. Allen and Mrs. M. Bird, aprons; Mrs. J. Wright money tree; Mrs. A. M. Higgs and Mrs. G. M. Graham, candy; Mrs. F. Wilson, home baking; Mrs. R. R. Heale, novelties and raffles; Mrs. H. A. Blackburn and Mrs. R. Craigdallie, plants; Mrs. J. Browning and Mrs. A. R. Jordon, white elephant; the Misses Dorothy Dobson and Phyllis Tate, Mrs. M. Fleming and Mrs. L. Slater, tea tickets.

Serviteurs were Mrs. W. R. Rhodes, Mrs. M. Tibando, Mrs. R. L. Havard and Mrs. Graham.

Patients Assist United Appeal

The sum of $179.10 was turned over to United Appeal officials today. Donated by the Sandringham Private Hospital, the money was the proceeds of a bazaar held there on Tuesday. Patients made small toys and household articles while homebaking was contributed by the staff. More than 100 attended.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Often Women Influenced By Fashions for Teens

It is amazing to what a great extent teen-agers seem to influence the styles today. It is even more amazing that so many mature and older women fail to realize that what may look well on the teen-ager often looks ridiculous on them.

Two well-known voices have spoken out on this matter. In a fairly recent article one of today's most famous designers decried the fact that women are influenced by teen-age fashions which are not always flattering to them. She urged women to remain individualists in their dress and choose from fashion what is flattering to them and to their figures. Wear what is best for you, but on the other hand, don't shy away from new fashions.

Another voice was raised in this same cause. Mr. Michel Contino, president of the Coiffure Francaise, said that the teen-ager has taken bangs to her heart with a vengeance. He thinks, however, that this is one style which is becoming to many who have grey hair. Even though all hair styles, young and old, are short this year, Mr. Contino warns that the older gals usually look best with a soft feminine style. As the years add up, the face must be framed with gentle lines. Some soft tendrils in front of the ears are flattering because they soften the jawline.

Here are a few more things to remember. Your skin pigment changes with the years. Therefore, if you color your hair, have it at least one shade lighter than it used to be. There is no doubt that women, both young and older, are wearing hats less often. For this reason the hair requires even more care than usual. A good hair shaping will make it easier for you to manage your hair in between visits to the beauty salon. It is the unneeded bulk which drags the hair style out of place.

These experts advise you to avoid the pack influence and choose the style in clothes and hair which suits you individually.

Predecessors May Become RC Saints

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul today ordered the start of the beatification process for his two predecessors, John XXIII and Pius XII. His action was a first step toward their possible canonization as saints.

Pope paul made his surprise announcement at a public ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica for the promulgation of two new decrees of the Vatican ecumenical council.

Speaking at the renewal of Roman Catholicism started by the council, which was first convened by Pope John, Pope Paul said the church and the world owed much to his two predecessors.

Beatification declares someone is worthy of public veneration because of exceptional holiness during his life. It is a step toward canonization, which declares the beatified may be called a saint.

CAN TAKE YEARS

The virtues of persons proposed for beatification or canonization are studied by the Vatican's congregation of rites. These studies usually take many years.

In his speech, Pope Paul also announced:

—That the long-awaited reform of the Vatican Curia is progressing and that he will soon announce a new statute for the Vatican's holy office, the Curia's most powerful unit and its most controversial.

—That the period from the end of the ecumenical council, Dec. 8, to Pentecost Sunday next June, will be a special jubilee period for the world's Roman Catholics to promote the council's decisions.

Calona
CANADA'S FINER SHERRY

Calona Sherries are made from specially grown grapes and blended with special care, to produce a mellow, golden amber wine with a definite nut-like flavor, and rich bouquet.

CALONA MEDIUM DRY SHERRY . . . a superior appetizer wine, and welcome cocktail-hour change.

Sherry parties and entertaining . . . both types are most acceptable . . . give your guests their choice.

The only Canadian Sherry made right in the Okanagan where the grapes are grown.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

BITS 'N' PIECES: NBC-TV estimates the number of color television sets in the U.S. rose to about 4,450,000 as of Oct. 1, an increase of 90 per cent during the preceding year. The network says the outlook for the final quarter of 1965 assures the certainty of forecasts of at least 5,000,000 color sets in use by the start of the new year.

Stephen

Sammy Davis Jr. is in the TV news again because, following the Jan. 7 debut of his one-hour NBC-TV variety series, he will not be able to appear on the show for four weeks. The reason is that he previously was contracted to do an hour special for an opposing network, ABC-TV, Feb. 1.

One of the conditions was that he could not appear anywhere else on television for the three weeks preceding and the one week following this program. So Johnny Carson will be host of Davis' new NBC-TV series Jan. 14, Sean Connery will take over on Jan. 28 and Jerry Lewis on Feb. 4. The Jan. 21 date will be filled by a rerun of "Peter Pan" and Davis returns on Feb. 11.

Ratings are taking their toll again. ABC-TV's The Young Set, a daytime program, with moderator Phyllis Kirk, dies Dec. 17. On Dec. 20 the network will introduce two half-hour game shows. One is called Supermarket Sweepstakes and will feature women bidding on items commonly found in stores.

The second, Dating Game, will present eligible spinsters and bachelors after a kind of computerized selection process. Ho, hum . . . "Hullabaloo," crowed the producers, is different from "Shindig" because there is an attempt to give it a solid footing, with big-name hosts and music geared for the day.

ABC-TV's Shindig is through because of dismal ratings. Don't look now, but NBC-TV's Hullabaloo is also having a tough time with ratings and may bite the dust shortly. The wheel has turned full circle in a short year, hasn't it?

CBS-TV's Lucy Show for Dec. 6 finds Milton Berle posing as a skid row derelict to gather experience for a movie role, and Lucy doing volunteer work among homeless men, determined to rehabilitate him . . . Hanna and Barbera have started a project aimed at the 1966-67 season entitled "We'll Take Manhattan."

V.L.A. POSSIBILITY
¾ ACRE—CORNER LOT

This older home is in a very good state of repair with large livable rooms. The kitchen is modern with pastel yellow wall oven, table top range and blue Arborite counter tops. The walls are mahogany panelled. There is a large living room, huge dining room with built-in hi-fi and two large bedrooms, all on the main floor. Upstairs are two more bedrooms plus another large area for use as a family room. The corner lot may some day be very valuable. And at present the owner keeps horses on the property, having a clean horse barn behind the house. Oh, yes, taxes are only $190 yearly and the owner will carry a small agreement for sale. Close to schools, bus and park.
PRICE $12,900.
WILLS OF WHITTOMES, 388-4271.

Soviet Backs Disarmament Parley Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The Soviet Union today threw its support behind a proposal calling for the convening of a world disarmament conference next year which would include Communist China.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko told the General Assembly's main political committee such a conference should be held outside the aegis of the United Nations so that nonmembers such as Red China and Communist East Germany could take part.

He warned, however, that "the mistakes of the past must not be repeated" in arranging the conference. He suggested it be held no later than mid-1966.

"The goal of this conference should be to test new possibilities of solving the disarmament problem," he said. "All participants must have full freedom for presenting proposals, ideals and suggestions."

U.S. Network Won't Show Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Football League officials have learned the 1965 Grey Cup football game will not be televised in the U.S. by the American Broadcasting Company as in the last three years.

This means the league's treasury will miss out on the $50,000 the ABC paid in the past for rights to the Grey Cup classic.

Jake Gaudaur, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference who also heads the CFL's U.S. television committee, quoted an ABC official as saying that due to an unusually large number of commitments, plus 15 pretaped sports shows waiting to be shown, the network found itself too heavily committed to telecast the Grey Cup.

Canadian Joins Harness Big 4

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) —Ron Feagan, 23, joined the world's Big Four in harness racing Tuesday night at Mohawk raceway.

The Goderich, Ont., native became the fifth driver and the first Canadian to win 200 races in one season.

With 197 wins going into Tuesday night's events, Feagan won the first race with Kit's Kid, the second with B. Direct and the ninth with Mistress Mine.

Ed Freundt, West Germany, had 386 wins in 1964; Bob Farrington, Richdood, Ohio, had 312 last year; Don Busse, Kingston, Ill., had 201 in 1963 and Bill Haughton, Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y., hit 201 Nov. 7.

Ship Design Faulty Rules Naval Inquiry

HALIFAX (CP) — A fire aboard the destroyer Nipigon which claimed the lives of three sailors Oct. 18 was caused by a flaw in the destroyer's design, the navy announced today.

The navy said in a statement the fire was caused by seepage of vapor through a faulty hatch cover while the destroyer was in the western approaches of the English Channel.

It said evidence presented before a naval inquiry board at Plymouth, England, indicated two flash fires had occurred on the mess deck situated above a tank containing fuel used by helicopters aboard the destroyer.

"The first flash fire was due to the ignition of a small amount of vapor escaping from the tank through the faulty hatch cover. The vapor, which is believed to have ignited some 10 or 12 feet from the hatch, burned back to the hatch and caused a second flash fire about five seconds later. This in turn caused a fireball to pass through the mess deck."

NO NEGLIGENCE FOUND

The statement said the inquiry board had found no indications of negligence on the part of the ship's personnel either before or after the accident. Neither was there any indication of negligence on the part of naval or civilian personnel who worked on the ship's construction.

"The fault was one of design which survived the normal tests and could not be detected under normal operating conditions. Steps to rectify the fault are within the capabilities of the navy and are now in the process of implementation."

A naval spokesman said it was not immediately known if the same design fault is present in other warships, but said tests are being carried out.

The three men killed in the fire were Able Seaman Thomas S. Pitts, 23, of nearby Dartmouth and Picton, Ont.; Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier of Val d'Or, Que., and Able Seaman Roderick E. Reade of Galt, Ont. Several other men were injured in the accident.

Computer To Deal For Bridge

Computerized bridge anyone?

George Morgan, director of the Victoria chapter of the American Contract Bridge League is preparing local bridge players for a continent-wide 20,000-player bridge game, in which the hands will be dealt by computer.

The cards will be dealt by a San Francisco "brain" at the same hour Friday night to eager players in cities from Victoria to Key West.

The Victoria game will be played at 1012 Douglas begining 7:45 p.m. Players ready to match wits with fellow enthusiasts are welcome to try their skill. There is a $2.00 admission charge, all proceeds going to the ACBL charity foundation.

. . . KIDNAP

booth in the south end of Tacoma, where they said he father to be in a telephone would receive further instructions.

Without contacting authorities, the father drew the money from the bank and drove to the telephone booth at 3 p.m. There he got a call from the kidnappers, who told him to drive immediately to an alley behind a supermarket about 30 blocks away.

He was instructed to leave the money on the seat of his car, get out and go to a phone booth in the front of the market to await a further call.

He did not receive a call and when he returned the money was gone. He had left it in a black valise on the front seat of the unlocked car.

This was about 4 p.m. At 4:05 p.m. Hyde called the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI called the sheriff's office.

Sheriff's detectives and FBI agents were sent to the home to talk to the father and search efforts were begun immediately, Berry said.

About 7 p.m., the parents received a call from a Tacoma attorney, Rush Stauffer. The boy, who knew the Stauffers, had walked to their home from the Tacoma waterfront. He said the kidnappers had let him out of the car about 5 p.m., taping his hands and leaving him in a vacant concrete building.

The kidnappers told the boy "to stay put," the sheriff said.

After young Hyde managed to free his hands from the tape he went to the nearby Stauffer home. He said the two men had not harmed him. The two abductors were described as in their early 30's.

The boy was sleeping at the family home this morning.

Tacoma was the scene of two famous kidnappings about 30 years ago.

George Weyerhaeuser Jr., grandson of the founder of the Weyerhaeuser Co., was abducted in 1935 and returned after payment of $200,000 ransom. His kidnappers were caught later.

Charles Mattson, 10, the son of a physician, was kidnapped in 1936 in what is still an unsolved case. His body was found some weeks after the abduction in a shallow grave south of Everett, Wash.

Crackdown Advised On Chiropractors

QUEBEC (UPI) — More extensive supervision covering chiropracty in Quebec province was advised in a report released Wednesday by Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix of Quebec Superior Court following his one-man investigation into the practice.

The three-volume study, made public by Premier Jean Lesage and Health Minister Eric K. Keirans, called for tighter controls in order to "end the ubuses which frequently occur." It also laid down recommendations regarding the training of chiropractors, licensing, and other aspects of the field.

Mr. Justice Lacroix was named as a one-man royal commission to probe all aspects of the chiropractic field by an order-in-council February, 1963.

"The fundamental idea which emerges from this study is that we believe we must declare that this therapeutic technique should not be abandoned to an uncontrolled practice, as is the case in Quebec right now, either by laisse-faire attitude or by tolerance," the report concluded.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winning pairs of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club's fourth game were:

Section A: Vaughan Thompson and George Morgan, Dick Lipsey and Bill McConnell, Les Isaacson and George Marsden, Joan Smith and Bill Browne-Cave, Anne and Earle Dye, Ida Druce and Sadie McPherson.

Section B: Cam Cameron and Leo Steil, Eric Ware and Harry Brawn, Phil Hagel and Tony Marsh, Minna Loomer and Margaret McAvoy, Jo Waddington and Gwen Graham, Ron Smith and Al Kallberg.

Contract to Be Let On Retarded School

A building contract will be let "almost immediately" for Victoria School for retarded children.

The school, which has been in the planning stages for over a year, is expected to be completed by next spring.

Buildings and grounds committee chairman Peter Bunn said the contract will be let to Herb Bates Construction Ltd., within the $121,000 shareable amount allowed by the education department.

The six-room structure at Victor and Denman Street will incorporate facilities for training retarded children.

Tenders for construction of the school's original design were far above the estimated cost and the amount which the education department would share.

The plans were completely redrawn, but the tenders received were still out of the provincial government's cost-sharing range.

Since then cost-cutting measures have been taken in the materials to be used in the school to bring the cost down to $121,000.

Chuvalo to England?

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — Carl Baker, Jamaican heavyweight champion, has been offered a 10-round bout with Canadian champion George Chuvalo in England Dec. 7, promoter Lucien Chen said Tuesday.

Teachers Take Saanich Offer On Salaries

An interim agreement has been signed by Saanich school teachers accepting a 1966 salary increase averaging 5.7 per cent.

The teachers had first asked for 7.5 per cent average increases and at the time the school board's counter offer was 4.7 per cent increase.

"We have reached an agreement which we feel is satisfactory," said trustee Alex Porteous, chairman of the board's finance committee.

The Sooke School Board and its teachers also expect to reach a settlement at the preliminary stage of negotiations.

Meanwhile, salary negotiations between the Greater Victoria School Board and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association have reached the arbitration stage.

Saanich lawyer K. C. Murphy has already been asked to represent the school board on the three-member arbitration board.

The two parties were far from settlement at the negotiations stage with the teachers demanding 10 per cent increases and the board offering less than five per cent.

December 31 is the deadline for arbitration hearings and awards.

Collision Sends Car Through Fence

A man and wife were taken to hospital Wednesday after their car plowed through two private properties following a collision.

Injured were Arthur Kalb, 72, of 3132 Albina and his wife Florence 65, who were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. Kalb suffered shock and a leg injury and his wife hurt her hand.

Mr. Kalb was driving south on Albina when he was in collision with a car driven east on Gorge by Harold Harcul, 207 Maddock, police said.

The Kalb car veered out of control, hit a parked vehicle and went down the driveway of Alan Parker, 3 Gorge Rd.

It continued through Mr. Parker's yard and smashed through his back fence into the yard of Reginald Neal, 4 Lotus.

Police said the car was damaged heavily.

Space Officials Menaced By Gun-Toter on Airliner

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) An electronics executive and two Gemini space officials including director Chris Kraft disarmed a teen-ager who tried to seize a jetliner over the Gulf of Mexico.

Thomas Robinson, 16, who said he wanted to go to Cuba to help anti-Castro political prisoners, fired a barrage of shots into the deck of the lounge before he was wrestled to the seat Wednesday night 100 miles out of New Orleans. He was carrying two guns.

But the two space officials and a score of other top experts, coming here to check out spacecrafts for the United States' next space flights, escaped without injury.

"We thought all along the shots were blanks," said Paul Haney, voice of the U.S. astronauts, "until somebody pulled back the rug and we counted eight big holes in the metal floor.

"At that point I got a little weak in the knees," he said. "It was one hell of a 25 minutes."

THOMAS ROBINSON

It was the electronics executive, Edward C. Haake of Seabrook, Tex., who actually got the jump on the youth, from Brownsville, Tex., by distracting him with a handful of gold coins.

"I walked through the whole German army in World War Two and I wasn't convinced he was all he was trying to be," said Haake, 46, a decorated B-17 pilot.

Haney was sitting next to Kraft, who directs U.S. astronauts as they circle the globe, when Robinson sat down on the arm of the chair across the isle.

Robinson dropped a newspaper he had wrapped around a .22-calibre automatic, galvanizing the 91 passengers aboard the Los Angeles-to-Miami National Airlines Flight 30.

"He pointed it at Chris," Haney said. "It was only six inches off his jaw."

"What have you got there, boy?" Kraft said

"There was a click which I thought was a cocking action," Haney said. "It did not fire. That's why I thought it was cocking action.

"The kid stood up and backed toward the cockpit door and fired three shots in the floor off the lounge. Then he just stood there for five minutes and then he said:

"'I've got a gun and I'm not afraid to use it.'

"Then he fired three more shots into the floor."

NOT INTERESTED in vacant agriculture portfolio is northern affairs and national resources minister Arthur Laing. "I want to be left where I am," said Laing, who has a university degree in agriculture and is a member of the Agriculture Institute of Canada.

Manager Named

CAMPBELL RIVER — Mike Holmes, 28, formerly of San Francisco has been named manager of the Tyee Plaza Shopping Centre. Preliminary plans call for the addition of some 30,000 squart feet to the present 48,000-square-foot centre which consists of several stores, a supermarket, bank and recreational facilities.

CECIL (PADDY) HEATON DIES AT 87

'Mr. Piano' Has Played His Final Tune

The tall slim man with the mop of bushy hair who delighted generations of Victorians with his piano-playing has passed from the local scene.

Cecil William (Paddy) Heaton died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday night at the age of 87, leaving behind him a host of friends and admirers.

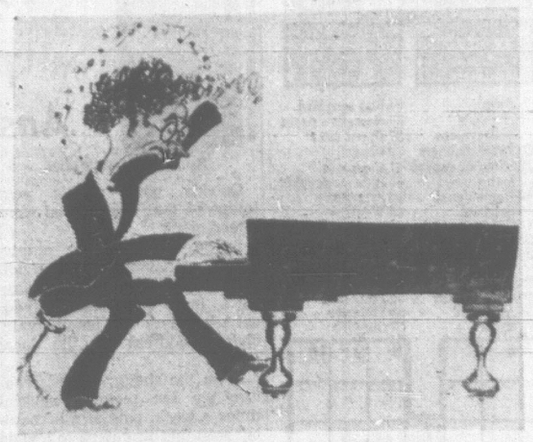

He had a fabulous memory for music and, with his strong lean fingers and deep feeling for melody, he made the piano sing.

Equally at home with classical and popular music, he had a genius for playing almost any melody that was asked of him.

If anyone asked for a tune he didn't know he would ask them to hum it and then, with hardly any hesitation, would reproduce it on the keyboard.

"Paddy was one of the most accomplished pianists I've ever known," Victoria choir leader Frank Tupman said today. "He was a fast sight reader and he played by ear with equal facility."

Born at Hinckley, England, Mr. Heaton came to Victoria in 1911 and from then until 1945 he played in the music department of the David Spencer store (now the T. Eaton Co.).

SKETCH OF AN ACCOMPLISHED MUSICIAN

He never offered a sheet of music to a customer, relying on his own performance of it to effect a sale.

During the '20s and '30s, Mr. Heaton was probably the most popular dance band leader in Victoria. He played at Government House; in the mirrored ballroom at the Alexandra Club (later headquarters for the RCMP); in the Empress Hotel, and in the old K of P Hall at North Park.

He played for dancing at private parties and for private dance clubs and he broadcast his own Christmas request program over local radio stations.

During the Second World War he performed at the Western Music Store on Fort Street operated by Frank Tupman, and was a requested favorite at servicemen's concerts.

Until illness overtook him a few weeks ago, Mr. Heaton walked daily from his hotel apartment on Yates Street to the YM-YWCA, where he played for Archie McKinnon's Keep Fit classes.

He had no prejudice against modern swing music.

"As long as it has rhythm, it is good," he said recently. "That's why I like the Beatles—they've got rhythm."

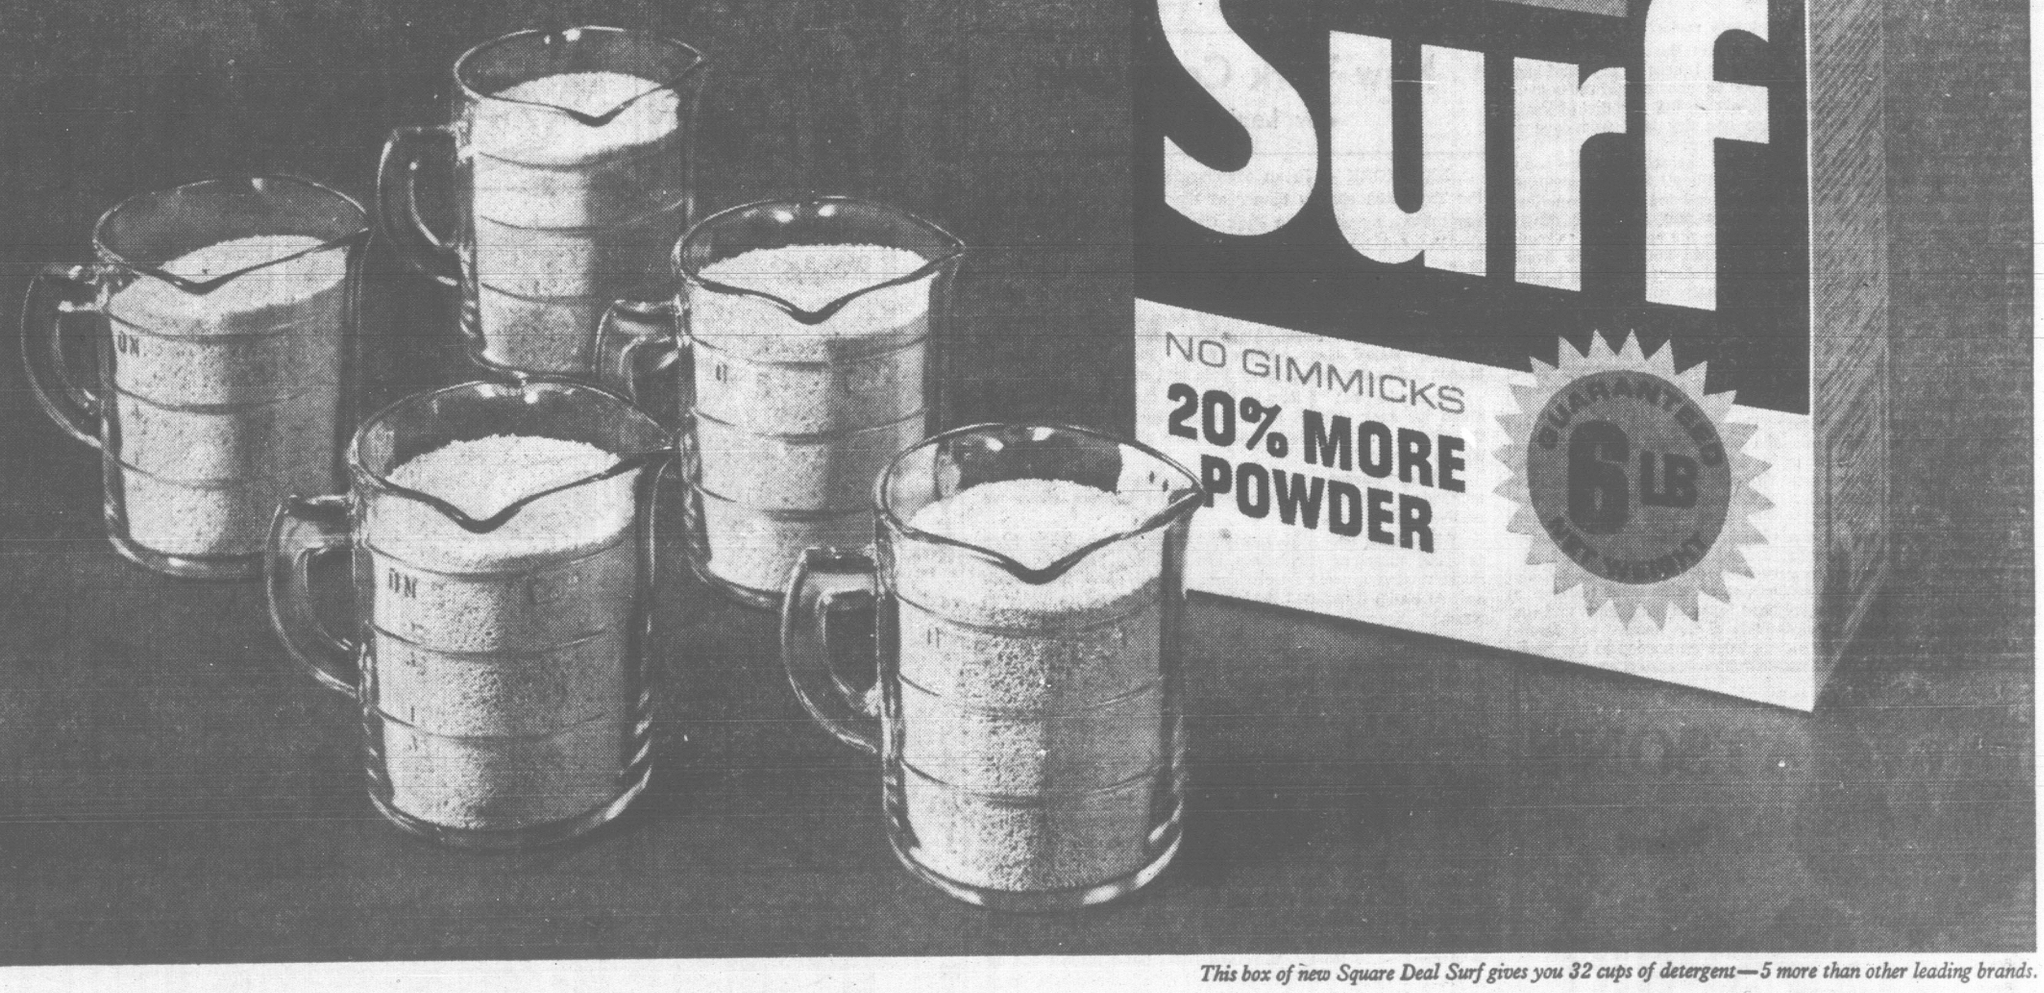

Mr. Heaton lost his wife many years ago, and a son, Roy, also predeceased him. He is survived by a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joyce Heaton of Montreal, and a brother and two sisters in England.

Funeral services will be held in Hayward's Chapel Saturday at 1 p.m.

Power Blackout

COQUITLAM (CP) — About 10,000 Coquitlam residents were without electrical power Wednesday night when a square mile of the municipality was plunged into darkness by a power outage that lasted for four hours. B.C. Hydro officials said a circuit breaker failed.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Jim Toffle, age 9, of Spokane, Wash., for his question:

How do shells get into rocks?

We expect to find shells on the seashore because the shellfish who make them live in the ocean. These shellfish are stodgy stay-at-homes who never leave the water if they can help it; no wonder we are surprised to find their shells in rocks on land hundreds of miles from the sea.

This very same question was asked by one of the world's greatest artists who happened also to be one of the world's greatest brains. He was Leonardo da Vinci of Italy. He lived and created his master works 400 years ago. He painted pictures, carved statues and planned buildings and canals. When an ancient outdoor theatre needed repairs, Leonardo was asked to direct the work. And some of the building stones used to make the benches were embedded with graceful seashells.

Leonardo collected samples and studied the shells in the rocks. He decided that the shells were very old. He thought they were the fossil remains of ancient shellfish, and he was correct. We know now that rocks embedded with shells were formed under the sea. Today we often find them on dry land hundreds or thousands of miles from the ocean, but millions of years ago this dry land was covered by the sea.

These ancient seas were populated with all kinds of shellfish which lived and died in countless numbers and left their crusty shells on the sea floors. Countless plants and animals lived, died and decayed in the ocean, and its salty waters teemed with drifting fragments. The streams and rivers washed silt and muddy sand into the sea, and in time these solid fragments sifted down and settled on the ocean floors.

The crusty old seashells on the ocean floor became buried in layers of mud and sand. Through the long ages the face of the earth changed; sometimes the land and sea, changed places. A stretch of salty water drained away and the old sea became dry lands. Its muddy carpet of silty sand became a hard layer of sandstone, and the shells of the ancient sea dwellers were embedded in the rock.

Teen-Ager Answers Critics

By JACK HUTTON

Quickly now, what's your image of that overworked word —teen-ager?

Is he (or she) the empty-headed, perennially cheerful dolt of the television situation comedy? Is he the serious individual who gives the annual valedictory address at the local school?

Is he the shaggy-haired creature we see pictured several times a week, part of a screaming mob that threatens to invade a rock 'n' roll stage?

Or is he the solemn individual with horn rim glasses who takes care to put on old clothes in the morning in case he joins a sit-in and has to be dragged away by policemen?

Several readers have attempted to define their generation in this column. But none, I believe, have done as well as 17-year-old Bruce Hoare, a grade 12 student who recently felt moved to put pen to paper.

Because I think you'll find it interesting, I'll let you share his letter.

He writes: "I have on many occasions talked to adults (some can be classified that way by age only) who have a great misconception of the Canadian teen-ager."

"They visualize Canadian youth as living in a world of unreality with their rock 'n' roll, pointed shoes and clothes which they recognize as monstrosities.

Are We Wrong?

"But! Are we to blame? Are we wrong?

"It is my opinion—speaking as a teen-ager—that we are seeking individualism and not strict rules of conformity which may or may not have been the social policies of our parents.

"We keep hearing about increased juvenile delinquency. The fact that a dying society is rejecting the younger generation makes some young people rebel against it.

"Some of them, unfortunately, choose a means of breaking the law. And under our judicial system they must be punished.

"But what do we want? We want to be able to make decisions of our own. Many of us have our thinking done for daily by either our parents or through the means of communication.

"So frequently adults distort the good to see only the bad in teen-agers. And why? Is it because that's what they expect and want to see?"

Bruce wonders how many adults either know about or want to know about another side of his generation. He spells it out for them if they don't.

Money Raised

"Do they forget the large sums of money raised for charity in high schools across Canada?

"Do they even think about contributions made by girls in practically every hospital across Canada in the way of nursing and keeping the morale of practically every patient as high as could be hoped for?

"Do they realize that there is little or no racial discrimination among teen-agers?

"Only when adults lose their obscure opinions about teen-agers can they expect a significant percentage of young people to stop rebelling against those opinions."

Well done, Bruce. I suspect by the style of your letter that you may be running for election yourself sometime in the future. And more power to you.

What do the rest of you think of Bruce's strong opinions? Are you the most misunderstood generation in Canada's history?

HOBBY CORNER: If you're worrying about inexpensive Christmas presents, this is the time of year to start raising Christmas flowers. Simply place bulbs in small pots, just below the earth surface; place the pots in a cold, dark location for several weeks; the bulbs will flower soon after they're given away.

We're indebted to Joanne Marshall of Halifax for the idea. She tried it successfully for the last three years.

New York Cavalcade

By Louis Sobol

NEW YORK — In an evening full of night action with the Tay-Sachs charity dinner at the Waldorf's Grand Ballroom honoring comedian Jack Carter, the USO A-Go-Go spearheaded by Joan Crawford and Sammy Davis Jr. at Madison Square Garden and the dinner tribute to veteran director George Abbott at the Americana, we chose to spend the night at the Jack Carter affair as a member of the dais along with Milton Berle, Alan King, Johnny Carson, Allen Ludden, Barry Gray, Peter Falk, Phil Foster, Robert Morse, Julius La Rosa, Jerry Vale and others.

Berle chirped: "I flew in from the Coast for this, not so much for Jack Carter, but I wanted to see the picture on the plane . . . Carter is a man of rare gifts. He never gives one to anyone."

Johnny Carson, commenting on the recent blackout, moaned: "Where were the draft card burners when we really needed them?"

Alan King observed sourly: "While we're sitting here enjoying ourselves our homes are probably being robbed." Berle recited Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and double-talk ace, Al Kelly, translated it—into Yiddish! It was an hilarious night.

Stewart Granger, checking out of the St. Regis Hotel to be driven to the airport for his plane to the coast, was warned at the height of the recent blackout that he was silly to take a chance. He went nevertheless—got stuck at the airport all night.

A goodly crowd turned out for Christine Paolozzi's and Steve Paul's hoedown at The Scene for the Rolling Stones—and pandemonium is the word for the jolly proceedings. Among the gathering were playwrights Tennessee Williams and Edward Albee, French designer Yves St. Laurent, millionaire Huntington Hartford and some gals like Jill Haworth, Monique Van Vooren and Joey Heatherton . . . I thought Julie Newmar, that tall broth of a lass, had gone to the coast for a role in "Three on a Couch" opposite Jerry Lewis—but apparently there was a change of plans. What happened? . . . Rocky Marciano, who hung up his boxing gloves years ago, is more concerned with his non-belligerent post as vice-president of the Trans-Continental Life Assurance Company.

A postscript to the Dorothy Kilgallen story. One of her major disappointments with herself was that she had passed up the chance (while making that round-the-world race against two other reporters) of having an interview with Adolf Hitler. From Pierre Huss, UN correspondent, comes a note in which he clarifies things a bit.

In part he writes: "I was in charge of Central Europe for INS at the time with headquarters in Berlin. The chief of Hearst Services in New York was Joe Connolly. I received instructions to proceed to Frankfort, remain to await the arrival of the Transocean Zepp and make sure Dorothy's rivals in the race would not play dirty. I found that at least one of her rivals had a chartered plane waiting—and the other also had something set up to jump off on the next leg. The regular flight to Rome was due to leave Munich that afternoon — but we still had to get to Munich. I found a German foreign office contact of mine waiting to greet the uncrowned king of Bavaria—Ritter von Epp—and transfer him to a special plane which was to take him to Munich for a car ride to Berchtesgaden where Hitler was loafing with his girl friend, Eva Braun.

"I persuaded von Epp, with the assist of my contact, to give 'the pretty Amerikaner,' Dorothy, a ride on his plane and me with it. In Munich, von Epp urged Dorothy to come along and talk to Hitler. Well despite what she thought—she didn't muff the ball. She understood fully the enormous prestige of the scoop offered her—and we held a 15-minute consultation between us while von Epp's plane was being gassed up. I pointed out to her that her mission was to win the round-the-world-race — and that without the consent of Connolly and her father, Jim Kilgallen, she should not drop out to interview Hitler. She finally—and reluctantly yielded—as she realized it would mean abandoning the race. Later, Dorothy, like a good trouper—always insisted it was her responsibility and not mine — in passing up Hitler—and it bugged her in later years."

French novelist Francoise Sagan, in high spirits on the occasion of her 30th birthday, signalled the start of festivities with a pistol blast into the ceiling of the restaurant where the affair was being held. Gendarmes arrived—and since she had no permit for the gun, a good deal of her birthday was spent, explaining things to the police — who finally decided maybe it was all in good fun.

POLE-TO-POLE FLIGHT

Scientists Get Valuable Data

HONOULU (UPI) — A Boeing 707 jet known as the "Tigers Polecat" completed history's first pole-to-pole, round-the-world flight Wednesday, touching down at Honolulu international airport just 62 hours and 28 minutes after its departure.

The specially equipped Flying Tiger plane carried a crew of 10 and 30 scientists, explorers, fliers and industrialists on the historic flight. The scientists gathered data about radar, cosmic rays, clear air turbulence and the jet stream.

The plane, which flew through storms and clear, sunny weather, departed from Honolulu Sunday in a driving rain. It streaked over the north pole, stopped in London, Lisbon and Buenos Aires, soared over the south pole, refueled in Christchurch, N.Z., and landed in Honolulu under sunny skies.

The actual flight time was 51 hours and 20 minutes. The plane spent 11 hours and 7 minutes on the ground during various stops as a result of unexpected delays.

After a brief meeting here with newsmen, the passengers reboarded the plane and flew to Burbank, Calif.

Capt. Jack L. Martin, flight commander and a pilot for Flying Tiger, called the trip "a very big success."

Willard Rockwell, director of the Rockwell-Standard Corp. of Coraopolis, Pa., and chief sponsor of the adventure, also declared the flight a success.

OFFICE OPENED

Parole Service Gives Hope

A penitentiary inmate once told Rev. J. D. Hobden of Comox that his sentence was unusually severe.

He said he was serving 149 years for conspiracy to rob banks—17 of them. And when he was finished he was faced with a life term for the actual robberies.

Rev. Hobden, organizer of the John Howard Society in 1931 and now retired, said he was able to explain to the man that his 17 sentences of seven years each were concurrent, not consecutive. And his life term meant much less if he behaved and merited parole. And he put new hope in the man's life.

Speaking at the opening of Vancouver Island's first regional parole office here Tuesday, he said the parole service gives new hope to many men and women who wish to reform and start new lives.

Kyle Stevenson, B.C. regional representative of the parole service, its executive director Frank Miller and Tom Hall, director of the penitentiary service joined with Victoria Ald. Alfred Toone and a host of other officials for the opening. The new office is in the Belmont Building.

New VI representative for the parole service is Murray Gaw, who earlier served in this area with the John Howard Society.

Cars Derailed, 9 Hurt

TORONTO (UPI)—Nine people were confined to hospital following the derailment of a five-car CNR passenger train in the west end of the city Wednesday.

Careless Drivers

In traffic court Wednesday:

Robert Ernest Ostergreh, 3144 Milligrove, $40; charged following an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream.

Raymond J. Lasichuk, 7460 Aubrey, $40; an accident on the Pat Bay Highway Oct. 17.

James E. Bertwhistle, 665 Baxter, $40; an accident on Douglas Street at Cadillac on Oct. 16.

Max Miller, 126 Sims, $40; accident on Burnside at Tillicum Oct. 18.

Lew M. Stymest, 1534 West Burnside Road, $35; accident on Douglas Street and Saanich Road Oct. 22.

John L. Dumond, 3037 Albany, $50; accident on Interurban Rd. at Marigold Oct. 10.

Frederic. Badiuk, 1797 Cultra, $50; accident on the Pat Bay Highway near Clairmont Oct. 25.

Peter Allan Smart, 1057 Ellston, $40; accident on Cloverdale Ave. at Oak Street.

Jack Wiebe, Nanaimo, $40; accident on Douglas at Saanich Road Oct. 20.

MAYOR-ELECT of New York John V. Lindsay had his car ticketed for illegal parking Wednesday while he was inside a hotel holding a press conference. The car had a sticker identifying its owner but motorcycle patrolman Thomas Mara said "I ticketed them all."

UNITED APPEAL

Dinner To Honor Donors

Annual awards no host dinner to honor outstanding contributors to the United Appeal will be held at 6 p.m., Dec. 2, in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel.

Last year over 140 campaign awards were presented at the event to top city firms and organizations that had helped make the drive a success.

Eight awards of excellence were given for 100 per cent participation in the drive. This year the number has reached 11 and the campaign has one week to go.

Tax Exemption to End

VANCOUVER (CP)—Washington State Governor Dan Evans said Wednesday his state will probably drop its law exempting visitors from paying sales tax.

COX SLAMS 1966 SCHEDULE

'B.C. Party Pressing '67 Fete'

Senior government policies for 1966 and 1967 Centennial celebrations could catch municipalities in a political squeeze, Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said Wednesday.

He told Victoria, Esquimalt and Central Saanich representatives of the Greater Victoria Confederation Centennial committee he does not agree with the "tourist promotion" being fostered by the federal and provincial governments.

"Why don't we call it a tourist promotion and be honest about it?" he demanded. "I'm not going to run a tourist promotion and call it a Centennial celebration."

The reeve particularly referred to functions being scheduled as part of the two-year program which have nothing to do either with the birthday of B.C. or Canada.

And he disagreed with the emphasis being placed by the B.C. Centennial committee on the 1966 celebration of B.C. Union rather than the following year's national celebration.

INSIGNIFICANT

"The joining of Vancouver Island and the rest of B.C. is rather insignificant compared with the Confederation of Canada," he said.

"It seems the pendulum is swinging too far toward the B.C. celebration, I think, and I was born in B.C."

He said he was told originally by a provincial representative not to get excited: "there are just a few things lined up for '66 and then we'll swing into '67 . . .," he was told.

"As far as I can see now, by the time we get to '67 we're not only going to be swung out, we're going to be wrung out."

Reeve Cox said he did not want to see the municipalities "nutcrackered between the two levels of government."

GOLF EVENTS

Committee chairman Walter Dodsworth confirmed that it was at provincial suggestion that such things as golf tournaments be supported by the local Centennial society.

Ald. Michael Griffin said events had been openly declared as tourist attractions.

It was at his recommendation that a program compiled by a professional firm dropped grants from budget consideration. Sports events, dramatics and other things not directly associated with the centenary may apply for aid.

"I don't think the committee wants to get involved in that sort of thing," he submitted.

"I think we should kick out those things not directly related to the Centennial and give them back to intermunicipal committee," Reeve Cox said.

AMERICAN FIRM

The firm of John B. Rogers Co., an American firm with Canadian branch in Brantford, was engaged for $2,000 to do a preliminary survey and tentative budget covering 1966 and 1967 events. A decision on whether to hire the firm to manage the celebrations will be made next month.

Estimates based on 60 per cent achievement show revenue for the two years including provincial and municipal grants, paid admissions and supplemental income to be $352,901, a firm official said.

Total expenses come to $340,780 including administration, $108,720 in fees for the Rogers Company, feature events and $44,860 in contingencies.

Man Fined $25 For Trespass At Prison Camp

Late one night in June, Cecil Appleby decided to visit some friends in the Gold Creek Prison Camp at Haney.

Instead of filling out the visitor forms at the front door, he and five companions crept around the back way and were later caught by police on the grounds.

In Magistrate's court Wednesday he pleaded guilty to trespassing on the property.

Appleby, now serving a three months sentence for being unlawfully at large, was fined $25 or an additional five days in jail at Wilkinson Road.

Lighting Contest On Again

Victoria Jaycees will again sponsor a Christmas Lighting Contest.

The chamber's brighten-up-Victoria's Christmas season contest runs Dec. 20 to Dec. 23.

Although residents can chose their own themes, there will be five classifications for judging: completely decorated houses, best decorated window or door, best description of the Christmas message, group display of three or more adjacent houses and novice entries.

Eighty-five entries competed last year for the Jaycees' silver awards.

The Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy is being approached in an effort to have the ships of the fleet entered in the competition.

Entry forms can be picked up at the electrical departments of the four largest local department stores.

Mini-Metro Meeting Set Nov. 24

A public meeting will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Mount View Senior Secondary School to discuss the regional services board.

A Junior Chamber of Commerce spokesman said the meeting has been organized because "the issue of the board is perhaps one of the most important dcisions the citizens will have to make in the forthcoming muncipal elections."

Dec. 11, voters in the capital region will be asked to express their opinion on a regional board including services, parks, sewers and hospitals.

Ted Rashleigh, executive director of the Community Planning Association of Canada (B.C. division) will moderate a panel composed of Hugh R. Stephen, candidate for city alderman, P. B. Blewett, assistant administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital, Allan Cox, Reeve of Oak Bay, and Dan Campbell, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs.

The meeting is sponsored by the capital region branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada, the Saanich information committee, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association and the ratepayers' associations of Deep Cove, Elk Lake and Cadboro Bay.

Censure Motion Defeated

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor government survived a Conservative motion of censure of its economic policies Wednesday night by 12 votes in the House of Commons.

The Labor party has a majority of two seats in the Commons, but Liberal party members abstained in the vote, giving the government the extra margin.

Reginald Maudling, former Conservative chancellor of the exchequer, accused the Labor government of making "vague promises about something to be done in the future, but nothing has been done."

Labor's Economics Minister George Brown replied:

"I have nothing but contempt for the idiots, the gigglers and the sneerers in a field in which real men are trying hard."

The government defeated the censure motion 280 to 268.

Smokers Face Greater Threat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two professors said Tuesday smokers are in greater danger from a disease called emphysema than they are from the more publicized lung cancer.

Dr. B. J. Sproule and Dr. J. P. Wyatt of the Universities of Alberta and Manitoba respectively said emphysema occurs more frequently than lung cancer and causes about the same number of deaths.

"The main difference is that while cancer is usually localized in one lung and results in a quick death, emphysema can result in a slow insidious death over a number of years." Smoking is the major cause of the disease, he said.

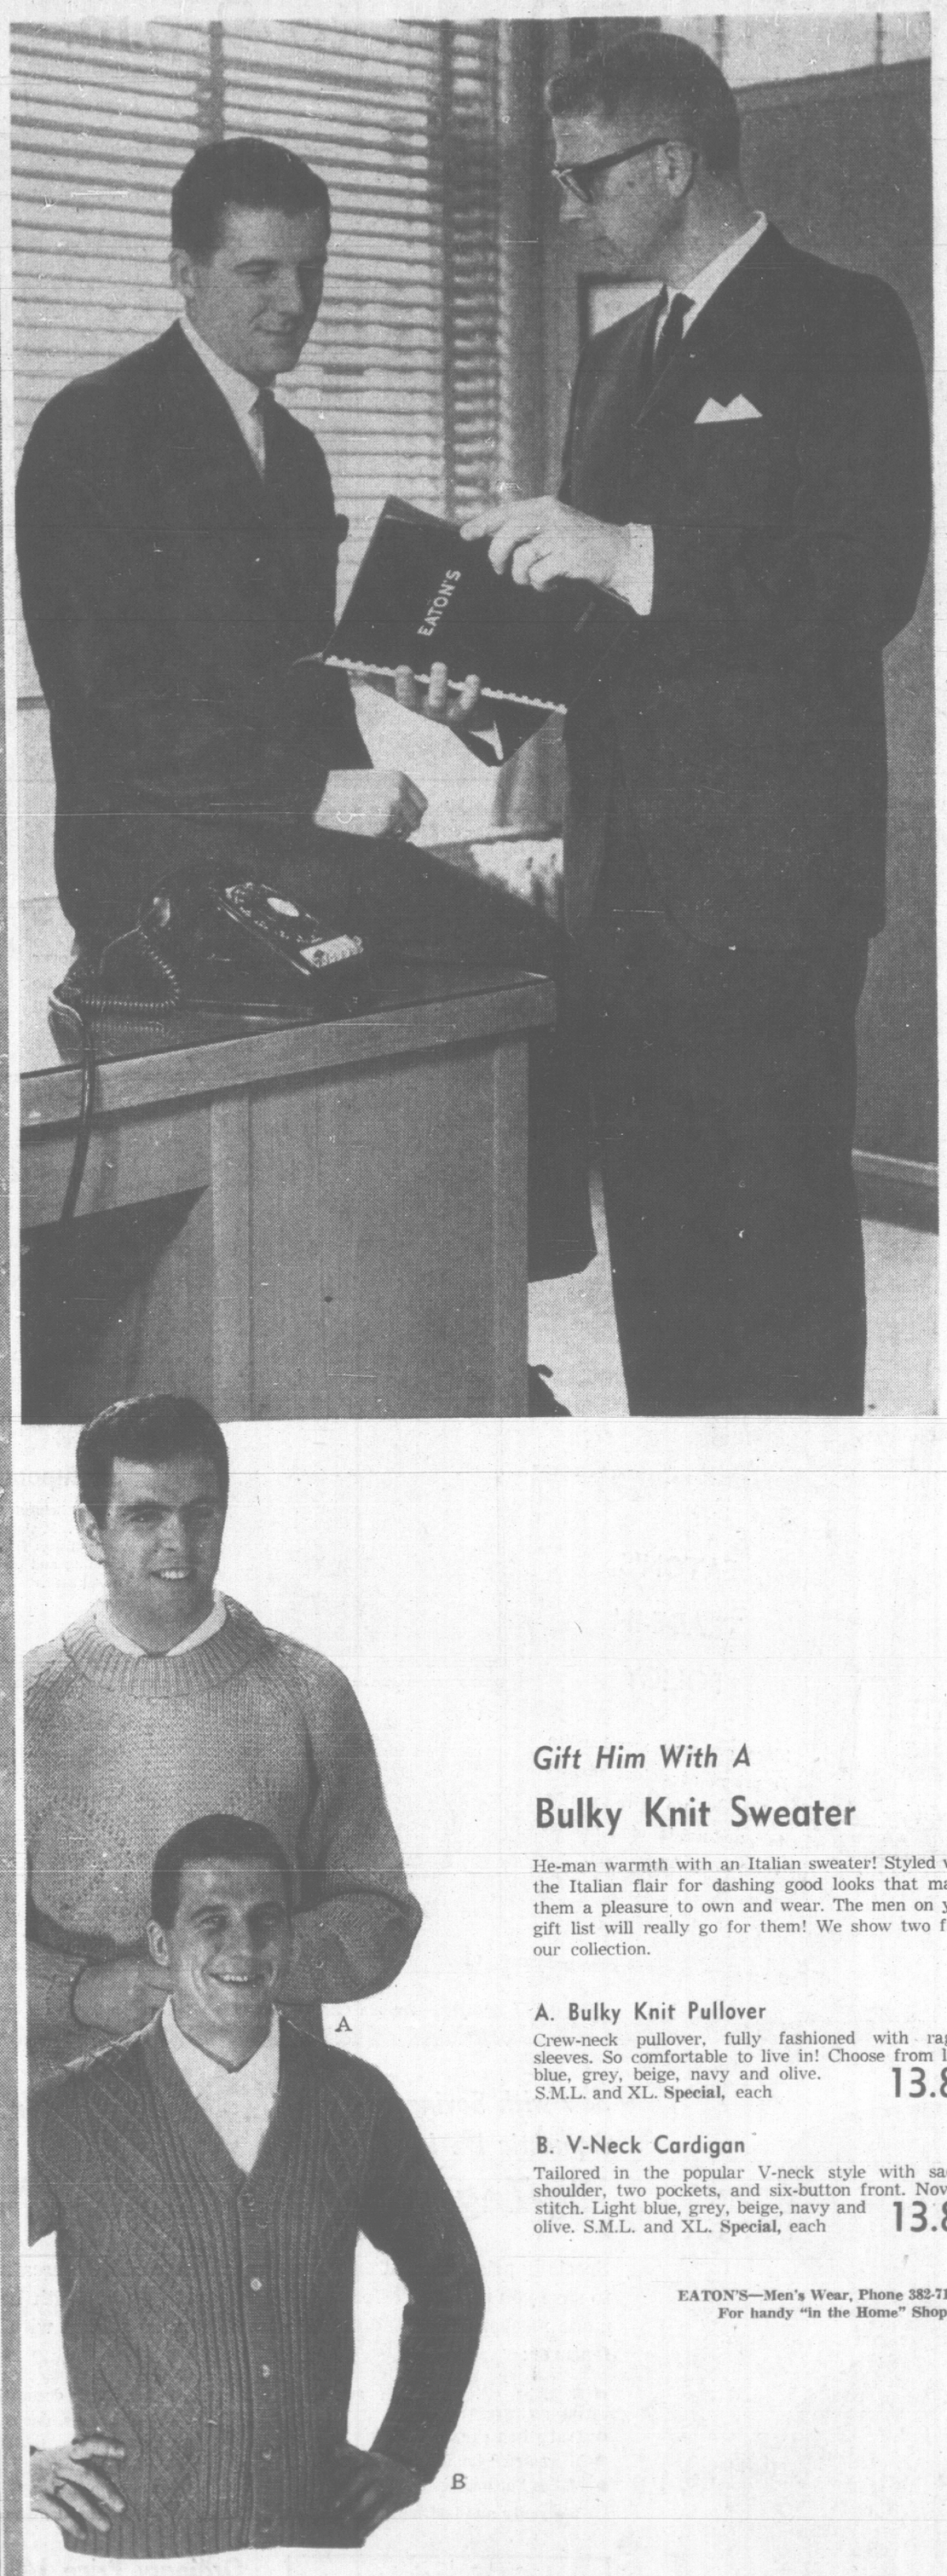

Dr. Sproule said emphysema is a chronic disease that destroys lung tissue and leaves the organs filled with air. Advance of the disease could be halted but treatment could last as much as 20 years.

Power Pole Hit, 2 People Taken To Hospital

Two people were taken to hospital Wednesday night when a car smashed into a power pole on the Pat Bay highway opposite Beaver Lake turnoff.

Driver David Arskine, Drake Hotel, suffered head injuries but was released after treatment.

His passenger, Sharon Zpoyousyky, 529 Constance, suffered a broken arm and was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mediation Starts In Oil Dispute

Peterson Consults All Sides

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson today was optimistic that striking oil workers and their employers will sit down together for peace talks.

He told reporters this morning, "We had a meeting Wednesday with the union and a meeting is taking place this morning with the employers."

Asked if both sides had agreed to sit down at the same table, Mr. Peterson replied, "There is no problem in that respect at the moment."

The minister said the threat of a general strike in support of the oil workers is receiving strong public opposition.

PUBLIC OPPOSED

He said officials of his labor department Tuesday night and all day Wednesday monitored all "open line" public opinion programs by Vancouver and Victoria radio stations. The public appears deeply opposed to a general strike, he said.

In response to Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's denial that the NDP had spurred the threat of a 48-hour general strike, the minister said Mr. Strachan protested too strongly —raising suspicion he was involved.

Mr. Strachan had called Mr. Peterson "immature" for contending the strike threat was NDP-inspired. The opposition leader said Mr. Peterson was obviously over-burdened because he held two portfolios (education and labor) and demanded he resign one of them.

The general strike call came Wednesday from the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour. It brought immediate response from Premier Bennett.

NO REPLY

He appealed for cancellation of plans for a general work stoppage but until now, the union officials have mdae no reply. The strike is set for Thursday and Friday next week.

The premier said such a stoppage would harm not only industry, but all working people in the province. He said he hoped new conciliation moves would solve the dispute which began Sept. 17, initially involving only the British American Oil Company and the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, CLC.

Picket lines later were extended to Imperial Oil and Pacific Petroleum facilities.

Mr. Bennett said he had not considered calling a special emergency session of the legislature.

"I don't think it will come to a crisis," he stated, at a Wednesday press conference.

DO RIGHT THING

"I think it will be solved. I have great confidence in people doing the right thing."

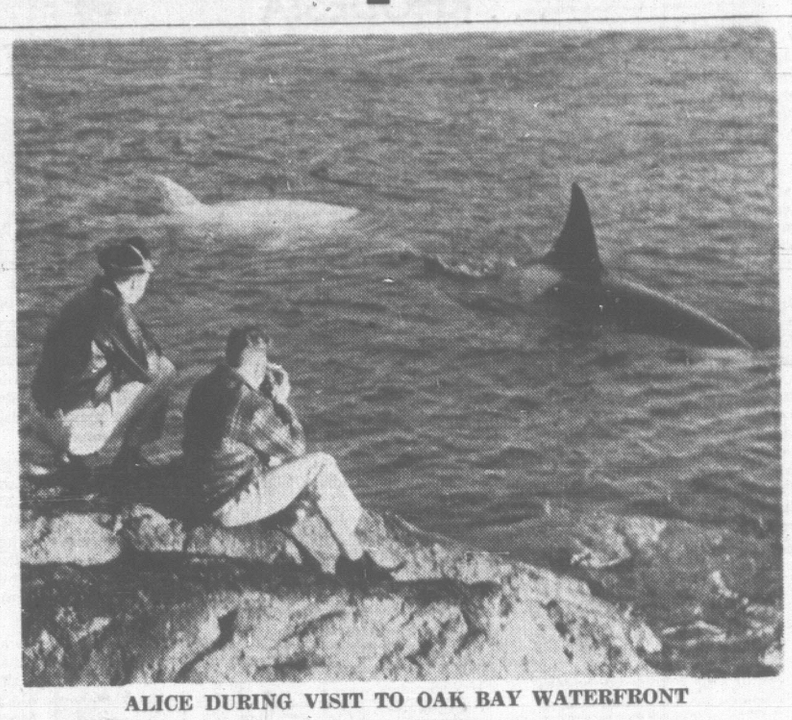

George Johnston, chairman of the strike co-ordinating committee of the labor federation, said the work stoppage is intended as a demonstration of labor's solidarity in support of the strike by oil workers.

Attorney-General Bonner said the move could cost $20,000,000.

Mr. Johnston described Mr. Peterson's statement about NDP involvement as "utter nonsense."

IS ALICE NOW A STEAK ON SOME RUSSIAN PLATE?

By BOB DONAHUE

Have the Russians caught our Alice?

The possibility was raised Wednesday when the Soviet news agency Tass said in a brief report that a 36-foot white whale had been caught by a Russian ship in the North Pacific.

Alice is a white killer whale which has been spotted at various points around Vancouver Island and in the Queen Charlote Islands since 1947.

At the present time a large Russian fishing fleet is operating near the Queen Charlottes.

A spokesman for the fisheries department in Vancouver, which has been keeping close tabs on the Russians, could not confirm whether the Russians in the Queen Charlottes had caught the whale.

"There are no whaling ships in their fleet," he said, "but that is not to say they couldn't have caught it in a net."

He said a Russian whaling fleet visited these waters early last summer, but they generally operate in the Gulf of Alaska and the Bering Sea.

Dr. Clifford Carl of the provincial museum has been keeping close watch on Alice and in 1960 he published a paper entitled the Albino Whales of B.C. which outlined the various sightings since 1947.

Alice has been sighted on both sides of Vancouver Island at Crofton, Port Hardy, Nootka Sound on the West Coast and around the Queen Charlotte Islands.

She was seen off the west coast of the Island near Tofino less than two months ago and a few days prior to that she was spotted in Oak Bay.

Dr. Carl said most reports of the white whale would indicate that there is only one in this area.

Alice is usually accompanied by two other normal colored whales and the three are believed to travel as a family group.

U.S. LOSS HEAVY

Red Ambush Rips Battalion

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. cavalrymen battled North Vietnamese troops on the slopes of Chu Pong Mountain today for the fifth consecutive day despite a Communist ambush in which both sides suffered major losses.

By SIMON DRING

CHU PRONG FOOTHILLS (Reuters)—An American airmobile battalion, hammered in a ferocious ambush Wednesday afternoon—apparently the worst of the South Vietnamese War—today regrouped in these hills and began flying out its dead and wounded.

After a three-day battle a mile or so further south, elements of a North Vietnamese regiment hit the U.S. troops as they moved out of the densely-wooded Ia Drang Valley to set up a new helicopter landing site.

American losses were believed to be heavy in some units of the battalion, but no U.S. casualties were announced in accordance with security regulations.

(Associated Press photographer Richard Merron reached the remnants of the battalion and reported that dozens of dead Americans lay beside North Vietnamese bodies and wounded Americans crowded first aid stations.)

In Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman said the cavalrymen counted at least 300 North Vietnamese bodies and the figure was still rising. Over - all casualties for the Americans were said to be "moderate."

DESTROY FIVE PLANES

Elsewhere, in South Viet Nam, Viet Cong battalions destroyed five U.S. spotter planes and inflicted heavy casualties on Vietnamese rangers defending the Tan Hiep airfield 35 miles southwest of Saigon. A U.S. adviser said 28 Viet Cong bodies were found.

PLEIKU, South Viet Nam (AP)—Dozens of dead Americans lay beside North Vietnamese bodies in the Ia Drang Valley and wounded Americans crowded aid stations in Pleiku today following a Communist ambush of a battalion of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.

"We were walking along at the centre of the battalion and we started getting fired on all of a sudden," said a survivor of the ambush, Staff Sgt. Miguel Seise of Augusta, Ga.

"It was coming from everywhere—the ground, the trees. Suddenly, everyone around me was getting hit and dying.

"I could hear screams all around me, all over the place. We fought and fought for what seemed hours. But it was no good.

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Henry Agard Wallace, U.S. vice-president in the Roosevelt administration, two time cabinet member, and unsuccessful third party candidate for the presidency, died today in hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

For 15 years, Wallace was one of the most controversial figures in American political life, beloved by new deal proponents of social welfare for the common man and berated by economic conservatives.

He served Roosevelt as secretary of agriculture from 1933 to 1940, was elected vice-president in 1941, and was Harry Truman's secretary of commerce in 1945-46. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency on the progressive ticket in 1948.

Since that time Wallace has lived quietly as a gentleman farmer.

INVOLVE VALIDITY OF E AND N ACT

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a court battle launched by a giant forest company against the government's tax branch likely will turn out to be "one of the biggest cases in British Columbia's legal history."

He was referring to a writ filed Wednesday in Vancouver Supreme Court by MacMillan, Bloedell and Powell River Co., which ultimately will involve hundreds of millions of dollars in provincial tax assessments on the huge Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land belt covering the centre of Vancouver Island.

Both sides feel the suit will take two or three years and will wind up before the Supreme Court of Canada for final determination.

TEST VALIDITY OF ACT

Although the company's argument is advanced on a narrow and technical point, Mr. Bonner said it would involve the validity of the special E and N Land Belt Act which was formulated 15 years ago after a court reference went all the way to the Privy Council in London.

"The importance of this case will be of a general nature," Mr. Bonner said, indicating its ramifications would be widespread through the province's land taxation laws.

The civil court action is expected to result in indefinite postponement of a Dec. 6 court of revision appeal hearing in Victoria law courts ordered last week by the provincial cabinet to hear the company's argument against a $34,167,936 assessment on 39,000 acres in the Strathcona land district.

WAIVE PROCEEDINGS?

Victoria lawyer Allan Baker, QC, is chairman of the three-man revision tribunal and he is expected to be asked to waive the proceedings in favor of the court action.

If he does, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria—appointed to represent the government at the court of revision—likely will be appointed as the government's chief lawyer in the court case.

Charles Brazier, QC, of Vancouver, filed the writ contending the $8,541,984 bonus tax levied

STRIKE BY NEGROES HITS RAILWAY YARDS

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (Reuters)—More than 2,000 Negro railway men walked out of the Rhodesian Railways locomotive and marshalling yards in Bulawayo today in a wildcat strike protesting against Rhodesia's seizure of independence from Britain.

Several departments of the railways, jointly owned and operated by Rhodesia and neighboring Zambia, were forced to close down by the walkout.

It followed an attempt Wednesday to organize a strike which won only minimum support, when about 40 Negro railwaymen went home.

'WON'T CO-OPERATE'

Negro Party Defies Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — The all-Negro opposition United Peoples party warned Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith today that it will have no part in furthering what it considers his illegal seizure of independence from Britain.

The party's stand was made clear in a statement issued by its leader, Josiah Gondo.

A party statement said: "The United Peoples Party has already condemned the unilateral declaration of independence as illegal. There can therefore be no question of the party sitting down with Smith and his colleagues to discuss ways and means of furthering the illegal action in any way. This is the attitude which the official and loyal Opposition will adopt in Parliament."

Smith has repeatedly claimed that he had the backing of the Negroes for his unilateral declaration of independence.

Gondo's party has 10 members in Parliament which is due to meet Nov. 25.

AFFIRM LOYALTY

There are 65 seats in Parliament which is dominated by Smith's all - white Rhodesia Front party. There are five independent members — three African Negroes, one Asian and one white.

Rhodesians queued up today to affirm their loyalty to the Queen in two opposing and conflicting ways.

At Government House, where Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs is still in residence despite a Rhodesian government pinprick campaign apparently designed to force him out, a steady stream of people came to sign the visitor's book.

And at the legislative assembly, in the centre of the city,

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO SPEND HIS $135,000

BUDAPEST (AP) — A Hungarian has just won 1,500,000 forints ($135,000) in the state lottery, and he is at a loss about what to do with his money.

He placed an advertisment in a local newspaper, asking for someone to give him ideas on how to spend his money in a country with state-run economy.

Figyeloe, a leading economic journal, reported on the man's plight. His name was not disclosed. Such winners usually wish to remain anonymous for fear of harassment of women making offers of marriage.

U.S. FORCE UNAWARE COMRADES IN TROUBLE

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist North Vietnamese troops cut down U.S. cavalrymen on the slopes of Chu Pong Mountain while potential American reinforcements sat by unaware they were needed, frontline dispatches reported today.

Brig. Gen. Richard G. Knowles, commanding general of Operation Silver Bayonet, said no one informed division headquarters of the losses his men were taking.

KIDNAPPED BY TWO MEN

WAITING FOR SCHOOL BUS

Father Pays $45,000 Ransom to Free Boy

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A 13-year-old Tacoma boy, son of a wholesale grocery company executive, was kidnapped by two men Wednesday, held for nine hours and released unharmed after payment of $45,000 ransom.

Sheriff Jack Berry disclosed the kidnapping today after Charles Hyde Jr., was back safely with his family.

The ransom was paid by Charles Hyde Sr., president of the West Coast Grocery Co. here.

Berry said the boy was kidnapped while waiting for a school bus to take him to Charles Wright Academy, a private school. Two men drove up in a car while the boy was standing at a bus stop near his home.

The man on the passenger side of the car got out, took the boy by the arm and told him they were going to drive him to school. Then the man led the boy into the back seat.

The sheriff said the boy was told to lie down on the floor. Then the second man got in with him and put a blanket over him. They drove around for some time and later put tape over the boy's eyes, the sheriff said.

Berry said the elder Hyde received a telephone call about two hours later, at 10 a.m., from the kidnappers at his office. He was told to draw $45,000 from the bank in $5, $10, $20 and $100 bills.

The kidnappers put the boy on the telephone to say hello to his father. They told the

BASTION GROUP ON TOUR

Experts at Unpacking

With two weeks of touring chalked up, and one to go, Bastion's touring company headed up-Island this week taking scenes from Shakespeare to Nanaimo, Alberni, Chemainus, Qualicum Beach and Courtenay schools.

Thousands of young people have seen Bastion's all-new fall '65 program, which includes excerpts in modern dress from "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet," and songs by Don McManus.

The company also played at HMCS Naden, to members of the Branch Officers' Training Course, and junior and senior matriculation students.

The four touring actors and actresses Jennifer Chaster, Barbara Dunn, Lawrence Eastick and Don McManus, and stage manager Paul Smitz, travel with a truck containing set and costumes; they now have unloading, setting up their portable stage, and reloading, down to a fine art.

Costume changes for each of the excerpts (the full program consists of scenes from "As You Like It," "Macbeth," "Julius Caesar," "Henry the Fifth" and "Romeo and Juliet") are made behind a screen which also serves as backdrop for the stage levels.

GAY PARTY AT WHITE HOUSE

Margaret Whirls With LBJ

WASHINGTON (CP) — Princess Margaret dined and danced Wednesday night at a candlelit White House party, fox-trotting with a briskly-convalescent President Johnson in the official climax of her four-day visit to the capital.

After another round of sightseeing today, the princess and the Earl of Snowdon leave for New York and the last leg of a three-week American trip.

The gay festivities also marking the Johnsons' 31st wedding anniversary, went on until 2 a.m. and the frug and waltz shared equal billing.

The princess and her husband enjoyed themselves "wildly," said lady-in-waiting Elizabeth Cavendish.

There were 140 guests for dinner and another 30 were added for dancing at the private formal affair.

JOHNSON TOASTS QUEEN

President Johnson mixed advice for marital happiness with tribute to 150 years of friendship with Britain in toasting the Queen.

Princess Margaret in a low voice reiterated thanks for American warmth and entertainment in toasting the president.

Towering over Princess Margaret—he is six feet, two inches tall and she just over five feet—the president escorted her to a cabaret-style ballroom for dancing, launched to the tune Everything's Coming up Roses.

Lord Snowdon escorted Lady Bird Johnson.

The couples reversed for The Anniversary Waltz played to mark the Johnsons' marriage milestone.

On the dance floor, the princess drew the line at the frug and most other fast steps but she joined onlookers, smiling and applauding, for performances rendered by couples including Lynda Baines, 21, and Luci Baines, 18, the president's daughters.

Lord Snowdon danced everything from a dixieland rendition of 12th Street Rag to a popular Beatle number entitled Hard Day's Night.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1965 —PAGE 25

Second Section
Pages 25-44

Arthur Mayse

We have with us in Victoria today a hot-potato situation which is going to cause us more future trouble than even our primitive sewage disposal methods if we fail to take it firmly in hand.

This is the advance of the high-rise, and I think we had better lose no time deciding, on a peninsular rather than a strictly municipal basis, just where these vertical housing developments do or don't belong.

The thing to remember is that we are dealing with an un-natural phenomenon which is certain to more than change the configuration of our skyline.

It could also alter the character of our city, and in areas where high-rise apartment buildings have risen, this fact is already apparent.

It stands to reason, then, that any high-rise application to come before any enabling group should be considered with an eye not only to local impact but total effect. In this matter, we must be our brother's keeper.

I think our city and municipal governments could, to everyone's advantage, lean more heavily than they presently do upon a body admirably equipped to aid them in their land use decisions.

This is the seven-member Capital Region Planning Board of B.C., on which municipalities, city and provincial government are represented.

The planning board, which operates in a capital region of 214 square miles and 165,000 population, has in its service a permanent technical staff, and to its credit, land use proposals which when implemented have proved entirely successful. It is also well along with a comprehensive and forward-ranging development plan for Victoria district.

This plan has so far found only minority acceptance by the municipalities

Ruling our own yard is all very well in principle, but we can't afford to ignore the general state of the street. With this in mind, I think we court trouble through further hodge-podge handling of high-rise applications.

Better if these could be frozen until all who deal with them are equipped to act from certain knowledge rather than guesswork based on incomplete and parochial observation.

Certainly we would lose nothing by delay! The only possible losses would be suffered by the promoters, most of them from off-Island, who see this favored peninsula as an area to be cashed in on.

Any doubtful benefits these operators may bestow on us are incidental and accidental, and entirely remote from their main purpose, which is to rake in as large a pot as possible.

It is easier to propose where the high-rise shouldn't go than where it should.

To my way of thinking, it has absolutely no place in any area already committed to single-unit homes; although an exception might be made where a sector has patently outlived its usefulness for this purpose.

Such areas occur on a city's downtown outskirts, and on these, the high-rise might have a revitalizing effect.

But any argument which would intrude it into a healthy suburban area is specious, and the local government which permits such encroachment is betraying those who have bought land, built homes and put down roots.

No promised prettification or gift of park acres changes the picture. To the home-owning community, the high-rise is an enemy which threatens its chosen way of life.

I think, too, that we must deal in long-range planning where a university is concerned—especially a new and expanding one with its land needs not yet defined.

In 1963, Saanich Council voted down a re-zoning application from interests which sought to build a high-rise on a Cadboro Bay tract in the university precint. To the new application made this fall, I trust the present council will give the same answer.

The battle of the high-rise is going to be both long and rough, and I don't think we can afford to lose these opening skirmishes.

FORGET PAST, CHURCH OFFICIAL URGES

'Worry Sends Millions to Hospital'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Remorse breeds sickness.

"It is the most poisonous thing in our bodies," says 83-year-old Lowell Fillmore, head of the Unity School of Christianity, now visiting here from his headquarters at Lee's Summit, Missouri.

"Millions of people are in hospital because of worry over past mistakes. Yet the person who committed those mistakes is not the same person today. The human body renews itself constantly, and so does the human spirit.

"That is why remorse has no place in our concept of Christianity."

Mr. Fillmore is the eldest son of Charles and Myrtle Fillmore, who founded the Unity School of Christianity in Kansas City in 1889. It has grown from one small building to a huge estate, complete with office buildings, prayer chapels, motels and cottages and a 1,300-acre farm.

POWER, MERCY

"We have no membership as such," Mr. Fillmore said. "But we have millions of followers in most countries of the world. We believe in healing by prayer and by expelling negative thoughts from our consciousness.

"All this is possible if you have faith in God's power and mercy."

Mr. Fillmore says his mother lived 50 years after doctors declared she was dying from tuberculosis. His father was lame and wore a raised boot because one leg was shorter than the other.

"Both cured themselves by prayer. My father actually lengthened his withered leg, which had not grown since he was 12.

BIBLICAL PAST

"People think these miracles belong to the Biblical past, but they are just as possible today as they were then."

Mr. Fillmore admitted that the Unity School of Christianity is sometimes associated with Christian Science. The difference, he says, is that Christian Science is an organized church, whereas the Unity movement is largely composed of people who still belong to orthodox churches.

"We hold spiritual retreats at Lee's Summit every summer and fall," he said, "and they are attended by people of many faiths, including Roman Catholic nuns and orthodox Jews. "Christianity, as we see it, embraces all religions and all people."

CLEAR COMPLEXION

Spry and energetic, with quick blue eyes and clear complexion, Mr. Fillmore has been a vegetarian since he was 15. But many of his friends and followers eat meat.

"We do not lay down rules—you have to determine what is best for yourself. Some of our followers eat fish but not meat. It is a matter of individual need."

Mr. Fillmore believes long life is available to all who practice prayer and "right thinking." His father lived to be 93; his brother, W. Rickert Fillmore, was 81 when he died last July.

"Mother would never give her age, but she lived 50 years after she was given up by doctors as incurable."

Mr. Fillmore spoke at Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street, Wednesday night.

10 Acres Bought As Oak Bay Park

Last Space Available In District

Oak Bay municipality has purchased land now under lease to Victoria Riding Academy for park purposes.

Reeve Allan Cox said today it is the last major tract of land available in the municipality.

The land—just under 10 acres—was purchased for $112,500. Payment will be made in five installments ending in 1969.

The municipality has an option to take possession of the treed portion of the land which adjoins the Henderson Park area.

PREPARE MOVE

This will give riding academy operator Don Carley opportunity to lease the land for an additional three years and prepare for a move, the reeve said.

The purchase was made "to round out our parkland," said the reeve.

He said there are no plans for the parkland yet, but Oak Bay recreation commission and a special committee will soon be working on them.

The purchase price was "a lot of money but it is a bargain at current land prices," the reeve commented.

He added municipal park plans would be "cramped" if the purchase was not made.

MANY TREES

"The area is heavily treed and we want to preserve some of this."

He said the site was "a natural" because the land is not near any residential area.

It is bounded on the north by Cedar Hill Cross Road, on the west by Henderson Park, on the south by Uplands golf course and University of Victoria to the east.

The reeve added he was "sorry to see the riding academy go," but its operations had "become restricted because of the presence of the university."

VICTORIA'S LAST STAGE had a sorry send-off Wednesday night. Vandals dragged the historic buggy to the water's edge and tipped it in the Gorge. Part of a museum collection in the old Craigflower school, the stage was fished out this morning little the worse for wear. Two seats were missing but they are expected to turn up at low tide. The stage, owned by the pioneer Parker family at Rocky Point, travelled daily between Victoria, Metchosin and Rocky Point from 1905 to 1910. It has been a feature of the museum for the past 20 years. Helping Children Is My Whole Life, Says Untiring Lotta

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

"I adore flowers almost as much as I adore children," said the small, red-haired lady with a smile.

Because she likes flowers, masses of them given her by friends accompany Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova wherever she goes.

But her love of children is the reason Dr. Hitschmanova travels over 50,000 miles a year as executive director and driving force behind the Unitarian Service Committee.

Confident and untiring, she arrived in Victoria Wednesday for a three-day stopover to launch the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund.

Armed with a folio of pamphlets and statistics about her thousands of charges across the ocean, she comes to request help from anyone and everyone who will listen to her.

"People call them 'my children'," she says with a smile.

And in a sense they are hers. Many of the youngsters are orphans, and the USC aid they get means everything to them.

And no one could care more passionately about the youngsters than Dr. Hitschmanova.

"I believe in service," she says simply, explaining her 20 years of work with the USC.

"I have been hungry myself, and I know how much it hurts," she continues. "So I have given my life to helping children."

NATIVE COUNTRY

After escaping from her native country and leaving occupied Europe, she arrived in Canada when the war was still in progress.

From there, her story is the story of the Unitarian Service Committee, whose aid has gone to needy persons regardless of creed, nationality, color or caste for over 20 years.

Dr. Hitchsmanova herself, trained in journalism and social work, has received the highest honors from countries which have received USC aid.

She wears them proudly on the jacket of her tailored green USC uniform.

PUBLICITY

But she shuns the personal publicity which so often accompanies her work.

"I hate it," she stated simply.

In her USC work, Dr. Hitschmanova believes she has been given one of the greatest responsibilities imaginable.

Despite the weight her work must carry, the quick smile is never absent long beneath the red curls tucked into a peaked green cap.

HUNGRY SMILE

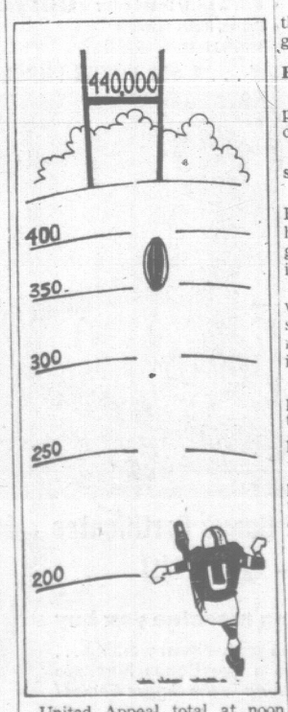

"I can't smile. Not with this poor child," she said, pointing to the photo of a hungry Korean which she held.

But thinking no doubt of the help that is brought to him and many others through her work, she brightened.

And the smile came back.

Dr. Hitschmanova speaks at 7:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, 680 Courtney St. Her topic is USC Flashback on Two Decades, and her talk will be accompanied by slides.

Help Score 'Fair Share' Goal

United Appeal total at noon today stood at $384,397—87.5 per cent of the goal.

Although the football is slowly creeping up the scale, it is still a touch-and-go matter whether it will go over the top by the Appeal deadline next Wednesday.

Big boost to the total was given Wednesday by an anonymous donor, who contributed $500 to the Appeal booth at Douglas and Yates.

The single donation, received by CNIB workers, manning the booth, pushed to $4,000 the total donated at the downtown centre this year.

Average contributions at the booth have been $200 a day.

Proceeds of a tea and bazaar at Sandringham Private Hospital, amounting to $179.10, were also donated to the Appeal

Calgary Man Recommended As Top Planner

Appointment of a Calgary man as head of Victoria's new department of planning and community development was expected to be ratified today by city council.

Geoffrey J. Greenhalgh, 42, will take over the newly-created post of community development director Jan. 17 at a salary of $13,200 per year. He will also get $750 moving allowance to bring his family and effects to Victoria.

Mr. Greenhalgh is English by birth and training, a graduate in architecture from University of Manchester and holder of the equivalent of a master's degree in city planning from the same university.

Since 1960 he has been deputy director of planning for the city of Calgary. Before that he served as deputy director and director of Regina planning.

EXPERIENCE

He also has working experience in the British Isles.

City manager Dennis Young reported Mr. Greenhalgh's experience in Canada has been directly in the areas for which he will be responsible in Victoria.

Recommendation of his appointment was made by a special committee which held several meetings and interviews with candidates before making a final decision Wednesday.

Committee members included advisory planning commission chairman J. R. Genge and Anthony Roberts, director of Capital Region Planning Board, besides personnel chairman Ald. Michael Griffin and other members of city council.

Forty-three applicants bid for the job; locally, from eastern Canada and the U.S., and from the western states.

SOME FUNCTIONS

The new department will combine some functions now performed by the engineer's department, some held in abeyance since the collapse of a special projects section last summer, and some new long-range planning objectives.

It is the first department of its kind in the capital region.

Planning functions were reorganized after resignation of special projects director Rodtrick Clack and members of his staff, and after planning administration was criticized by Victoria members of the Community Planning Association of Canada.

More Companies Incorporated Here

Business still is booming in B.C. if the incorporation of new companies is an accurate indicator, Attorney-General Robert Bonner reported today.

He said the registrar of companies in his department processed 343 new B.C. company registrations last month compared with 307 a year ago. There also was one more outside-B.C. company registered here than the 30 recorded in October of 1964.

The number of non-profit societies registered was the same, at 18, and a co-operative society was registered as well.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMC Ships Saskatchewan and New Glasgow on one-day exercises; HMCS Sussexvale arriving in San Diego today; St. Croix arrives here Friday at 2 p.m.; HMCS Margaree leaves San Diego Saturday at 2 p.m. en route to Balboa canal zone.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell due in Victoria 3 p.m. today; Estevan northbound in Georgia Strait; Sir James Douglas southbound in Georgia Strait; Ready in Bamfield patrol area; Racer in Sandhead patrol area; St. Catharines in port; Stonetown on Station Papa.

TOPICS of the DAY

A documentary film on the life of President John F. Kennedy, "Years of Lightning, Day of Drums," will be shown next Wednesday at the University of Victoria.

The film, produced by the U.S. Information Services, runs 90 minutes and is in color.

It will be open to the public and no admission will be charged when it is shown at 8 p.m. in the Young Building auditorium of the Lansdowne campus.

Clumsy Thieves Foul Up Break-In At Lumber Yard

Thieves broke into Doman's Lumber Co., 280 Bay St., overnight but "a very poor attempt was made on the safe," city police said today.

The culprits broke the dial off the company safe trying to open it. When this failed they tried to cut the hinges with a hacksaw.

They also ransacked the offices looking for petty cash.

Police obtained papers and glass fragments which they are checking for fingerprints.

Labor Bureau Urged For Working Women

The B.C. government today was asked to create a women's bureau within the provincial labor department.

The request was made by a delegation of the Business and Profession Women's Clubs of B.C. headed by Mrs. T. W. Simpson of Victoria, representing the group's provincial president who was unable to attend the cabinet meeting.

With the major increase of female participation in the economy and work force, a separate bureau for them would help both the department and general public, the organization said in a brief.

The bureau would help solve special problems and would encourage women to improve their work skills as well as maintaining liaison with the federal government's women's bureau regarding female employment matters.

The brief said the number of women in the B.C. labor force has risen from 4,762 or 10.8 per cent in 1901 to 188,000 or 29.2 per cent at last count in 1964.

It said a separate women's branch in the labor department could handle problems of maternity leave, grants for married workers, child care, correction of abuses and "better attitudes toward women's work."

The brief said women must learn new skills to keep up with technology, and "employers must be taught that the chronological age of a person is unsatisfactory as a measurement of occupational ability and adaptability.

"We commend the government for its initial step in appointing Mrs. Christine Waddell as industrial officer and specialist in female labor-management problems within the department," the brief added.

"However, we would respectfully point out that one woman, regardless of how well qualified, cannot be expected to deal with the many and varied problems affecting women workers and at the same time help them to understand their obligations and rights as members of the labor force."

Ask The Times

Q. Do cats and dogs have conscious thoughts? How do they communicate with one another, if they do? R.S.

A. Dogs and cats do not have conscious thoughts or an ability to think, says a local veterinary surgeon.

But they do have an ability to react to situations through instinct and training.

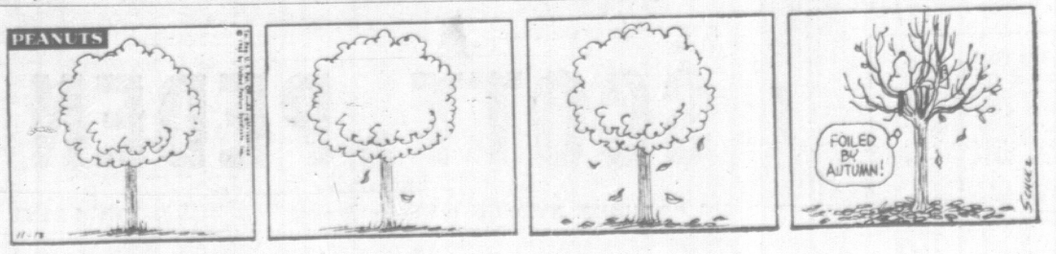

For instance, a dog will not think when he crosses a busy street. But he will react when he hears a horn honking or brakes squealing.

Dogs and cats can communicate by barking and meowing — but they have no specific language.

They get their message across by the tone of the noise they make—a yelp indicating pain or a growl indicating anger.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Not coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Mediation Starts In Oil Dispute

Official Consults All Sides

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson today was optimistic that striking oil workers and their employers will sit down together for peace talks.

He told reporters this morning, "We had a meeting Wednesday with the union and a meeting is taking place this morning with the employers."

Asked if both sides had agreed to sit down at the same table, Mr. Peterson replied, "There is no problem in that respect at the moment."

The minister said the threat of a general strike in support of the oil workers is receiving strong public opposition

VIEWS BROADCAST

He said officials of his labor department Tuesday night and all day Wednesday monitored all "open line" public opinion programs by Vancouver and Victoria radio stations. The public appears deeply opposed to a general strike, he said.

In response to Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's denial that the NDP had spurred the threat of a 48-hour general strike, the minister said Mr. Strachan protested too strongly —raising suspicion he was involved.

Mr. Strachan had called Mr. Peterson "immature" for contending the strike threat was NDP-inspired. The opposition leader said Mr. Peterson was obviously over-burdened because he held two portfolios (education and labor) and demanded he resign one of them.

The general strike call came Wednesday from the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labour. It brought immediate response from Premier Bennett.

NO REPLY

He appealed for cancellation of plans for a general work stoppage but until now, the union officials have made no reply. The strike is set for Thursday and Friday next week.

The premier said such a stoppage would harm not only industry, but all working people in the province. He said he hoped new conciliation moves would solve the dispute which began Sept. 17, initially involving only the British American Oil Company and the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, CLC.

Picket lines later were extended to Imperial Oil and Pacific Petroleum facilities.

Mr. Bennett said he had not considered calling a special emergency session of the legislature.

"I don't think it will come to a crisis," he stated, at a Wednesday press conference.

DO RIGHT THING

"I think it will be solved. I have great confidence in people doing the right thing."

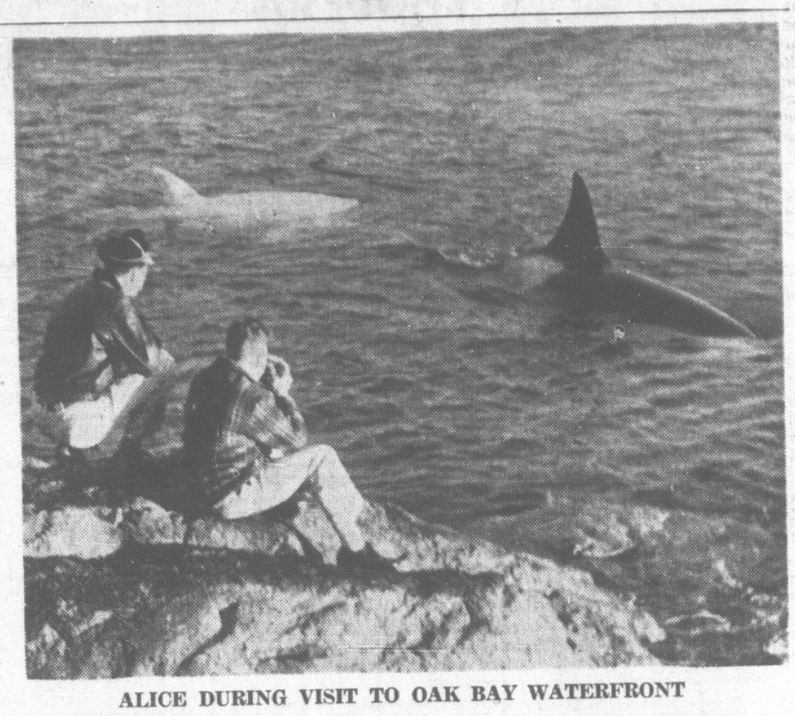

George Johnston, chairman of the strike co-ordinating committee of the labor federation, said the work stoppage is intended as a demonstration of labor's solidarity in support of the strike by oil workers.

Attorney-General Bonner said the move could cost $20,000,000.

Mr. Johnston described Mr. Peterson's statement about NDP involvement as "utter nonsense."

IS ALICE NOW A STEAK ON SOME RUSSIAN PLATE?

By BOB DONAHUE

Have the Russians caught our Alice?

The possibility was raised Wednesday when the Soviet news agency Tass said in a brief report that a 36-foot white whale had been caught by a Russian ship in the North Pacific.

Alice is a white killer whale which has been spotted at various points around Vancouver Island and in the Queen Charlote Islands since 1947.

At the present time a large Russian fishing fleet is operating near the Queen Charlottes.

A spokesman for the fisheries department in Vancouver, which has been keeping close tabs on the Russians, could not confirm whether the Russians in the Queen Charlottes had caught the whale.

"There are no whaling ships in their fleet," he said, "but that is not to say they couldn't have caught it in a net."

He said a Russian whaling fleet visited these waters early last summer, but they generally operate in the Gulf of Alaska and the Bering Sea.

Dr. Clifford Carl of the provincial museum has been keeping close watch on Alice and in 1960 he published a paper entitled the Albino Whales of B.C. which outlined the various sightings since 1947.

Alice has been sighted on both sides of Vancouver Island at Crofton, Port Hardy, Nootka Sound on the West Coast and around the Queen Charlotte Islands.

She was seen off the west coast of the Island near Tofino less than two months ago and a few days prior to that she was spotted in Oak Bay.

Dr. Carl said most reports of the white whale would indicate that there is only one in this area.

Alice is usually accompanied by two other normal colored whales and the three are believed to travel as a family group.

CHU PRONG FOOTHILLS (Reuters)—An American airmobile battalion, hammered in a ferocious ambush Wednesday afternoon—apparently the worst of the South Vietnamese War—today regrouped in these hills and began flying out its dead and wounded.

After a three-day battle a mile or so further south, elements of a North Vietnamese regiment hit the U.S. troops as they moved out of the densely-wooded Ia Drang Valley to set up a new helicopter landing site.

American losses were believed to be heavy in some units of the battalion, but no U.S. casualties were announced in accordance with security regulations.

(Associated Press photographer Richard Merron reached the remnants of the battalion and reported that dozens of dead Americans lay beside North Vietnamese bodies and wounded Americans crowded first aid stations.)

In Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman said the cavalrymen counted at least 300 North Vietnamese bodies and the figure was still rising. Over - all casualties for the Americans were said to be "moderate."

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Henry Agard Wallace, U.S. vice-president in the Roosevelt administration, two time cabinet member, and unsuccessful third party candidate for the presidency, died today in hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

For 15 years, Wallace was one of the most controversial figures in American political life, beloved by New Deal proponents of social welfare for the common man and berated by economic conservatives.

He served Roosevelt as secretary of agriculture from 1933 to 1940, was elected vice-president in 1941, and was Harry Truman's secretary of commerce in 1945-46. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency on the progressive ticket in 1948.

INVOLVES VALIDITY OF E AND N ACT

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a court battle launched by a giant forest company against the government's tax branch likely will turn out to be "one of the biggest cases in British Columbia's legal history."

He was referring to a writ filed Wednesday in Vancouver Supreme Court by MacMillan, Bloedell and Powell River Co., which ultimately will involve hundreds of millions of dollars in provincial tax assessments on the huge Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land belt covering the centre of Vancouver Island.

Both sides feel the suit will take two or three years and will wind up before the Supreme Court of Canada for final determination.

TEST VALIDITY OF ACT

Although the company's argument is advanced on a narrow and technical point, Mr. Bonner said it would involve the validity of the special E and N Land Belt Act which was formulated 15 years ago after a court reference went all the way to the Privy Council in London.

"The importance of this case will be of a general nature," Mr. Bonner said, indicating its ramifications would be widespread through the province's land taxation laws.

The civil court action is expected to result in indefinite postponement of a Dec. 6 court of revision appeal hearing in Victoria law courts ordered last week by the provincial cabinet to hear the company's argument against a $34,167,936 assessment on 39,000 acres in the Strathcona land district.

WAIVE PROCEEDINGS?

Victoria lawyer Allan Baker, QC, is chairman of the three-man revision tribunal and he is expected to be asked to waive the proceedings in favor of the court action.

If he does, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria—appointed to represent the government at the court of revision—likely will be appointed as the government's chief lawyer in the court case.

Negro Party Defies Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — The all-Negro opposition United Peoples Party warned Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith today that it will have no part in furthering what it considers his illegal seizure of independence from Britain.

The party's stand was made clear in a statement issued by its leader, Josiah Gondo.

A party statement said: "The United Peoples Party has already condemned the unilateral declaration of independence as illegal. There can therefore be no question of the party sitting down with Smith and his colleagues to discuss ways and means of furthering the illegal action in any way. This is the attitude which the official and loyal Opposition will adopt in Parliament."

Smith has repeatedly claimed that he had the backing of the Negroes for his unilateral declaration of independence.

Gondo's party has 10 members in Parliament which is due to meet Nov. 25.

KIDNAPPED BY TWO MEN

Father Pays $45,000 Ransom to Free Boy

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A 13-year-old Tacoma boy, son of a wholesale grocery company executive, was kidnapped by two men Wednesday, held for nine hours and released unharmed after payment of $45,000 ransom.

Sheriff Jack Berry disclosed the kidnapping today after Charles Hyde Jr., was back safely with his family.

Berry said the boy was kidnaped while waiting for a school bus to take him to Charles Wright Academy, a private school. Two men drove up in a car while the boy was standing at a bus stop near his home.

The man on the passenger side of the car got out, took the boy by the arm and told him they were going to drive him to school. Then the man led the boy into the back seat.

The sheriff said the boy was told to lie down on the floor. Then the second man got in with him and put a blanket over him. They drove around for some time and later put tape over the boy's eyes, the sheriff said.

Berry said the elder Hyde received a telephone call about two hours later, at 10 a.m., from the kidnappers at his office. He was told to draw $45,000 from the bank in $5, $10, $20 and $100 bills.

The kidnappers put the boy on the telephone to say hello to his father. They told the

INVOLVES VALIDITY OF E AND N ACT

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Attorney-General Robert Bonner today said a court battle launched by a giant forest company against the government's tax branch likely will turn out to be "one of the biggest eases in British Columbia's legal history."

He was referring to a writ filed Wednesday in Vancouver Supreme Court by MacMillan, Bloedell and Powell River Co., which ultimately will involve hundreds of millions of dollars in provincial tax assessments on the huge Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land belt covering the centre of Vancouver Island.

Both sides feel the suit will take two or three years and will wind up before the Supreme Court of Canada for final determination.

TEST VALIDITY OF ACT

Although the company's argument is advanced on a narrow and technical point, Mr. Bonner said it would involve the validity of the special E and N Land Belt Act which was formulated 15 years ago after a court reference went all the way to the Privy Council in London.

"The importance of this case will be of a general nature," Mr. Bonner said, indicating its ramifications would be widespread through the province's land taxation laws.

The civil court action is expected to result in indefinite postponement of a Dec. 6 court of revision appeal hearing in Victoria law courts ordered last week by the provincial cabinet to hear the company's argument against a $34,167,936 assessment on 39,000 acres in the Strathcona land district.

WAIVE PROCEEDINGS?

Victoria lawyer Allan Baker, QC, is chairman of the three-man revision tribunal and he is expected to be asked to waive the proceedings in favor of the court action.

If he does, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, of Victoria—appointed to represent the government at the court of revision—likely will be appointed as the government's chief lawyer in the court case.

Charles Brazier, QC, of Vancouver, filed the writ contending the $8,541,984 bonus tax levied

RCMP Probes Lost Ballots

OTTAWA (CP) — Election officials have called in the RCMP to investigate the circumstances surrounding the discovery of two empty sealed ballot boxes following the Nov. 8 general election.

Both were found during the official ballot counts that followed the election-night tallies.

One was in Ottawa's Carleton riding and the other in Shefford, Que.

In Shefford, Liberal Louis-Paul Neveu had a 45-vote edge over Conservative Paul Trepanier following the official count.

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Henry Agard Wallace, U.S. vice-president in the Roosevelt administration, two time cabinet member, and unsuccessful third party candidate for the presidency, died today in hospital after a long illness. He was 77.

For 15 years, Wallace was one of the most controversial figures in American political life, beloved by New Deal proponents of social welfare for the common man and berated by economic conservatives.

He served Roosevelt as secretary of agriculture from 1933 to 1940, was elected vice-president in 1941, and was Harry Truman's secretary of commerce in 1945-46. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency on the progressive ticket in 1948.

Since that time Wallace has lived quietly as a gentleman farmer.

STRIKE BY NEGROES HITS RAILWAY YARDS

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (Reuters)—More than 2,000 Negro railway men walked out of the Rhodesian Railways locomotive and marshalling yards in Bulawayo today in a wildcat strike protesting against Rhodesia's seizure of independence from Britain.

Several departments of the railways, jointly owned and operated by Rhodesia and neighboring Zambia, were forced to close down by the walkout.

It followed an attempt Wednesday to organize a strike which won only minimum support, when about 40 Negro railwaymen went home.

Negro Party Defies Smith

SALISBURY (CP) — The all-Negro opposition United Peoples Party warned Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith today that it will have no part in furthering what it considers his illegal seizure of independence from Britain.

The party's stand was made clear in a statement issued by its leader, Josiah Gondo.

A party statement said: "The United Peoples Party has already condemned the unilateral declaration of independence as illegal. There can therefore be no question of the party sitting down with Smith and his colleagues to discuss ways and means of furthering the illegal action in any way. This is the attitude which the official and loyal Opposition will adopt in Parliament."

Smith has repeatedly claimed that he had the backing of the Negroes for his unilateral declaration of independence.

Gondo's party has 10 members in Parliament which is due to meet Nov. 25.

AFFIRM LOYALTY

There are 65 seats in Parliament which is dominated by Smith's all - white Rhodesia Front party. There are five independent members — three African Negroes, one Asian and one white.

Rhodesians queued up today to affirm their loyalty to the Queen in two opposing and conflicting ways.

At Government House, where Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs is still in residence despite Rhodesian government pinprick campaign apparently designed to force him out, a steady stream of people came to sign the visitor's book.

And at the legislative assembly, in the centre of the city

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO SPEND HIS $135,000

BUDAPEST (AP) — A Hungarian has just won 1,500,000 forints ($135,000) in the state lottery, and he is at a loss about what to do with his money.

He placed an advertisment in a local newspaper, asking for someone to give him ideas on how to spend his money in a country with state-run economy.

Figyeloe, a leading economic journal, reported on the man's plight. His name was not disclosed. Such winners usually wish to remain anonymous for fear of harassment of women making offers of marriage.

ELIZABETH UNDERLINES SUPPORT FOR GIBBS

LONDON (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth tonight underlined her support for Rhodesian Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs by awarding him her personal order of knighthood.

An announcement from Buckingham Palace said:

"The Queen has been pleased to make the Honorable Sir Humphrey Vicary Gibbs, KCMG, OBE, Governor of Southern Rhodesia, a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order."

Sir Humphrey, 62, already was a knight, having been made Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1960, when he became governor of Rhodesia.

The Queen's action in conferring the KCVO on Gov. Gibbs was interpreted as a move to make it clear in Rhodesia that he was still her representative in the colony.

hundreds stood in line under a hot sun to sign the visitor's book of Clifford Dupont, the Rhodesian breakaway government's new acting "governor."

Dupont, former deputy premier in Smith's regime, was sworn in Wednesday as the country's first acting officer administering the government under the independence constitution proclaimed last week.

He "assumes" the powers held by the British - appointed Gibbs. Smith has said that Gibbs no longer is the legal governor.

The Queen and the British government regard the governor as the only legal government in Rhodesia.

Gibbs was still at Government House on the outskirts of Salisbury, with no telephone link, no sentries and no official car.

In London, the British government said it is in continued touch with Gibbs despite the absence of a telephone link, but it does not want to disclose the method for fear the Smith regime may block it.

Smith said Wednesday he was stripping the last trappings of office from Gibbs.

Wednesday night an explosion in the centre of Bulawayo, Rhodesia's second largest city, shattered windows in an apartment building but caused no injuries.

PATROL NEGRO AREAS

Strong police patrols were on duty in Negro townships in Salisbury and Bulawayo but no incidents were reported.

Smith was asked at a press conference Wednesday how far his government would be prepared to go if the situation got tough.

"We will resort to measures as tough as they have to be if necessary," he said.

The prime minister said restricted Negroes, including rival nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, will be kept in restriction camps "until they make it clear they will agree to work the constitution."

He added that "while they give orders to burn, to intimidate and even to kill they will stay as they are."

Asked if there had been unrest in the country since independence, Smith said: "There has been a little trouble but it has been insignificant, token strikes and that sort of thing. But the situation is normal. . . ."

He said censorship imposed after independence would be ended in "the shortest possible time. I reluctantly accept it as a necessary evil."

Government censors today said they had banned the current issue of Time magazine.

Dundee - born editor Sidney Swadel of the daily newspaper Bulawayo Chronicle ordered chief government censor Ivor Benson out of the editorial room Wednesday night.

"Get out of my office and never let me see you here again," snapped Swadel. "Get out at the double."

The censors have their own room in the building where all news and pictures have to be passed before they can be published.

In Salisbury Wednesday, editor Malcolm Smith of the Rhodesia Herald was questioned by police who took possession of his passport.

Both newspapers are strongly anti-Smith and have been heavily censored in the last week.

FLOG 184 STUDENTS

Officials flogged 184 African high school students in Gwelo for demonstrating last Tuesday against independence.

In its continuing efforts to bring Smith's government to its knees, Britain showed signs of preparing to add a paralysing oil embargo to the other economic sanctions it has slapped on Rhodesia.

Prime Minister Wilson beamed a shortwave broadcast to Salisbury warning that members of the United Nations were in a "passionate mood" to take drastic action.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the UN Security Council that Britain was ready to consider an oil embargo among wider economic sanctions.

pledged support for the work stoppage.

The federation, in a telegram to labor unions throughout the province, has asked that union members discontinue the use of petroleum products for the 48-hour period and that unions not directly involved in the use of petroleum products withdraw their services for the same period of time.

Oil workers seek an additional 50 cents an hour in a basic wage of $2.75, but protection against the effects of automation is chief among their aims in a new contract.

Meanwhile, in Saskatoon, National NDP Leader T. C. Douglas told reporters that B.C. Labor Minister Peterson is meerly looking for a "scapegoat" when he blames the general strike threat on the NDP.

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Peterson's charge was "completely false."

"Mr. Peterson would be far better advised to apply himself to his job. He has failed to do his job as minister of labor during the last six weeks."

Mr. Douglas said Mr. Peterson had failed to take measures to have the petroleum companies bargain in good faith.

"This is his job rather than making irresponsible statements."

And at Port Alberni, NDP MLA John Squire called the suggestion of NDP instigation of the general strike threat "stupid." He claimed the NDP is being made a whipping boy

He said the present situation is 1937 repeating itself.

The MLA said "in that year B.C. oil companies took on Premier Duff Pattullo when he ordered gas price reductions . . . the industry defied the government order, shut its refineries down, and the government capitulated."

He said "Mr. Peterson has been told repeatedly over the years what his legislation was leading to.

"He has been told labor is denied equal footing with management in dealing with urgent employment matters"

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A disturbance which crossed the south coast this morning was accompanied by rain showers and snow flurries as it moved through the southern interior today. Behind the disturbance skies will remain mostly cloudy and there will be a few showers along the coast as a large stationary storm west of Oregon continues to pump moist air over B.C. The cloudy weather is expected to continue through Friday.

FIRST CALL with Ben Wicks

So we're independent. Now what?"

. . . TAX SUIT

under the special E and N lands statute, and based on the $34.1 million assessment notice, is not legal or valid.

'ACTUAL' VALUE

The bonus tax is a flat 25 per cent of the "actual value" of any E and N land belt property on the day it is sold. This is set out by the special act which was set up to recover some of the advantage of tax exemption originally given the company under terms of B.C.'s entry into Confederation which included the promise of a mainland railway link to Esquimalt.

MBPR last Dec. 31 bought some 140,000 acres of the land belt from the Canadian Pacific Railway. Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd. bought another 80,000 acres in the same deal and the sale price for both transactions totalled $53 million.

Because the property was not fully surveyed or timber cruised, the provincial tax branch took a 39,000-acre block of the MBPR purchase for a pilot analysis and last Sept. 30 issued the tax assessment of $34.1 million on it — although MBPR paid only $35 million for its entire 140,000 acres.

On this basis, the likelihood arose immediately that the final assesment on the entire 220,000 acres of some of the best timber land in North America bought by the two companies would wind up at more than $250 million—about five times the price paid for it.

This would mean a projected bonus tax levy totalling $62.5 million for provincial coffers, considerably more than the price.

The implications don't stop there because the two-company deal only bought up about half of the remaining tax-exempt land in the belt which originally totalled 3,000 acres or one-quarter of all Vancouver Island.

Presumably, the 200,000 or so acres of unalienated land still left would be subject to the same scale of assessments—based on "actual value" and not necessarily price—when they were sold. Theoretically at least, this raises the ultimate stakes to close to $500 million in tax assessment instead of an anticipated $100 million or less based on today's land values.

The assessment figures are a double-edged sword because they are the basis not only for the one-shot 25 per cent tax but also the annual property tax that normally applies to all private land in unorganized territory.

MBPR first asked for a court of revision appeal hearing to attack the pilot propperty assessment figure alone.

But Wednesday it took the case to court to attack the legality of the assessment method as well as the figure determined by the tax branch.

The writ asks for a declaration that the Sept. 30 tax notice was illegal because it related only to one portion instead of the entire acreage purchased by the company.

The company lawyers are expected to argue that although the bonus tax is valid in principle it must be applied at one time to the entire property purchase and should be based on an assessment related directly to the price paid.

chance of getting out.

"We started crawling away under terribly intense fire. We crawled 250 yards, then started running. I never ran so fast before.

"We had to leave most of the wounded people behind. There was nothing else we could do. But we tried to help some of them by crawling with them.

"The ones we left behind were screaming in pain and fear. Someone shouted out, "Don't leave me'." A lieutenant called out, 'Please shoot me. Please shoot me. I don't want them to get me'."

"Oh God, it was horrible," said Pte. David Weed of Pittston, Me. "Guys were crying. We had to leave them. Some were screaming."

When the North Vietnamese opened up with mortars and small arms, the battalion radioed for reinforcements. The other battalion began a forced march and reached the ambush scene at nightfall.

The wake of battle left bodies in piles of 15 and 20.

men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division, the North Vietnamese leaped from trees and camouflaged positions to spray the battalion with withering fire from mortars, machine - guns, portable rocket - launchers and small arms.

The engagement lasted for about 2½ hours, much of it hand-to-hand. Some of the Communist troops were shot down only after they had penetrated the American lines.

Although U.S. casualty figures have not been released, the Ia Drang battle has already caused the greatest American losses of any single engagement in the war. The last official count of enemy dead was 890, not including those killed Wednesday.

The Americans were flown in Sunday to tackle the North Vietnamese, estimated to number about 1,500 in the area, 220 miles northeast of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

After three days of heavy fighting, and in advance of a B-52 bombing attack on Communist positions on Chu Phong Mountain, two battalions had pulled out of their positions at the foot of the mountain. Helicopters flew one battalion to an artillery base about three miles to the southeast. The other battalion hiked north into the ambush.

'Treason' Charged By Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Wilson today branded as an act of treason the move by Ian Smith's regime in Rhodesia to appoint Clifford Dupont as a "replacement" for the Crown-appointed governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs.

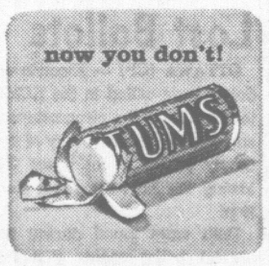

Wilson told Parliament that Gibbs was appointed by Queen Elizabeth and could be removed only at her request.

He spoke of the "contemptible action" of Smith's white-minority regime in putting pressure on the governor and Lady Gibbs.

Smith's white-minority government seized independence in the Central African colony Nov. 11.

CROSS-CANADA HOSPITAL SURVEY

All Municipalities Share Costs

Municipalities in all Canadian provinces pay a share of hospital construction costs—just as the capital region here is being asked to do on a regular basis.

This was disclosed by a survey recently conducted by the Canadian Hospital Association. It was made available to the Times today by Royal Jubilee Administrator George Masters.

Mr. Masters says when the cost-sharing systems in each province, involving federal, provincial and municipal governments, are worked out, British Columbia stands first.

"In all these provinces the municipalities pay a higher percentage of hospital costs than they are asked to do in B.C.," he said. Health Minister Eric Martin recently made the same claim.

Mr. Masters said in some provinces the hospitals hold fund drives also. But in the western provinces these have proved largely unsuccessful.

The survey appears to refute a statement attributed to Victoria Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow Tuesday.

He said B.C. is the only province where local ratepayers are asked to support capital costs of hospitals.

HOSPITAL TABLE

Ald. Edgelow said today he obtained his information from the Federation of Canadian Mayors. He added that other provinces ask municipalities to contribute on a voluntary basis but none of them make the municipal contribution mandatory.

(Under the mini-metro scheme now before the capital region a two-mill levy would be applied to all taxpayers once the scheme is adopted.)

Here is the table provided by the hospital association:

British Columbia pays half the approved cost of new construction and all operating costs and charges patients $1 per day for ward care. Ottawa pays $2,000 per bed. The balance is a municipal responsibility.

Alberta matches federal grants ($2,000 per bed, estimated in Victoria to amount to 15 per cent of construction costs) and may pay the balance of the cost at established maximum rates, by meeting debenture payments. But in Alberta there is a four-mill assessment for operating costs, against municipalities.

Saskatchewan, for some hospitals pay up to 70 per cent of $13,000 for each bed. In others, up to 60 per cent of $10,000 and in community hospitals, up to 40 per cen tof $8,000 per bed. The community pays the balance.

Manitoba matches federal grants and approves loans for remainder after a 20-per-cent local contribution and provincial and federal grants have been deducted. The community pays the balance.

Ontario pays $3,200 to each new active bed and $3,000 per chronic bed, provided the grant is not more than 50 per cent of construction cost. The community pays the balance.

Quebec has no capital grant regulations. If the province approves the construction there are grants matching the federal contribution, which sometimes are increased beyond it. The community pays the balance.

New Brunswick pays $2,000 per bed and furnishing and equipment costs are refunded by the hospital service. Provincial grants retire capital debt and interest up to two-thirds of the total. The community pays the balance.

Nova Scotia pays $3,000 per bed, operates a hospital loan fund and collects a per capita tax from municipalities. The community pays the balance.

Prince Edward Island pays $2,000 per bed and makes a grant to meet interest and principal on hospital capital debt up to 50 per cent—after deducting initial grants. The community pays the balance.

Newfoundland makes substantial grants toward capital costs, but details are not shown. The community pays the balance.

Soviet Backs Disarmament Parley Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The Soviet Union today threw its support behind a proposal calling for the convening of a world disarmament conference next year which would include Communist China.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko told the General Assembly's main political committee such a conference should be held outside the aegis of the United Nations so that nonmembers such as Red China and Communist East Germany could take part.

He warned, however, that "the mistakes of the past must not be repeated" in arranging the conference. He suggested it be held no later than mid-1966.

"The goal of this conference should be to test new possibilities of solving the disarmament problem," he said. "All participants must have full freedom for presenting proposals, ideals and suggestions."

U.S. Network Won't Show Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Football League officials have learned the 1965 Grey Cup football game will not be televised in the U.S. by the American Broadcasting Company as in the last three years.

This means the league's treasury will miss out on the $50,000 the ABC paid in the past for rights to the Grey Cup classic.

Jake Gaudaur, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference who also heads the CFL's U.S. television committee, quoted an ABC official as saying that due to an unusually large number of commitments, plus 15 pretaped sports shows waiting to be shown, the network found itself too heavily committed to telecast the Grey Cup.

Canadian Joins Harness Big 4

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) —Ron Feagan, 23, joined the world's Big Four in harness racing Tuesday night at Mohawk raceway.

The Goderich, Ont., native became the fifth driver and the first Canadian to win 200 races in one season.

With 197 wins going into Tuesday night's events, Feagan won the first race with Kit's Kid, the second with B. Direct and the ninth with Mistress Mine.

Ed Freundt, West Germany, had 386 wins in 1964; Bob Farrington, Richdood, Ohio, had 312 last year; Don Busse, Kingston, Ill., had 201 in 1963 and Bill Haughton, Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y., hit 201 Nov. 7.

Contract to Be Let On Retarded School

A building contract will be let "almost immediately" for Victoria School for retarded children.

The school, which has been in the planning stages for over a year, is expected to be completed by next spring.

Buildings and grounds committee chairman Peter Bunn said the contract will be let to Herb Bates Construction Ltd., within the $121,000 shareable amount allowed by the education department.

The six-room structure at Victor and Denman Street will incorporate facilities for training retarded children.

Tenders for construction of the school's original design were far above the estimated cost and the amount which the education department would share.

The plans were completely redrawn, but the tenders received were still out of the provincial government's cost-sharing range.

Since then cost-cutting measures have been taken in the materials to be used in the school to bring the cost down to $121,000.

Ship Design Faulty Rules Naval Inquiry

HALIFAX (CP) — A fire aboard the destroyer Nipigon which claimed the lives of three sailors Oct. 18 was caused by a flaw in the destroyer's design, the navy announced today.

The navy said in a statement the fire was caused by seepage of vapor through a faulty hatch cover while the destroyer was in the western approaches of the English Channel.

It said evidence presented before a naval inquiry board at Plymouth, England, indicated two flash fires had occurred on the mess deck situated above a tank containing fuel used by helicopters aboard the destroyer.

"The first flash fire was due to the ignition of a small amount of vapor escaping from the tank through the faulty hatch cover. The vapor, which is believed to have ignited some 10 or 12 feet from the hatch, burned back to the hatch and caused a second flash fire about five seconds later. This in turn caused a fireball to pass through the mess deck."

The statement said the inquiry board had found no indications of negligence on the part of the ship's personnel either before or after the accident. Neither was there any indication of negligence on the part of naval or civilian personnel who worked on the ship's construction.

"The fault was one of design which survived the normal tests and could not be detected under normal operating conditions. Steps to rectify the fault are within the capabilities of the navy and are now in the process of implementation."

A naval spokesman said it was not immediately known if the same design fault is present in other warships, but said tests are being carried out.

The three men killed in the fire were Able Seaman Thomas S. Pitts, 23, of nearby Dartmouth and Picton, Ont.; Ordinary Seaman Patrick A. Perrier of Val d'Or, Que., and Able Seaman Roderick E. Reade of Galt, Ont. Several other men were injured in the accident.

Computer To Deal For Bridge

Computerized bridge anyone?

George Morgan, director of the Victoria chapter of the American Contract Bridge League is preparing local bridge players for a continent-wide 20,000-player bridge game, in which the hands will be dealt by computer.

The cards will be dealt by a San Francisco "brain" at the same hour Friday night to eager players in cities from Victoria to Key West.

The Victoria game will be played at 1012 Douglas begining 7:45 p.m. Players ready to match wits with fellow enthusiasts are welcome to try their skill. There is a $2.00 admission charge, all proceeds going to the ACBL charity foundation.

Debate Asked On Apartheid

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The Soviet Union placed a surprise demand before the UN General Assembly's special political committee Wednesday for immediate debate on the question of apartheid (race segregation) in South Africa.

Soviet Ambassador P. D. Morozov said South Africa's race policies are directly connected with the situation in Rhodesia.

South Africa boycotts such debates.

Crackdown Advised On Chiropractors

QUEBEC (UPI) — More extensive supervision covering chiropracty in Quebec province was advised in a report released Wednesday by Mr. Justice Gerard Lacroix of Quebec Superior Court following his one-man investigation into the practice.

The three-volume study, made public by Premier Jean Lesage and Health Minister Eric K. Keirans, called for tighter controls in order to "end the ubuses which frequently occur." It also laid down recommendations regarding the training of chiropractors, licensing, and other aspects of the field.

Mr. Justice Lacroix was named as a one-man royal commission to probe all aspects of the chiropractic field by an order-in-council February, 1963.

"The fundamental idea which emerges from this study is that we believe we must declare that this therapeutic technique should not be abandoned to an uncontrolled practice, as is the case in Quebec right now, either by laisse-faire attitude or by tolerance," the report concluded.
